Franco Spurned.

By Joseph Driscoll.
Special Cable to The Post.

London, July 6.—Without waiting for a decision by their own government, British shipowners trading with Spanish government ports, today rejected Gen. Franco's proposal that they, if they wish to escape further bombings, should boycott all but one government port, Almeria, which Franco would grant immunity from aerial attacks.

A spokesman for British shipping interests in the Spanish trade, representing 50 companies and 140 ships, declared that Franco's proposal would abrogate all principles of international law. Moreover, it was said that Almeria is the smallest of the seven ports of Government Spain and is in every way unsatisfactory as a sole entrance into Government Spain.

The shipowners made it plain that they intended to continue their highly profitable traffic of sending their ships into Valencia, Barcelona, Alicante and other semi-blockaded ports even at the risk of having the ships bombed and perhaps provoking the British government into reprisals which might lead to a general war.

Duce Clamors for Pact.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in his determination to keep on friendly terms with Gen. Franco and Premier Mussolini, suffered a further embarrassment today when it was reliably reported that Mussolini is again insisting upon early ratification of the Anglo-Italian agreement.

Chamberlain is on record as being unwilling to put the agreement into operation until Mussolini has withdrawn most of his troops and aviators from Spain and the Balearic Islands. However, Mussolini argues

Rome, July 6 (U.P.).—A detailed report showing that Spanish insurgents are in a position to win the war without further assistance from Italian "volunteers" has been submitted to Premier Mussolini by a special army commission just returned from Spain.

The commission was said to be headed by Gen. Luigi Frusci, who made a brilliant record in Ethiopia, commanding Askari troops on the Somaliland front.

Japan Forced to War, Konoye Asserts; Kung Lauds China's Stability After Year's Conflict

Chiang's Prime Minister Assails 'Indifference,' Sees World Peril.

By Dr. H. H. Kung,
Acting Premier and Minister of Finance of China.

Hankow, July 6.—For a year the world has witnessed a wild fire burning and spreading fiercely and steadily in the Far East, reducing millions of innocent and peace loving Chinese homes to ashes, with the ruins reflecting the light even in the skies of distant lands.

KUNG.

Unless this fire is checked in time, China's fate will be the fate of other nations tomorrow and the future of mankind and civilization may be doomed.

Japan's latest aggression against China is but a step forward in her ruthless program to realize her frantic dream of establishing a hegemony in the Pacific and eventually world-wide domination. Former Premier Glichi Tanaka's well-known memorial (declared by Japan to be a forgery —Ed.) revealed this truth to the world in laying down the policy that to conquer the world Japan must first conquer China, and to conquer China she must first conquer Manchuria.

Few persons in the world really

Tokyo (Thursday), July 7.—One year ago today Japan was forced against her will into a conflict with China.

Every possible effort was made to localize the incident.

KONOYE.

Peaceful settlement was agreed to but never effected owing to the failure of Chinese authorities to carry it out. To avoid further possible complications the Japanese government went to great pains to evacuate her nationals from various treaty ports, including Chungking, Changsha, Yehang, Hankow and even Tsingtao, removing thousands of Japanese.

They had to quit places where they had lived for many years, abandoning vested interests as well as accumulated fortunes. Naturally there was strong resentment and criticism of the government by the people directly and indirectly concerned. But the government firmly resolved that no stone should be left unturned to avoid spreading the unhappy clash between the two forces in

Police Fire at Crowd After Bomb Explodes; Riots Cover Palestine.

By the Associated Press.

Jerusalem, July 6. — Eighteen Arabs and five Jews were killed today in street fighting which was touched off by a bomb explosion in the center of Haifa, Palestine's chief port.

Gun battles and rioting flared throughout the business section. Sixty-nine Arabs and ten Jews were wounded seriously.

Eyewitnesses said many casualties were inflicted by police, who fired into the rioters.

The victims of today's outbreak brought to 72 the number of Jews and Arabs killed in racial clashes in the Holy Land since May 30. Twenty-seven Arabs and 22 Jews were killed in previous disorders between the two groups, each of which considers Palestine its national and spiritual home.

Race rioting broke out during the evening rush hour when crowds were hurrying home. Witnesses said that after the bomb exploded police constables opened fire on the crowds.

One of the victims was Tivia Dounie, 55, a well-known contractor and brother-in-law of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Federation.

British authorities of the troubled Palestine mandate considered a new imposition of martial law as the violence, which broke out a week ago with the execution of the first Jew to be hung in Jerusalem since 1916, began to spread into other major cities and rural areas.

Jerusalem, Haifa and Tel Aviv already are under strict curfew regulations to keep residents off the streets at night.

One report from Haifa said an hour after the bomb was thrown

3 Democracies Lead at Parley Over Refugees

Taylor Urges 'Intergovernmental Action' to 32-Nation Group.

By the Associated Press.

Evian, France, July 6.—The world's three greatest democracies —the United States, Great Britain and France—took the lead today in seeking havens for unwanted Jews and other political refugees from greater Germany.

The three nations combined their efforts at the opening of a 32-nation conference on refugees, called as a result of President Roosevelt's invitation for intergovernmental discussion of the problem.

Members of the official committee approved a suggestion by the French delegate, Henry Berenger, to send a message to Mr. Roosevelt emphasizing the solidarity of the delegates in working toward a solution.

Myron C. Taylor, head of the United States delegation, in a strongly worded speech said the plight of thousands of persons deprived of their nationality by Germany's absorption of Austria was "no longer of purely private concern; it is one for intergovernmental action."

Although Taylor named only one country—Germany—he outlined the scope of the conference as taking in problems of "reluctant migrants" from any nation.

Forced migration of political and racial groups can bring "catastrophic suffering upon the world," the former head of the United States Steel Corporation declared.

The Earl of Winterton, Britain's delegate, said his country was anxious to join in helping "alleviate in some degree the consquences of the situation, the poignancy and gravity of which has struck the imagination and excited the sym-

Paulette Really Mrs. Chaplin, Golf Tourney Entry Discloses

By the United Press.

Del Monte, Calif., July 6.—Paulette Goddard, who has never confirmed or denied rumors she is married, registered for the Cypress Point golf tournament as "Mrs. Charlie Chaplin," it was revealed tonight.

PAULETTE GODDARD.

At dinner parties given for Miss Goddard during the past week place cards at the dinner table have designated her as "Mrs. Chaplin," it was learned.

Socially prominent visitors at the hotel introduce her as "Mrs. Chaplin" and have "accepted" her as the wife of the famed comedian.

Miss Goddard has been visiting Chaplin at his Pebble Beach home here for a week. She arrived from Hollywood after announcing she was going to Reno, Nev., divorce mecca, "to start a ski club." They have been seen together constantly and there has been no indication of differences between them as has been reported in some quarters.

Los Angeles, July 6 (A.P.).—Arthur Day, jr., and Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin Day, who were married yesterday, will go through another ceremony to satisfy a legal technicality, they said today.

Mrs. Day's divorce from her second husband was not entered until July 7, 1937, and the law requires that a year elapse before a final decree can be given.

Morgan Sues To Recover Post in TVA

Former Chairman Calls Roosevelt's Ouster Order Illegal.

Two Colleagues Named; Reinstatement, Back Salary Asked.

By the Associated Press.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 6.—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan filed suit in Knox County Court late today challenging the right of President Roosevelt to remove him as chairman of the TVA and asking that he be recognized as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the Federal agency.

The tall, gaunt Ohioan, former president of Antioch College, asserted in the bill he had never recognized the President's right and power to remove him as chief of the New Deal's great experiment in social and economic planning.

He asked payment of back salary since his removal by the President March 22, 1938, and a declaratory judgement voiding the President's removal order and forcing directors H. A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal to recognize him "as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the defendant, Tennessee Valley Authority . . ."

Donahey in Knoxville.

The bill named the TVA and directors H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal as defendants.

Filing of the suit came on the eve of a Congressional investigation of the TVA, precipitated by Dr. Morgan's charges of "dishonest management" against his former associates.

Dr. Morgan refused to support his accusations with testimony at a hearing called by President Roosevelt and the Chief Executive declared him guilty of "contumacy" and ordered his removal as chairman.

Senator Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the Congressional investigating committee, arrived here today to direct preliminary work before the other committee members assemble Monday for a five-day inspection tour of TVA properties.

Donahey said he had no comment on the sudden development.

Dr. Morgan filed the suit against the TVA as a corporation and asked back salary of $2,916.66.

Claims Membership.

He also sought a declaratory judgment decreeing:

"(a) That the attempted removal by the President of the United States . . . is wholly invalid, void and of no effect whatsoever.

"(b) That the attempted designation by the President of Harcourt A. Morgan as chairman of the board of directors of the defendant (TVA) . . . was and is wholly invalid, void and without authority in law.

"(c) That the complainant is and since his appointment on May 30, 1933, has been and still is a member and chairman of the

Colored Men Join White in Lynching Killer of Planter

Rolling Fork, Miss., July 6 (U.P.). Three hundred white and colored men today shot to death Tom Green, 48-year-old colored blacksmith, dragged his body several miles and burned it where a few hours earlier he had killed R. Purdy Flanagan, white planter.

Green was killed in a small cabin after a 15-minute gun battle.

A blacksmith on Flanagan's Mayfair plantation 15 miles north of here, Green was wounded by the planter in an altercation this afternoon. Green shot Flanagan three times.

Six Bombers Plan Trip to Colombia

Six twin-motored Army bombers will attend the August 7 inauguration of Dr. Eduardo Santos as President of Colombia, the State Department announced yesterday.

Jefferson Caffery, American Ambassador to Brazil, has been designated by President Roosevelt as his special representative at the ceremonies.

Although details of the flight from the Panama Canal Zone to Bogota, Colombia, capital of the South American republic, were not available, it was understood that B-18 bombers, somewhat smaller than the "Flying Fortresses" which dashed to Buenos Aires last February, would make the trip staffed by 12 officers and 12 enlisted men.

Railways Win 25% Increase In Coach Fare; FHA Insuring Billion in Housing This Year

Total to Double Amount Underwritten for Last 12 Months.

$11,229,000 Given For REA Projects

Veterans Body Allotted $13,280,000 for Hospitals.

By William V. Nesslv.

Housing, leader for months among factors combating the recession, will find the Federal Housing Administration insuring $1,000,000,000 of new construction this year, Stewart McDonald, FHA administrator, reported to President Roosevelt yesterday. The total will be more than double that underwritten last year.

In June alone, McDonald said, small home mortgages selected for appraisal totaled $96,265,502, an increase of 75 per cent over the figure for the same period of 1937 and a new high mark in FHA records.

This was but a part of the day's picture of Governmental activity to aid recovery.

In addition, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, announced that $13,280,000 of FHA funds had been allotted for additional hospital construction, with a Presidential request that the projects be actually under way by August 15.

The Rural Electrification Administration joined the spending-lending program by allocating $11,229,000 for 66 rural electricity projects.

PWA Administrator Ickes went over with the President, on the eve of Mr. Roosevelt's departure today on his transcontinental vacation trip, a long list of projects for which he expects allocation of funds to be made in the next few days.

"Matter of Jobs."

McDonald, at the White House, declared the home building gains "considerably brighten the industrial picture.

"It adds substantially to the business of materials, paints and other building supplies and it adds greatly to the total employment," he continued.

"Home building, in the final analysis, is largely a matter of giving people jobs, either on the building job itself or in industries that supply materials."

He reported that mortgages accepted for insurance (commitments by the FHA) in June were valued at $73,363,400, which was 60 per cent above the figure for June of last year. Approximately 7 per cent of the mortgages cover new homes.

In addition, property improvement loans numbering 34,468 with

Harlan Defendant Is Shot to Death; G-Men Join Hunt

London, Ky., July 6 (A.P.).—Frank White, 36, former Harlan County sheriff's deputy on trial with other former deputies, Harlan coal operators and mining companies on an anti-union conspiracy indictment, was shot to death tonight near Corbin, Ky.

State highway patrolmen arrested a man they said was standing 20 feet away. White, shot twice in the head, died in a hospital at Corbin.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents stationed here for the conspiracy trial joined the investigation.

Since the antiunion conspiracy trial started in Federal Court here nearly eight weeks ago, three previous acts of violence have been reported.

A Government witness, Lester Smithers, was shot to death in front of a saloon at Gulston, near Harlan; another Government witness, John Isom, reported he was "kidnaped;" and yesterday Lee Fleenor, another former deputy-defendant, was arrested on a charge of shooting a man once convicted of killing Fleenor's father.

Senator Borah Is Ill; Condition Not Serious

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, has been confined to his bed in his apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue since Sunday with a minor illness, and is being attended by a trained nurse. The attending nurse predicted the Senator would continue in bed for "only a few days."

Recovery News Around the Country

WASHINGTON—The Federal Housing Administration reported June business 74 per cent above June a year ago and forecast a billion dollars worth of insured construction this year, more than double that of last year.

WASHINGTON—Postmaster General Farley estimated postal earnings for the fiscal year were highest in history.

WASHINGTON—The Interstate Commerce Commission granted a ½-cent a mile increase in Eastern passenger fares, assuring about $30,000,000 increased revenue.

NEW YORK—The Stock Market resumed its upward trend with leaders closing from 50 cents to $2 a share higher than Tuesday in the wake of higher commodity prices.

NEW YORK—Charles R. Hook, steel industrialist, en route to England and Sweden to study labor relations and legislation for the President, said business can "go only one way—and that is up."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Max L. Holtz, president Rochester Clothiers Exchange, announced upward of 15,000 workers would be back on the job in a week, increasing pay rolls $500,000 weekly.

CAMDEN, N. J.—Radio Corporation of America announced 1,200 workers were added last month.

CHARLOTTESVILLE—Postmaster General James A. Farley told the Institute of Public Affairs that he "yearned" for peace between capital and labor and between business and government.

Administrator Of Wage Law May Be Nelson

Announcement of Choice Expected Today; Chicago Republican Likely.

Donald Marr Nelson, of Chicago, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and formerly active in administration of the NRA here, was reported last night to be President Roosevelt's choice for the new post of administrator of the wage-hour law.

NELSON.

Announcement of the appointment may be made today before the President departs on his vacation trip to the West Coast.

While Nelson denied over long-distance telephone last night that the position had been offered to him, it is known that he has been consulted regarding it and that inquiries made by Mr. Roosevelt regarding the prospective appointment have indicated a leaning toward the Chicagoan. Nelson was the recent visitor at Hyde Park, N. Y., while the President was at his home there.

Nelson is known to be in sympathy with objectives of the wage-hour act, having pronounced it "a very good bill." In addition, his experience in NRA has acquainted him with many of the problems to be faced, and through his activities as director of merchandising for Sears, Roebuck, he has obtained detailed knowledge of industrial conditions in various parts of the country.

Nelson first came to Washington July 1, 1934, and was in Government service for about a year. He was first on the Industrial Advisory Board and later was made a

Bureaus Draft Subjects for Trust Inquiry

Committee Meets Today on Scope; Dr. Wilbur Asks Movie Quiz.

Representatives of six Federal agencies yesterday put finishing touches on a tentative agenda for the joint legislative-executive monopoly investigating committee which will meet this morning to determine the scope of the inquiry.

Agents for the six bureaus, asked to submit an outline on material available and items the main committee should go into, held a preliminary meeting apart from the legislative group in the office of Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

It was indicated that steel, rubber, cement and basic industries touching nearly every phase of production are being considered for the study.

Douglas went to the White House yesterday to ask the President to make an allocation from the $400,000 placed at his discretion to get the investigation started. He told reporters the Securities and Exchange Commission will specialize on financial angles of the inquiry, including a study of security markets, capital markets, holding companies "and other legal devices" and "the whole problem of concentration of financial power."

Other developments:

The securities and Exchange Commission announced creation of a new division to be known as "the monopoly study," to handle the SEC phase of the inquiry. Thomas C. Blaisdell, an economist with the Government since 1933, was appointed director of the division.

Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of Interior under President Hoover, wired Chairman O'Mahoney of the Joint Committee to investigate the motion picture industry. Wilbur

5-Year Traffic Safety Record Set in City in First Half of '38

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A 5-year record in traffic safety was established in Washington during the first six months of this year, figures at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic revealed yesterday.

WILLIAM VAN DUZER.

For the first time since 1933, fatalities have shown a marked decrease. New lows in the number of accidents and personal injuries have been established.

The first half of this year—ending June 30—brought a 27.3 per cent reduction from the 1937 number of highway deaths. Forty persons were killed in traffic mishaps, against 55 last year.

Since 1930 District fatalities have fallen below 40 for a half-year period only in 1933 when 33 persons were killed.

"And this new record," said Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, "can be traced directly to an improved attitude on the part of Washington motorists, brought about principally by publicity. The Washington Post is to be commended for the part it has played in keeping the traffic problem constantly in front of the motoring public."

Van Duzer praised Judge Hobart Newman, whose so-called "crack down" methods in Traffic Court are credited with curbing major Eastern Lines Expecting $30,000,000 More Annual Revenue.

'Worse Condition' Of Carriers Cited

ICC Reverses Its Earlier Ruling; Boost to Be Tried 18 Months.

By Robert C. Albright.

A half-cent-a-mile coach fare increase on Eastern railroads yesterday was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which conceded the roads "are in serious need of additional revenue."

Reversing a prior 6 to 5 ruling against the increase, the commission authorized a step-up from 2 to 2½ cents a mile in Eastern coach fares for a "trial period" of 18 months. The new fares will go into effect on ten days' notice.

In granting the lines' repeated request for the fare raise, the commission said that since earlier hearings in December last year "the financial condition of the applicants has become progressively worse."

$30,000,000 a Year More.

Cheered by the action, spokesmen for the roads estimated the increase may add approximately $30,000,000 annually to their revenues and looked forward to an increase in freight traffic that might further bulwark receipts.

No similar application for an increase was anticipated from Western carriers, which draw less of their revenue from passenger fares. Southern roads were granted a permissive increase last year.

Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation said the increase should bring "substantial help" to the Eastern roads and disclosed that the RFC has not abandoned proposals for "work loans" to the carriers during the depression.

Despite failure of rail-aid legislation at the last session of Congress, Jones said the RFC will proceed to make loans on "special terms" to all roads that are "receptive" and agree to take back a stipulated number of furloughed employes.

Jones Cites Needs.

He said the Interstate Commerce Commission would have to approve such loans, but that "a lot of roads have ample collateral and are able to borrow." He told Congressional committees 50,000 furloughed workers could be re-employed under such a program, but indicated his present estimate would be more modest.

"There are a lot of things they would like to do if they felt rich enough," said the RFC chairman. He mentioned track maintenance work, rebuilding cars, repairing engines and rebuilding bridges as desirable rail improvements. To date, the RFC has received no applications from the roads.

Jones said he wasn't "foolishly optimistic" over the business situation, but he "never has been able to find any real excuse for the business recession."

Unions to Question Losses.

"The stock market reflects the state of mind of those who buy securities," he said, "and that state of mind influences business." He said he thought any gain shown in the stock market "is justified."

The Eastern fare rise was not expected to affect conferences in Chicago July 20 between railway executives and labor leaders on the carriers' demand for a 15 per cent pay cut.

Leaving the White House yesterday, A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said the labor brotherhoods will "support the President's stand" against wage cuts in his recent fireside chat.

Whitney said the railroads could save from $700,000,000 to $800,000,-

Hamilton Says He Drew Forth Roosevelt Talk

Remarks on South Elicited by His Presence, G. O. P. Chairman Suggests.

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, yesterday suggested that alarm over Republican activities in the South motivated President Roosevelt's present concern over the economic plight of the Southern States, as expressed Tuesday in a letter to a conference of Southern industrial leaders called at his instance to help draw up a rehabilitation program. The President characterized the South as "the Nation's No. 1 economic problem."

Hamilton, who has just returned from the second of two speaking trips in the South, observed that it was not until after he had explored what he called the baneful effect of New Deal policies on Southern agriculture and industry, that the President discovered that all was not well below the Mason and Dixon line.

In other quarters it was suggested that the rehabilitation program was part of the President's campaign to sell "liberalism" to the Southern States and to dislodge the conservative Democrats who wielded so much power in the last Congress. One conservative Southern Democrat said it looked as though the President was trying "to woo Southern labor and tenant farmers into the camp of his new liberalism with a promise of a New Deal cut to Southern specifications."

Sugar Cane Wage Fixed.

Co-incidentally, Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, announced a scale of minimum wages for sugar cane planting and cultivation in Louisiana and Florida. Exercising a power vested in him by the sugar benefit payments act, Mr. Wallace proclaimed minimum wages ranging from $1 to $1.60 a day. These wages were considerably below the 25 cents an hour minimum fixed in the recently enacted wages and hours bill for industrial workers.

Wallace's announcement came as the National Emergency Council, the agency designated by the President to draft the Southern States rehabilitation program, completed a report which, it was learned, will urge acceleration of Federal relief spending in the Southern States as a primary move in overcoming the unbalance between the South and the industrial North to which the President referred Tuesday.

Purge Mentioned.

"It is to be hoped Mr. Roosevelt will do something more real and effective for the South than merely name a commission to study conditions. It appears we have now reached the stage where we are 'solving' problems by referring them to commissions and then forgetting them," Hamilton said.

The purging of the Southern Democracy through the elimination of the conservatives who either oppose outright or half-heartedly support the New Deal, has been urged on the President with great persistency by his left wing political advisers. Marked for defeat in the fall campaign are two of the most influential conservatives seeking re-election, Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, and Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina.

Chiefs Still Silent On PWA Aid Here

For the second day District officials answered "No comment" to all inquiries regarding applications to the Public Works Administration for the proposed $18,000,000 District works program. Secretary Ickes, PWA head, earlier had berated District engineer officials for discussing their plans before completing formal proposals.

It was learned, however, that work is progressing speedily in various engineering offices.

Jobless Tax Reserves May Sink, Says King

Chairman King of the Senate District Committee yesterday warned the District Commissioners they should consider the "possibility" of increased demands on reserve funds in planning a lower scale of unemployment insurance taxes here.

King said he would favor reduction of the present 3 per cent employer tax if the Commissioners can show reserves have become too large. Members of the Unemployment Compensation Board Tuesday said the tax collects twice as much as has been needed.

Tunney Won't Be Head Of Distilled Spirits Body

New York, July 6 (AP).—James J. ("Gene") Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, chairman of the board of the American Distilling Co., said today he would not accept a position as head of the Distilled Spirits Institute if it were offered him.

Tunney's name was mentioned as a possible successor to Dr. James J. Doran, who resigned yesterday in Washington, effective September 1.

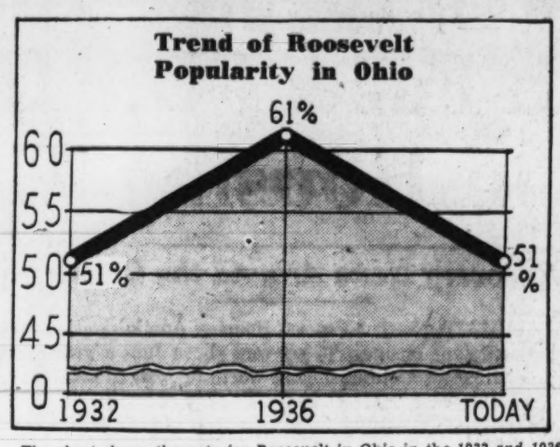
The Gallup Poll

Roosevelt Popularity in Ohio Down Sharply Since 1936.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.



The chart shows the vote for Roosevelt in Ohio in the 1932 and 1936 elections, and the percentage of voters who, in Institute surveys, say they are for Roosevelt today.

New York, July 6.—As President Roosevelt starts his swing to the West tomorrow, how popular will be find himself in the States through which he travels? Will the voters be as enthusiastically for him now as they were in 1936?

George Gallup

He makes first stop in Ohio, to deliver a speech at Marietta tomorrow. If his henchmen, discounting the cheering crowds along the route, were to canvass the voters of Ohio in their homes, as the Institute has done, they would find the President's popularity down sharply since 1936, with only a bare majority of voters for him today.

Ohio, an important key State with 24 seats in Congress, has had wide swings of political sentiment in recent years. Roosevelt carried the State by only 51 per cent in 1932, but rolled up a lead of 61 per cent against Landon in 1936. Today, Institute surveys find the pendulum in Ohio swinging away from the President. When asked "Are you for or against Roosevelt today?" voters throughout Ohio divide as follows:

For Roosevelt 51%
Against Roosevelt 49

This represents a ten-point drop in his popularity in the two-year period since 1936. Will the President's personal appearance in Ohio once again rally the voters of this important State to the New Deal cause? The question is vital today with Congressional elections looming ahead, and with the New Deal wing of the party anxious to control as many State delegations as possible in the 1940 nominating convention.

Why has the President lost ground in Ohio? A special analysis of the opinions of voters who have turned against him indicate that his spending program is one of the chief reasons. Many voters who have turned against him name other policies, such as his attitude toward business, but the greatest number express the general sentiment "he's spending too much, and we'll have to foot the bill."

Cities Strongly Democratic.

The survey shows that the President's chief strength in Ohio is in urban areas and among persons in the low income groups. The vote of urban residents is 58 per cent for him, 42 per cent against. Among voters in small towns and on farms, however, sentiment is approximately two to one against him.

In the Ohio area, as elsewhere in the Nation, there has been a notable defection from Roosevelt in the upper income groups. The survey finds that more than seven out of every ten voters of above average wealth in Ohio are against him. Voters in the middle income group are about evenly divided, with a small majority (55 per cent) against him.

But persons in the lower income group still strongly support him, by a majority of seven to three. And among persons on unemployment relief, sentiment is more than eight to two in his favor.

Kentucky Report Next.

The President's next major stop will be in Kentucky. Tomorrow the Institute will report his popularity in that State, and publish the results of its latest survey on the Barkley-Chandler race for the Senatorial nomination August 8.

On Capitol Hill

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee will begin hearings July 18 in its investigation of citizens organizations and vigilante groups active during the "little steel" strike last year.

WOHLFORTH.

Robert Wohlforth, committee secretary, told the Associated Press yesterday that Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic Steel Corporation, probably will be one of 100 or more witnesses called. Girdler refused to sign a contract with the C. I. O. Union. The committee, which still has 18 investigators in the field, will draw a complete picture of the steel strike, Wohlforth said. The strike affected plants of four companies in several states, principally in Ohio.

Chairman La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, cabled Wohlforth yesterday from the West Indies, where he is on a cruise, that he would return to open the hearings, expected to last several weeks.

Conway P. Coe, Patent Commissioner, characterized as an almost sure sign of industrial recovery a recent increase in patent applications.

"Inventive activity during the first half of 1938 reached a four-year high," Coe said. "For more than 80 years the Patent Office has served as a sort of barometer in registering the presence and passing of economic depressions."

Among recent inventions were methods for pre-fabrication of building materials, methods of making plastics and artificial silks, permanent waving machines and manicuring devices, clothing and machinery for making clothing, improved automobile bodies and automobile servicing apparatus, cameras and parts, lubricants and printing apparatus.

FTC Charges Monopoly Over Farm Machines

Stronger Clayton Act Is Urged to Curb Seven Companies.

Reporting to Congress yesterday on a two-year investigation of the farm machinery industry the Federal Trade Commission concluded that the evidence "indicates the existence of serious monopolistic conditions."

Made in compliance with the Bulwinkle resolution approved by President Roosevelt June 24, 1936, and signed by Chairman Garland S. Ferguson of the FTC the report traces the development of the farm machinery industry since 1914.

The commission found that the industry now consists almost exclusively of a group of "long-line" companies as follows:

International Harvester Co., Deere & Co., J. I. Case Co., Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co., Oliver Farm Equipment Co., Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement Co. and Massey-Harris Co., Inc.

Control Is Urged.

The result, the report states, is that from four to six of these companies "dominate the manufacture and sale in the United States" of leading farm implements and equipment.

As a major recommendation the Trade Commission recommends that section 7 of the Clayton act be so amended "as to make it unlawful for any corporation, directly or indirectly, through a holding company subsidiary, or otherwise to acquire any of the stock or assets of a competing corporation when either of said corporations is engaged in interstate commerce: Provided this provision shall not apply where the corporations involved control, in the aggregate, less than 10 per cent of the total output of any industry or branch thereof in the United States, or of the sale of the commodity as to which the corporations are in competition, unless the effect of such acquisition may be to restrain competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce."

Conditions Described.

As an example of existing conditions, the report states that in 1936 "four of these companies made all the corn binders manufactured in the United States; five made 96 per cent of the grain binders, and six (not always the same companies in each case) made 97 per cent of the all-purpose, wheel type tractors and tractor drawn or mounted row-crop cultivators for operation therewith; 92 per cent of all the mowers and one-row, two-horse walking cultivators, 91 per cent of the corn planters and 86 per cent of the sulky dump rakes."

In the matter of stock control the report points out for example that in the International Harvester Co. it was found that 37.9 per cent of the stock was controlled by 9 stockholders, and 14 stockholders controlled 49.1 per cent of the stock. Even in labor conditions the companies do not escape scrutiny, the commission report asserting that "except in a few large cities national labor union organization of employes in the farm implement manufacturing industry did not exist in 1937."

The "unsatisfactory situation," the report says, is due primarily "to the inadequate results achieved under the Harvester Sherman act dissolution case and the inadequacy of the Clayton act."

Because of these inadequacies the commission declares that International Harvester Co. and Deere & Co. "were enabled to establish and actually have established the price levels for the great majority of agricultural implements and machinery."

Navy Will Award $71,500 in Prizes For Ship Designs

The Navy yesterday announced that competitive plans would be sought for its new experimental vessels with $71,500 to be divided among successful designers.

Preliminary designs were asked on one 165-foot steel submarine chaser, a 110-foot wood submarine chaser and on 70-foot and 54-foot motor torpedo boats, either of wood or metal.

From the plans submitted the Navy will choose five designs of each type. "The author of any accepted preliminary design will be allowed an additional ten weeks within which to complete and submit a final design," officials said.

The Navy Department will award $20,000 to the naval architect submitting the winning final design on the 165-foot steel submarine chaser and $15,000 each for winning plans on the 110-foot wood subchaser and the 70-foot and 54-foot torpedo boats.

Secondary awards are $2,000 for plans on the 165-foot steel subchaser and $1,500 each on designs for the 110-foot wood subchaser and the 70-foot and 54-foot torpedo boats.

Wheat Planting Must Go Down, Tolley Warns

Failure to Limit Crops Will Bring a 'Breakdown,' He Says.

H. R. Tolley, AAA Administrator, issued a warning yesterday that failure of producers of Northwest spring wheat to reduce their plantings would "pave the way for a breakdown" of the entire wheat program devised by the AAA to reduce wheat surpluses.

Tolley spoke in reply to a request of spring wheat farmers that they not be required to reduce operations for next year's crop in order to earn benefit payments. Wheat growers as a whole may be asked to plant about 30 per cent less wheat for the 1939 crop.

The spring wheat growers asked exemption on the grounds there was no surplus of hard red spring and durum wheat.

"This proposal," Tolley said, "was carefully considered by the AAA and members of Congress when the farm act, and later amendments thereto, were pending.

"But in view of the serious declines occurring in the prices of all wheats, and especially the very marked drop in spring wheat prices and also because of the losses in benefit payments to spring wheat prices and also because of the losses in benefit payments to spring wheat farmers that would come just when these payments were most needed, the plan was abandoned as not well suited for inclusion in legislation for the protection of wheat farmers.

"The answer to the question of whether they want a program or not is up to the spring wheat farmers. They will do their own deciding of that question. But the price of wheat means a lot more to the farmers than to those whose interest is only volume production. I feel sure that the Northwest wheat farmers will want to keep the protection to price and income which the farm program gives to all."

traffic-law violations on Washington streets.

During the first half of this year personal injuries dropped 23 per cent, from 2,392 to 1,838.

Accidents dropped 18 per cent—6,493 last year and 5,301 this year—and a 15 per cent decrease in property damage was reported.

Based on the estimated cost of individual accidents and deaths, compiled by the National Safety Council, Van Duzer announced a saving of approximately $95,000 in accidents and $150,000 in fatalities this year.

Pedestrians continued to lead the death parade, however, numbering 27 of the 40 this year. Collisions between street cars and motor vehicles killed four. Street car-pedestrian and motor vehicle-bicycle accidents accounted for three fatalities each. Two were killed in collisions between automobiles and one was fatally injured when thrown from a car.

The seven deaths for June of this year, equaled those of the 1937 month, but injuries dropped 30 per cent and accidents 23 per cent.

Reviewing accident-prevention efforts during the first half of 1938, Van Duzer said, "broadcasting of Traffic Court cases has done much to awaken the motoring public to its responsibility. Those who drive recklessly know now what will happen if they persist in violating the law."

Van Duzer was joined in his praise for The Post and its traffic safety efforts by Inspector William E. Holmes, police traffic supervisor.

"The press—and The Post in particular—is doing a great job in helping us to save lives and prevent accidents," Holmes said.

Senate Group To Ask Oath on Campaign Quiz

O'Mahoney and Sheppard Change Questionnaire Candidates Will Get.

Preparing for a periodic check on campaign spending and possible Federal aid to senatorial candidates, the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee yesterday decided to attach a formal oath to questionnaires sent out today.

Last-minute changes in the questionaires also notified candidates that they must fill in the sworn forms and return them to the committee within 15 days.

Chairman Morris Sheppard said questionnaires will be sent candidates from time to time, so the committee can keep tab on the campaigns.

Sheppard said the committee is receiving an increasing number of "complaints," but declined to make them public. He thought few were of "a serious nature," but the committee would get in touch with those who made the charges and advise them to repeat them under oath.

Associated Press dispatches from Bismarck, N. Dak., said H. Ralph Burton, a special committee investigator, arrived there yesterday, showed his credentials to Gov. Langer, and talked with department heads.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, recently asked the committee to investigate absentee balloting in the State's Republican primaries. Nye won the nomination over Langer.

Sheppard said the committee plans to appoint no permanent counsel or investigators for the time being.

But He Tells Va. Institute 'There Can Be No Return to Methods of Old.'

By Hedley Donovan.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., July 6.—Postmaster General Farley, addressing the Institute of Public Affairs today, expressed a "yearning" for co-operation between Government and business and capital and labor.

At the sametime, he insisted that "there can be no return to the methods of old times."

"There is no solution of the problem in railing at the Government or, for that matter, in Government railing at business," he said. "Neither can produce prosperity alone."

Says Profit Is Motive.

He said that the Roosevelt Administration "is as much concerned in making business profitable as any corporation president can possibly be." Then, after giving assurances of the Administration's belief in private initiative and the profit motive, Farley appealed for the recreation of confidence "in order that we may rise from the existing economic doldrums."

"We cannot expect commerce and industry to devote itself to altruism," he declared, "nor can we expect Government to sacrifice the prosperity of the many for the exclusive benefit of the few."

Describing President Roosevelt as "the master of his own mind," Farley said, "he is no more to be swayed by the arguments or opinions of the extremists on the left than he is to be shifted from his course by the views of financial giants whose natural, selfish interests dominate their thoughts."

Silent on Primary.

Earlier the chairman of the Democratic National Committee refused to commit himself on the bitter primary battle in Virginia's Eighth District, including Charlottesville, between Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, and William E. Dodd, jr., son of the former Ambassador to Germany.

"You know I'm absolutely neutral in primaries." Farley told reporters shortly after describing Smith as "my very good friend" in a speech heard by 1,000 at dedication ceremonies at Charlottesville's newly enlarged postoffice and Federal building. The Postmaster General's remarks included no reference to Dodd, who was seated on the same platform. Dodd said he had learned only this morning that Farley was to be introduced by Smith, his anti-New Deal opponent, and had rushed to Charlottesville on the same train with the Postmaster General.

After a pilgrimage to the tomb of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, Farley dismissed the Republican chairman's recent adoption of Jefferson as patron saint of the present G. O. P. with the comment, "No one pays any attention to what John Hamilton says. Quote me verbatim."

"No Occasion" for Politics.

Representative Smith, who accompanied Farley on the trip to Monticello, and sat at the same table with him at a barbecue given by the local Democratic organization, said afterward "no occasion arose" for discussing politics with the Postmaster General.

An audience of 1,200 sat in open air, in McIntire Amphitheater on the University of Virginia grounds, to hear Farley address the Institute on "Economic Stability and Government Investment."

"We are certainly not getting anywhere by calling names, either politically or economically," the Democratic chief said, as he accused the Liberty League of "prosecuting its war of invective under new names and organizations."

Farley defended Federal relief expenditures, although "nobody is happy at the idea of continuing such a drain on the Treasury," on the grounds that a democracy can not muster the jobless into an army, regiment business and thus abolish unemployment. He intimated that State administration of relief funds would be far less efficient and honest than Federal control.

Spending programs of the PWA and WPA have led to creation of "permanent assets of the great corporation that we call the United States of America," he asserted.

Labor relations have become simplified under the Wagner act, he maintained, stating that a great many of the largest employing structures in our country were "able to get along quite well with the collective bargaining system under the NLRB." He advised industry to recognize the fact that "collective bargaining is here to stay."

Rebuking private enterprises for undue timidity, he said the RFC, by "making loans which the banks would not undertake to make, has made a net profit of approximately $200,000,000. There is no reason in the world that our financiers could not have made those loans and realized those profits."

Mrs. Becker Speaks.

Mrs. William A. Becker, honorary president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, declared that "the youth of the Nation must be trained for a more rugged citizenship if American ideals and American freedom are to be preserved."

A plea that the railroads be freed from competition with Government-subsidized forms of transportation was voiced here earlier by R. V. Fletcher, vice president and general counsel of the Association of American Railroads.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, described President Roosevelt as "the greatest liberal-thinking Democrat produced in America in the last half-century."

U. S. Nazis Swear Loyalty to Hitler, N. Y. Court Hears

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Riverhead, N. Y., July 5.—Testimony that members of the German-American Volksbund are required to swear allegiance to Reichfuehrer Hitler of Germany, was presented in Suffolk County Court here today at the opening of the trial of six directors of the German-American Settlement League, Inc., which operates Camp Siegfried, Nazi summer camp at Yaphank, Long Island. The league itself is a seventh defendant.

The league and its directors are accused of failure to file memberships with the Secretary of State as required of oath-bound organizations by section 5-A of the civil rights act.

Five New Stamps On Sale in August

Five new stamps will go on sale during August, Postmaster General Farley announced yesterday.

The 7-cent Jackson stamp will go on sale August 4; the 8-cent Van Buren on August 11; the 9-cent William Henry Harrison on August 18; the 3-cent Iowa Centennial on August 24 and the $1 Wilson on August 29.

The four Presidential stamps are being issued in the new regular series, while the Iowa Centennial stamp is being issued in connection with the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the territorial form of government in the old Iowa Territory.

Unlawful Assembly Charge Jails Unionist

Newton, Iowa, July 6 (AP).—Jasper County Sheriff Earl Shields tonight arrested William Sentner, of St. Louis, Mo., regional C. I. O. union official, on a warrant charging him with assembly for promoting criminal syndicalism.

The sheriff said the St. Louis man was one of the persons indicted this afternoon by a special Jasper County grand jury.

About 1,400 workers have been idle since May 9 when they walked out in protest to a posted 10 per cent wage cut.

D. C. Broker Freed In $10,000 Bail in Trust Theft Case

New York, July 6 (AP).—Philip A. Frear, a broker of Washington, D. C., and son of former Congressman James Frear, of Wisconsin, surrendered at District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office today in connection with an indictment charging grand larceny for looting a number of investment trusts.

He was arraigned in General Sessions Court, where he pleaded innocent and was released under $10,000 bail. Others under indictment in the same case and at liberty on bail are Vincent E. Ferretti, New York, lawyer, and Thomas W. Morris, Ralph H. Robb and Leo Solomont, all Boston lawyers. A sixth under indictment, but not arrested, is George H. Clayton.

George J. Mitchell, jr., former employe of Frear & Co., testified at a recent hearing by the Securities and Exchange Commission that Frear received $14,000 for expenses in a deal by which the Fiscal Management Co., Ltd., was formed to acquire the First Income Trading Corporation.

2d Creek Death Autopsy Weighed

Maryland authorities last night considered a second autopsy in an attempt to solve the mystery death of Mrs. Esther Lewis, Washington widow, whose body was found last month in a Calvert County creek.

Corpl. Charles Magahe, of the Maryland State police, and State's Attorney Arthur Dowell of Prince Frederick were in consultation here yesterday with District Coroner J. Magruder MacDonald and his deputies, Dr. Richard Rosenberg and Christopher Murphy.

Patrolman's Roof Leaks; Law Says He Can't Repair It

Policeman William Savage, of the Eleventh Precinct, is debating with the building inspector's office as to whether he can legally repair the roof of an illegally erected building.

The controversy, still unsettled, arose yesterday when municipal authorities learned Savage had hired a workman to mend a leak in his home, 1402 Massachusetts avenue southeast. The roof covers an addition which the building inspector claims he had no right to build.

Savage recently paid $50 in Police Court for constructing the addition without a permit and for using more than the legal 60 per cent of his lot in doing so. Pending the outcome of the controversy the building inspector has decreed that the Savage home must remain leaky.

According to William H. McGrath, the policeman's attorney, Savage is within his rights because the leaky roof is damaging the original house, which was put up in accordance with the building code. Besides, McGrath points out, his client was illegally charged in the first place, because the house is owned by Mrs. Savage.

New Hearing Set On Abdell's Plea

Norfolk, Va., July 6 (AP).—Hearing on a motion for a new trial for James C. Abdell, 41, convicted of murdering his wife, Audrey, has been set for August 2.

The jury which convicted Abdell last week recommended that he die in the electric chair. Hearing on the new trial motion, originally set for yesterday, was advanced at the request of defense attorneys.

Morals Jail Editor Lauded by Kuhn, Leader of Nazis

New York, July 6.—Severin Winterscheidt, 34 years old, former managing editor and advertising manager of Deutscher Weckruf and Beobachter, German newspaper here, was sentenced today to a penitentiary term of three years for endangering the morals of children.

According to a report read by Arthur D. Keller, probation officer, Winterscheidt exposed himself indecently in the children's section of a Brooklyn theater on April 14.

Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, said in a letter that "we cannot extol his virtues too highly and his reputation while with us was beyond reproach."

Non-Partisans Indorse Langer as Independent

Jamestown, N. Dak., July 6 (AP).—Gov. William Langer tonight received indorsement from the Non-partisan League convention as its candidate for United States Senator in an independent column, but withheld immediate acceptance.

Gov. Langer recently was defeated by United States Senator Gerald P. Nye by a small margin for the Republican senatorial nomination in the State primary. The league ticket was nominated in the primary with the exception of Langer and Henry G. Owen for Congress.

Langer was elected Governnor in 1936 on an independent ticket after he was defeated in the Republican primary by a small margin.

British Mob Beats Carnival Mauler Of 'Lady Godiva'

Teddington, England, July 6 (AP). A bystander who attempted to pull a 13-year-old modern Lady Godiva off her white horse in a charity fete here today was knocked to the ground and beaten by an angry crowd.

Mirabelle Muller, attired in flesh-colored tights and a long flaxen wig, was grabbed about the waist by an unidentified man who shouted, "This is supposed to be a God-fearing country."

He almost tore her from the stirrups before the crowd pinned him to the ground. He was taken to a hospital.

Loyalists Lose Fight in France For 40 Millions

Court Rules Rightful Bank of Spain Can Not Be Decided Now.

By Walter B. Keer.
Special Cable to The Post.

Paris, July 6.—The Spanish government today lost its legal fight to win possession of $40,000,000 worth of gold which the Bank of Spain had stored for safe keeping in the vaults of the Bank of France.

The Paris Court of Appeals postponed indefinitely a decision as to whether the money should go to the Barcelona government or to the insurgents by upholding an opinion of the court of referees that it was incompetent to judge so complex a problem. The forty tons of gold will remain, therefore, in France, probably until the end of the war.

Possession of gold with which to buy materials is vital to the loyalist cause. The Burgos Junta receives most of its material on credit, while the Barcelona government is required to pay cash.

Which Is Spain's Bank.

It was admitted by both sides, and by the Bank of France, that the money belonged to the Bank of Spain, which had sent the ingots to France in 1931 as security for a loan which was the legal constituted Bank of Spain, the institution of that name with headquarters at Barcelona or the recently established bank of Burgos.

The Bank of Spain which deposited the money was not a government institution but a private bank owned by its stockholders.

According to the evidence, the assistant governor of the Bank of Spain, Don Pedro Pan y Gomez, actin= on the authority of the governor, deposited the gold with the Bank of France as cover against an advance of French francs. In March, 1936, before the war started, the governor of the bank was dismissed and Don Nicolau d'Olwer was appointed to his place.

A year ago last September the governor of the Bank of France wrote D'Olwer at Valencia that $8,000,000 in Spanish gold was at his disposal, and the latter asked that it be sent to Spain. Meanwhile, Gomez, who had been named assistant governor of the Bank of Burgos, objected.

The Burgos group argued that the Bank of Spain belong to the stockholders; that the directors of the Bank of Burgos, and that of 72 officers of the original Bank of Spain, 69 are now in Franco's territory.

Miner Is Rescued In Slate Slide; Pal Feared Dead

Ameagle, W. Va., July 6 (AP).—Rescue workers, spurred on by the cries of a trapped comrade, brought him out from beneath a slate fall today and went back again for another miner they feared was dead.

George Nessos, 59, shouting through a wall of coal and slate, directed fellow workers to the spot where he was pinned to the earth.

Farther back in the American Eagle Collieries Co. mine the workers expected to find Clyde Compton, 30.

Hospital Patient Shoots Policeman

New York, July 6 (U.P.).—Julius Weber, 37, who was arrested after he jumped through the window of a liquor store, tonight shot and critically wounded Patrolman Harry J. Padian in Harlem Hospital, where he was taken with scalp wounds and a possible fractured skull.

At the hospital Weber tried to commit suicide by shoving his head between bars at the head of his bed. A nurse called Padian, and, when he approached, Weber grabbed his gun and fired six shots.

Miss Zukierelli Won't Fight, Cant' Be Citizen, Judge Rules

Former German Embassy Stenographer Heartbroken, but Would Be 'Extremely Bad American' to Lie and Say She's Bear Arms.

Pacifism prevented Miss Dorothea Zukierelli, 48-year-old former stenographer at the German Embassy, from becoming an American citizen yesterday.

Justice Jennings Bailey, at a special hearing, refused to grant citizenship to the dark-haired German woman when she declined to take the oath to bear arms in defense of the United States.

Active in the work for world peace, Miss Zukierelli, who came to the United States from Germany in 1923, told Justice Bailey she did not believe she ever would be called upon to bear arms for her adopted country.

"A power higher than we will settle all differences," she said.

"We all hope that they can be settled by amicable means," replied Justice Bailey, "but the act of Congress governing citizenship binds us to the pledge of allegiance."

The court, since Miss Zukierelli refused to say outright that she would be willing to bear arms, followed the Supreme Court ruling in the Rosika Schwimmer case, and held her ineligible for citizenship.

Miss Zukierelli, heart-broken, left for Cincinnati last night.

"I would not bear arms for any country," she said. "I would not bear arms for the United States or for Germany, and I love them both.

"Force, and the systems whoch breed force, are wrong. Nobody wins in wars—everybody suffers. I shall work for peace all my life."

A native of Berlin, she grew to womanhood in pre-war Germany.

She was active in relief work up until 1923, when she came to America. She filed her declaration for citizenship in 1930.

"I could not tell the justice a lie," she sighed last night. "That would make me an extremely bad American."

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, said the decision was "shocking in this land of democracy, which passes judgment freely on the militaristic practices of dictatorships."

"If the Supreme Court has been truly liberalized," he asserted, "we ought to be able shortly to remove this stigma from the conscience of America."

2 Motorcyclists Injured in Crash On Lee Highway

Merle Blair, 4423 Potomac avenue northwest, and George Walsh, 512 Fulton street northwest, escaped with apparently minor injuries last night when they were hurled to the roadway as the motorcycle they were riding collided with an automobile on the Lee highway at Rhodes street in Arlington County, Va.

Attendants in Georgetown Hospital said Walsh suffered scalp burns and may have received a fractured skull. He was released after treatment but directed to report today for observation. Blair was treated at the same hospital for road burns.

Acoustical Shell Sped For River Symphonies

In preparation for the first of the National Symphony Orchestra's "sunset symphonies" Sunday evening at the Potomac Watergate, workman are rushing the completion of the acoustical shell from which the orchestra will play.

The concerts will be given Sunday and Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock through August 17. Dr. Hans Kindler will direct the first two concerts and guest conductors will come to Washington for the others. Single and season tickets are on sale at the symphony box office at Garfinckel's.

Tax Official's Son Electrocuted in Fall From Tree

Oliver Mills, 15-year-old son of O. R. Mills, technical advisor to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, was electrocuted yesterday when he fell from a tree on a farm near Brooklyn, Pa., and struck a live wire.

The boy, an eighth grade student at Chevy Chase School, was spending the summer at the Pennsylvania farm. His father is on temporary duty at the Internal Revenue Bureau's new office, at Los Angeles, and his mother was in Washington.

According to information received here, the boy slipped while climbing the tree and struck the wire as he fell. He died instantly.

Murphy Can't Prevent Hanging in Michigan

By the Associated Press.

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan failed last night to move a scheduled hanging of a Federal prisoner somewhere beyond Michigan's boundaries.

The Government went ahead with preparations to execute Anthony Chebatoris, slayer and bank robber, at Milan, Mich., tomorrow at dawn.

Murphy had appealed to President Roosevelt to intervene, saying the hanging would be distasteful to residents of Michigan, which does not have the death penalty, except for treason.

Mr. Roosevelt telephoned to the Justice Department suggesting removal if consistent with Federal law, but it was learned that no loophole was found which would justify removing Chebatoris to another State.

O'Connor Tells New Deal to Try To Purge Him

Rules Committee Chief, in Extended Remarks, Defies His Foes.

By the United Press.

Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee and brother of President Roosevelt's former law partner, Basil O'Connor, last night defied any New Deal move to "purge" him.

"Whenever I have to make a choice between the fortunes of my political party and the interests of my native country, there is only one path I can follow—that road along which my country must travel—and no threat of a purge or a reprisal, from whatever source it may come, will swerve me from my fixed purpose to serve my country first," O'Connor said.

He disclosed his attitude in post-adjournment remarks placed in the Congressional Record concurrent with reports that he is marked for Administration reprisal because he successfully led the House fight against the President's Government reorganization bill.

Mrs. Herrick Named.

Mrs. Elinmore Herrick, New York regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, has been mentioned as a possible candidate against O'Connor.

O'Connor said everyone agreed that a pump-priming program was necessary, but he urged the necessity of Government co-operation with business to establish a sound recovery.

"There is no question that one of the first steps toward Fascist dictatorship is to break the individual morale by making everyone in need permanently dependent on the government," he asserted. "After that the other steps are easy."

Raps SEC "Snooping."

"To re-establish confidence, taxes must be made equitable," he went on. "Legitimate private business must not be further interfered with and the Government must stay out of competition with private industry. Assurances along this line have been long awaited by business and, I regret to say, they have not been forthcoming."

He rapped "the unjustifiable snooping of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the competition with private industry by the Tennessee Valley Authority."

He also mentioned repeal of the corporation undistributed profits tax as a business necessity.

German Prince Mentioned as Babs' Admirer

Frederick of Prussia Is Said to Be Rival of the Count.

By the United Press.

London, July 6.—Persons close to the Count and Countess Court Haugwitz-Reventlow said tonight that the London society man mentioned anonymously in yesterday's police court hearing of the $40,000,000 Woolworth heiress' action against her husband is Prince Frederick of Prussia, son of the former German crown prince.

PRINCE FREDERICK.

Testimony at Bow Street yesterday quoted the count as saying he woud "shoot like a dog the ——" for whom "deuling was too good." A duel had been proposed according to the testimony in a letter written to the Danish count which said he could never return to London society again without challenging an unnamed "gentleman" to a duel.

The count also threatened, according to the testimony, to put his wife "on the spot" and kill himself, then demanded $5,000,000 as the price of separation, witnesses testified.

Prince Frederick recently laughingly denied rumors coupling his name with that of Countess Barbara.

Prince and countess met at the palatial Haugwitz-Reventlow home here, Winfield House, and it was the count who invited the Prussian, friends of the principals said, for the purpose of furthering his wife's alleged social ambitions. They pointed out that in the event of restoration of the German monarchy, Prince Frederick was in direct line for the throne.

Prince Frederick's social prestige in London is very high, even in royal circles.

Friends of the count and countess suggested that Haugwitz-Reventlow invited Prince Frederick to Winfield House as the opening blast of countess Barbara's long-anticipated campaign for acceptance in London society, for which some persons say she built Winfield House, but that the count did not then anticipate a possible romance.

These sources said that countess Barbara was attracted to Prince Frederick, who merely responded with ordinary courtesies which are generally accepted in society.

They understood that later, however, the count, allegedly fearful that Prince Frederick's more important title might influence his wife unduly, angrily demanded that she cease seeing the prince. When he received her separation "peace offer" of $250,000, mentioned at Bow Street Court, the count concluded he had failed in his efforts, persons close to him said.

They claim this was the reason he demanded a "fantastic sum" of his wife, not because he desired the money but in the hope his action would cause Countess Barbara to abandon possible intentions to cultivate her acquaintance with the German Prince. They stated that the rapid sequence of events following the count's refusal to accept his wife's terms constituted an eleventh-hour attempt on his part to retain his wife, in the belief or hope that any scandal connected with his arrest and trial, if it did not alter her intentions, at least would discourage anyone in high-place in society from paying her attentions.

Both the count and countess were in seclusion today. She was believed to be in closely guarded Winfield House, where she hurried in a taxi after yesterday's hearing, and he was thought to be in his suite at the Ritz Hotel.

5 Additional Fraud Charges Are Filed Against 'Inventor'

Hobart Everett, 39, Baltimore civil engineer charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, won a continuation of his case until Wednesday in Police Court yesterday. At the same time police placed five more similar charges against him.

According to the check squad, Everett has visited several local patent attorneys, "retained" them to handle his invention of a "cellophane as hard as tin" and then borrowed from them.

Everett was arrested on the complaint of Dwight B. Galt of the Earle Building, who told police he "loaned" Everett $10. Additional charges were placed yesterday as a result of complaints from John B. Dickman, Bond Building, $10; Harry H. Simms, Investment Building, $20; Calver C. Hines, Washington Loan & Trust Building, $5; Morris E. Bateman, Westory Building, $5, and Royal E. Burnham, 511 Eleventh street northwest, $5.

Father Raised Babs' $26,000,000 Fortune To $42,000,000, Halted Her U. S. Romance

Playboy Phil Plant Was Dime Store Heiress' Broadway Suitor.

By the United Press.

New York, July 6.—The Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, careerist in titled romance, might once have married an American who had at least half as much money as she controlled but her father, Franklyn Laws Hutton, stepped in and scored his last important victory over the imperious Babs.

The countess and onetime minor princess, now exposing in English courts the wreckage of her second marriage to a member of the nobility, has had just about her own way since she was 16 years old, a plump, yellow-haired girl, distinguished primarily by her great wealth. Her father, with a reputation for gaiety, made it his principal business to increase her estate and to see that Barbara Hutton enjoyed every minute of spending it.

There is little to indicate that Barbara, bequeathed approximately $26,105,929 of the $78,317,938 which her grandfather accumulated in nickels and dimes, was educated to the responsibilities of great wealth. About the only incident to show that she feels some responsibility in her millions was during the depression when she stinted herself to the extent of spending only $10,000 on her birthday party. She explained that she did not think it fitting to spend lavishly "in these times."

Father Manages Fortune.

There is nothing to indicate that Barbara knows anything of the intricacies of managing her huge fortune. Her father took that on his shoulders. It is an undenied legend that Barbara has yet to visit the Woolworth Building, which opened as the world's tallest building six months after Barbara's birth.

The granddaughter of Frank W. Woolworth, the Watertown, N. Y., businessman who at 26 opened a small store with the slogan "Any article 5c," was born in 1912 and six years later was one of the world's wealthiest children. The rest of the millions left by Frank Woolworth was divided equally between Jessie Woolworth Donahue and Helen Woolworth McCann. To his diappointment, there had been no son to carry on the name.

Barbara's father took the $26,000,000 and in seven years, by shrewd investment, brought it up to $42,077,328.53. He was considered extremely prudent at first in the amount he spent on little Barbara. The first year she came into the fortune she was allowed but $7,000. When she was 9 years old, the amount spent on her was only $12,000. After that it went up rather sharply. In her tenth year she had $35,000 spent on her, and when she was 18 the amount was $60,000.

$60,000 for Debut.

That $60,000 was aside from a like sum spent on Barbara's coming-out party that year. It was 1930, first year of the depression. Hutton had not noticed it particularly. In the previous year he had increased Barbara's fortune by some $4,000,000. In 1930 he added another $1,000,000 to it. He gave her a lavish party, decorated by the late Joseph Urban, who designed the settings for many Ziegfeld "Follies." In that year Hutton obtained permission from the courts to spend $120,000 on a private car for Barbara. The court's permission was contingent on Barbara's promise not to spend more than $36,000 a year on its upkeep. She promised faithfully.

It was at this time that the daughter of millions began her career in romance. The gossip columns recorded that she had been seen at the Central Park Casino with Winston Guest, socialite polo player. Her name was linked with that of Toney Drexel, of Philadelphia, and it seemed for a time that he was the most favored of her many suitors.

It was fairly obvious that Barbara liked this popularity. She was seen more and more frequently in the company of eligible young men and in the company of others who, because their financial status was so far below hers, might have been considered ineligible. Later it was discovered that lack of money was not necessarily a handicap in the race for Barbara's heart.

Bab Replaces Chorus.

It was about this time that Phil Plant discovered Barbara, or vice versa. He had been divorced the year before from Constance Bennett. He was heir to the $20,000,000 of Admiral Morton Plant. He was handsome, and he knew his way about all the play spots of the world. Broadway knew him; the Riviera had watched him with raised eyebrows; he was familiar to Paris, London, Palm Beach and wherever the world's wealthy gathered to have fun.

His taste in women ran to ladies of the stage, usually of the chorus. Tragedy sometimes ended these affairs. He paid a fortune to a Follies beauty disfigured and almost killed in one of his cars. Papa Hutton looked askance at this romance which bloomed in Broadway's glare. Barbara seemed enchanted by the giddy career of Phil Plant, was sympathetic to his spectacular efforts to forget Connie Bennett and, it has been suggested, entertained some girlish notions of remaking him along model lines. It is a notion which has captivated teen-age women before.

FHA Insuring Billion Dollars In Construction

Housing

a value of $17,370,785 were insured in June, bringing the total of such loans up to $51,293,558 since the amended housing act became effective in February.

$50,000,000 in Construction.

The rental housing division of the FHA reported 51 projects valued at about $50,000,000 in operation or under construction on June 30, with commitments having been made to insure mortgages on an additional 66 projects. Thus there was a total of 117 projects valued at $92,000,000 on which mortgages had been accepted for insurance up to June 30.

For the past four months, the period during which the amended program has been in operation, mortgages selected for appraisal totaled $382,000,000, some 53 per cent over the total for the same 19"7 months. In the four months this year mortgages actually accepted for insurance had a value of $238,308,000, which was 29 per cent greater than the 1937 four-months period.

For each of the past four months more than 54 per cent of the monthly volume of applications for insurance covered small homes to be constructed under PWA inspection.

Insurance Tabulated.

Two hundred forty-two thousand, one hundred forty-seven paying home mortgages for a total of $997,563,417.

Fifty-one rental projects, $35,960,750.

Total insurance written, $1,645,440,965.

The REA projects for which allotments were announced yesterday are in 18 States and Puerto Rico. They will require 13,500 miles of power lines and make electricity available to 40,000 farm homes and rural churches and schools.

The REA has been provided with $140,000,000 for the current fiscal year for such projects.

REA officials pointed out that "labor and industry have a major stake" in their proposed projects, which will create:

14,500,000 man-hours of employment.

2,800,000 man-hours of direct labor in project areas.

A market for 36,000 miles of copper, aluminum and steel wire which will take nearly 2,200,000 man-hours to make.

A market for 40,000 meters and 26,000 transformers.

A market for 275,000 lumber poles.

40,000 wiring jobs at an estimated cost of from $50 to $300 each.

British Ship Owners Reject Franco Plan of 1 Safe Port

London

that immediate ratification would be a fair reward for his assent to the British request that he should use his influence with Franco to halt the long series of attacks upon British ships in Spanish government ports.

No British ships have been sunk for several days now. Parliament goes on a three-month vacation at the end of July, and unless something is done before then, ratification will be held up until November or later. Mussolini is not content to wait that long. Chamberlain therefore faces the prospect of offending the easily offended Mussolini, or else trying to prod Parliament into accommodating Italy on its own terms.

For more than 500 years British ships have been engaged in almost continuous trade with Spain. Shipowners trading with Spain today want to know precisely where they stand.

Shipping interests of London, Liverpool, the Bristol Channel and the Tyne have submitted a memorandum on this subject to the board of trade. Says the memorandum:

"The present aerial bombardment of neutral ships without any prior attempts to capture the vessel or to give the crew opportunity to escape, resemble exactly the deliberate submarine attacks upon British and neutral shipping during the Great War.

"Gen. Franco's proposals, which are presumably an attempt to legalize such aerial bombardments would thus overturn international law which was clearly established at the end of the Great War."

"Entitled to Immunity."

The memorandum asserts that under international law, ports have never been considered legitimate military objectives, and that neutral ships, whether in port, within the 3-mile limit, or on the high seas, are entitled to immunity from attack.

"It is important to note," the memorandum proceeds, "that during the recent attacks on British ships in Spanish waters, many British vessels had been bombarded while lying in the open sea more than a mile away from the harbor. Such dombing must be plainly deliberate.

"On many occasions also, insurgent aircraft have nose-dived over British ships and have machine-gunned their decks and crews, showing therefore the deliberate and ruthless nature of the attack.

"Now Gen. Franco proposes that the port of Almeria should be certified as a safe port. Almeria is the smallest of the seven government ports of Spain used by British shipping. It is in every way unsatisfactory. The quay space does not exceed 1,000 feet, and the draft in most places only is suitable for vessels up to 3,000 tons. The maximum accommodations is for seven steamers.

Geographically Almeria is nearer to the firing line than any other first-class port in Spanish government territory. There are at present about 45 British vessels discharging in Spanish government ports, many of which are over 3,000 tons. At the very best it would only be possible to accommodate one large vessel in Almeria, and then with considerable difficulty. Further, 50 vessels are due within the next fortnight, so that if Almeria were made the only safe port, only one-seventh of the British shipping to Spain could be accommodated."

Dangerous Precedent.

The British shipowners having spoken thusly, the Chamberlain government is expected to fall in line. The cabinet met for two hours this morning and discussed Gen. Franco's terms, but no decision was announced. One reason why the government views Franco's "safety port" suggestion unfavorably, is that it involves a principle whose acceptance might establish a dangerous precedent from which Britain herself might be a victim in a future war.

If American shippers, for instance, were running war supplies into English ports, England certainly would suffer if any enemy succeeded in restricting American traffic to one port.

Gen. Franco especially desires to prevent gasoline, oil, motor trucks and coal from reaching his opponents. Such cargoes do not come under any category of contraband recognized as such by the non-intervention committee. The government's reply to Franco will be made known in the House of Commons tomorrow by the prime minister.

Archbishop Asks Action.

London, July 6 (AP).—The Archbishop of York and 10 bishops of the Church of England today issued a statement urging the government to take effective action to halt "outrages" on British shipping in Spain.

Burgos, July 6 (U.P.).—It was learned officially today that the Spanish insurgent government is willing to accept the British plan for evacuation of foreign "volunteers" from Spain as it represents "a step toword legality and includes recognition of belligerent rights."

Hendaye, France, July 6 (AP).—Spanish insurgents drove against both ends of the 50-mile Teruel-to-sea front today, reporting gains. The government, however, said the attackers were beaten back all along the front.

Morgan Suit Fights Ouster By Roosevelt board of directors . . . and intitled to the emoluments ($10,000 per year) of a member.

"(d) That the defendants, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, as directors of the . . . Tennessee Valley Authority, be ordered to recognize the complainant as a member and chairman of the board."

Attorneys here explained the suit was not filed in Federal Court because the amount of money involved was less than $3,000. They said the United States Court of Appeals at Cincinnati had held the TVA could be sued as a corporation wherever it has its general offices.

Letters Attached.

Attached to the bill were copies of letters which Dr. Morgan received from and sent to President Roosevelt and directors H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal.

A. E. Morgan charged H. A. Morgan had "taken possession" of his office and had ordered his staff to vacate "within one-half hour."

President Roosevelt notified Dr. Morgan in a letter dated March 22 he was removing him as TVA chairman for:

"(a) Openly making grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity against your fellow directors without reasonable excuse or justification.

"(b) Obstructing the work at the Tennessee Valley Authority.

"(c) Refusing to submit to the demand of the Chief Executive for the facts upon which you relied in openly making grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity against your fellow directors, and refusing to respond to questions of the Chief Executive relating to charges of obstruction made against you by your fellow directors."

Justice Department Silent.

Before the President removed Dr. Morgan he asked the Justice Department whether this was within his power.

Robert H. Jackson, now Solicitor General, but then acting Attorney General, advised "there would appear to be no question that the power of removal is in fact vested in the President."

H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal also declined to discuss Dr. Morgan's step.

K. of C. to Install Officers.

Newly elected officers of the Spalding Council, Knights of Columbus, will be installed by State Deputy Thomas F. Carlin at a meeting at the clubhouse tonight. William G. McGuire, Grand Knight, will preside.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Monopoly

said, "The board of directors of the National Motion Picture Research Council earnestly petitions that the motion picture industry be included in the investigation of monopoly."

Abraham F. Myers, chairman of the Allied States Motion Picture Exhibitors, an independent group, urged that the committee look into the "organization, financing, policies and practices of the moving picture industry." Myers told Representative Eicher (Democrat), Iowa, House member of the group, that independent theater owners were being driven out of business.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Richard C. Patterson, jr., member of the joint committee, said in Chicago that the monopoly investigation would not be "a witch-burning expedition." Patterson said: "We are not looking for scapegoats. The investigation is to be made to obtain a complete, accurate picture of those industries in which competition is really effective."

Diagnosis First.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, Senate member of the group, predicted "we will agree on an agenda and a program today." King said the executive agencies will "bring the grist to the mill." He said that "obviously we can't prescribe a remedy until we diagnose the patient" and declared public hearings may be some weeks in getting under way.

Following yesterday's preliminary meeting of the six executive agencies, Douglas said the "tone of the conversations we had on the inquiry give it the flavor of a substantial and constructive piece of work as distinguished from ballyhoo."

"I think it will be of service," Douglas said. "It will not be a question of somebody making speeches."

Douglas indicated that in addition to steel, rubber and cement, milk distributors also are being seriously considered for investigation.

The committee has power of subpena, and witnesses are expected to be called before public hearings beginning in the late summer or early fall. Spokesman for the committee said it may be three or four weeks before material already available in the departments can be prepared for presentation.

Besides Douglas, attending yesterday's preliminary conference of the executive agencies were Thurman W. Arnold, of the Justice Department; Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the Treasury; Rear Admiral Christian Peoples, of the Treasury procurement division; Isador Lubin, Labor Department statistician; Chairman Garland Ferguson, of the Federal Trade Commission; Robert Nathan, of the Agriculture Department; Jerome Frank, of the SEC, and Leon Henderson, "co-ordinator" of the joint investigation.

Railways Win Right to Raise Passenger Fare

Rail

000 a year "if they would confine themselves to selling transportation."

He said the brotherhoods at Chicago would question railroad losses on speculative investments, rail rebates, and money spent by the roads on "propaganda."

The Interstate Commerce Commission's half-cent fare increase for the Eastern roads followed permission granted the Pullman Co. early this month to raise its fares 5 percent in time to catch the bulk of summer travel.

The railroads used this as one argument for the coach fare boost. They said the fare spread between the coach and the pullman is too great, placing the two services in competition with each other.

Last November the Southern roads, which had pioneered in the field of coach rate reductions, sought and obtained an increase from 1½ to 2 cents in coach rates. And in March of this year the commission granted a flat 10 per cent general increase in freight charges, but with important exceptions that whittled down the effective charge to about 5 per cent of the entire rate structure.

The commission's order yesterday said results of the present reduced Eastern road fares and the recently increased coach rates in the South do not prove "in this time of business stagnation" that the approved half-cent fare raise "will result in revenue increases."

Nevertheless the commission concluded "that the financial condition of the applicants is such that every reasonable opportunity should be afforded to permit them to increase their revenues."

"By reason of the increased cost of the passenger service and the improved accommodations quite generally accorded to coach passengers, the coach service regarded by itself today may be worth somewhat more to the traveling public than early in 1936, when we determined that the coach fare should not exceed 2 cents per mile."

The commission said that in the absence of an actual test and careful analysis of the results "we are left in doubt whether or not applicants can obtain greater revenue from the proposed-fare basis than from the present basis."

But it is said the increase should be given an "experimental" trial as "it seems clear that the fare basis which will yield to applicants the greatest possible revenue can be determined with reasonable assurance only through the 'trial and error' method."

Finding that the roads had "justified" their case for the raise, it admonished the lines to "keep as complete a record as is practicable of the gross and net revenue results from their passenger-train service."

The order does not affect purely intrastate traffic, but the commission voiced hope that State authorities can see their way clear to authorize the maximum 2.5 cent coach fares simultaneously with the interstate increase.

Only dissent from the order was by Commissioner Porter, who said he thought "we owe a duty to the public." Pointing to the "most precipitous decline in business in its history," to competition by 25,000,000 private automobiles, 44,000 busses and to increasing traffic by air, Porter said a 25 per cent increase in coach rates should enlighten "people who wonder why the railroads are traveling the highway to oblivion."

"No other industry in the throes of a depression and in the face of vigorous competition seeks to raise the price of what it sells to the public," said the Porter dissent. "It may be that the railroads are immune from ordinary economic laws. I doubt it."

Railroad representatives argued in recent hearings that the proposed increase should be treated as within the "realm of managerial discretion."

Although bus lines sharply increased their revenues following last November's increase in Southern rail coach rates, the commission said it was "uncertain" how much of this was due to the rail fare raise. The railroads admitted that some of the bus revenue increase was due to rail traffic diversion, but argued that much of this was on short trips, and that other factors, including fare boosts by the busses themselves, accounted for their revenue increase. They expressed belief that the principal eastern bus lines also will seek a fare increase if the rail rate step-up was approved.

Gross operating revenues of class 1 railroads for the first five months of 1938 totaled $1,354,268,701 compared with $1,735,221,861 for the same period in 1937 and $2,218,877,128 for the same period in 1930. This was a decrease of 22 per cent below 1937 and 39 per cent below 1930.

Lira Faces Trial For Slaying of Ex-D. C. Man

By the Associated Press.

Prescott, Ariz., July 6.—Nine prospective jurors were selected today as Ernesto Lira went on trial in Superior Court here for the murder of Marcus Jay Lawrence, formerly of Washington, D. C.

In questioning veniremen, County Attorney Charles Ewing indicated he would ask the death penalty.

Lawrence died May 11 from a beating administered by Lira in the latter's home. Ewing said Lira attributed the beating to a fit of jealousy over attentions of Lawrence to Odessa Webb, who lived with Lira as his wife.

Ewing charged Lira had lured Lawrence to his home to gamble, and said Lira admitted winning several thousand dollars from Lawrence over a period of several weeks.

The courtroom was jammed.

3 Women Named To Cosmetology Board in District

The District Commissioners yesterday named three District women as the Board of Cosmetology to direct the new cosmetology law which becomes effective today.

Mrs. Julia Crandall, 819 Eighteenth street northwest, employer member of the recent beauty culture wage conference, was appointed for a term of three years. Miss Ethel Beebe, 1417 Newton street northwest, an employe representative on the wage conference, was appointed for a two-year term, and Miss Bessie J. Mercer, colored, 649 Florida avenue northwest, sponsored by the Beauticians' League, Local No. 53, was appointed for one year.

Members of the board will be paid $10 for each day actually devoted to board business. They will select a secretary who will be paid not more than $3,000 a year. Licensing and regulation of all local cosmetologists will be the chief work of the board.

Man Dead in Oven Is Called Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the death of Private James McEvoy, 49, assistant to the chief baker at Walter Reed Hospital, whose body was found in a gas-filled oven at the hospital bakery.

Sergt. James C. Keegan discovered McEvoy, his feet protruding from the oven, when he unlocked the bakery in the morning. All the gas jets had been turned on, and a sheet draped over the mouth of the oven, police reported.

His wife, Mrs. Laura L. McEvoy; three daughters, Lillian, 8; Ethel, 6, and Helen, 3, survive McEvoy, a World War veteran, who lived at 27 Woodland avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Thief Is Ordered Held in Jail Till False Teeth Fit

His false teeth will keep Francis D. Bell, 31, colored, in the District Jail for several weeks while the jail dentist fixes them.

Bell pleaded guilty in District Court to a charge of housebreaking and larceny. After it was found that he had a poorly fitting set of store teeth, he was ordered sent to the jail here instead of Lorton so he could be treated.

Bell was accused of taking a saxophone and a radio from an apartment and when he visited a second-hand store a detective overheard his attempt to sell the instruments. Before Justice Jesse C. Adkins he admitted his guilt and was ordered held in jail until his teeth were in proper condition, when he will be sentenced.

Firecracker Burns Boy.

As police continued to answer scattered complaints of fireworks exploding, Charles Pridmore, 8, of 705 Fifth street northwest, was burned on the hand while playing near his home. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Beginning next week, the theater will give shows each Wednesday and Friday afternoon. Next Wednesdey's performance will be at the Noyes Playground.

Malicious Prosecution Suit Demands $50,000

Alleging he had been maliciously prosecuted, William Barton Smoot, of Colonial Village apartments in Virginia, yesterday filed suit in District Court against Daniel G. Luckett, of Maryland avenue northeast, for $50,000 damages.

According to attorneys for Smoot, Luckett caused his arrest on May 13 on a charge of larceny after trust that involved $700. The transaction arose from a real estate deal. After an investigation Assistant United States Attorney David A. Pine ordered the case dismissed.

The ICC Changes.

A favorable response to the petition of Eastern carriers for an increase from 2 to 2½ cents per mile in passenger coach fares had been rather confidently anticipated since the ICC consented to reopen hearings on a proposal rejected only last April. Belief that the commission would reconsider its adverse decision was further strengthened by its recent authorization of an increase in Pullman Co. charges. That increase has been added to the already excessive spread between Pullman and coach mileage rates which has diverted passenger travel to coaches, with consequent loss of revenue to the roads.

While the arguments in favor of permitting the roads to experiment with higher coach fares were about as cogent a few months ago as at present, the ICC places great emphasis upon the fact that the financial condition of the roads has grown steadily worse since the time of the earlier hearings. Although still doubtful whether the increases will result in improved revenue, the commission concludes that the "financial condition of the applicants is such that every reasonable opportunity should be afforded to permit them to increase their revenues."

Just why this opportunity should have been denied the roads at the earlier period is not satisfactorily explained. But it is at least encouraging that the financial distress of the carriers is now unqualifiedly admitted and their right to test the results of an increase in fares which is reasonable in itself is no longer denied. It is not so clear why the roads should be limited to an 18 months' test of higher fares.

Obviously the change is experimental and the roads as well as the ICC will undoubtedly wish to keep as complete a record as possible of the gross and net revenues from their passenger services in order to gauge the effect of the increases. Undoubtedly, too, the results of a trial would be altogether unsatisfactory unless the State authorities respond to appeals to raise coach fares on intrastate traffic.

Official skepticism as to the beneficial effect of the fare increases no doubt helps to account for the emphasis placed upon the experimental character of the changes. But the circumstances plainly justify permitting the roads to make that experiment. Their right to do so should not have been questioned in the first place.

Free Speech On The Air.

The Federal Communications Commission has laid down a rule to regulate one important aspect of the political struggle which will reach a grand climax in the campaign of 1940.

In response to an inquiry from a Norfolk radio station, the commission's chairman has announced that any licensed broadcaster may refuse his facilities to all candidates for a political office but that if he permits one to speak from his studio he must give equal treatment to all others. This is an eminently sensible arrangement and one that well conforms with American standards of fair play. An elaboration of the ruling to the effect that rates charged candidates may not be rebated will also meet with popular approval.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the ruling is to be found in the circumstance that the vast majority of radio proprietors have already anticipated the FCC in the matter. Most stations long ago voluntarily instituted a policy of offering opposing candidates precisely equal broadcastng opportunities. Here is a mark of the radio industry's precocity. Less than two decades ago a mere novelty, it achieved maturity overnight. This is shown by the fact that without prompting from Washington, the radio industry has scrupulously observed its obligations to the public especially as these involve the "free speech" section of the Nation's basic Bill of Rights.

Unemployment Taxes.

The District Unemployment Compensation Board is currently collecting more than twice as much from employers as it pays out in the form of unemployment benefits. As a result the District Commissioners are planning to recommend a reduction in the present scale of pay roll taxes to bring receipts into closer relationship to outgo.

By the time the next Congress meets, the extent of the adjustment that can safely be made will be better known. But with the insurance system now in full operation during a period when employment throughout the country is extremely high, there can be little doubt that a substantial reduction in local pay roll taxes is feasible.

A question arises, however, as to the relative advantage of reducing the levy or raising the scale of payments which is extremely limited. However, it has often been pointed out that unemployment benefits are merely designed to tide workers over temporary waiting periods. For those whose resources have been exhausted by prolonged unemployment, other forms of assistance, such as work relief or direct aid are necessary.

As the District's scale of unemployment benefits compares favorably with those of the States, there is a strong argument for lightening the burden of the pay roll taxes levied upon employers. When payments under the old-age insurance plan reach a maximum the total pay roll levy in the District, including employes' old-age contributions, will amount to 9 per cent. That is an extremely heavy overhead charge against industry and indirectly against workers. By alleviating that burden insofar as it is safe and feasible, insured workers as well as employing industries should be benefited.

Population Problems.

There is a great and growing popular interest in plans for more effective utilization and wise conservation of the Nation's natural resources. Sometimes, however, our economic planners, absorbed in contemplation of material possessions, seem to forget that the objective of all effort is to provide a happier and more abundant life for human beings. As the Committee on Population Problems in a report prepared for the National Resources Committee wisely reminds us: "Natural resources, industrial institutions, and all forms of social co-operation are valuable only insofar as they contribute to the welfare of the people."

The committee's investigators touch upon various phases of the numerous problems raised by change, growth, and constant shifts of population. Possibly the most spectacular and startling although not immediately the most significant of their statements is the forecast that by 1988 the population of the United States will attain a maximum total of 158,000,000 and then begin to decline. This estimate is based on certain assumed trends for birth and death rates and immigration. An alternative minimum estimate places the population peak at 139,000,000 in 1955, with a decrease of 10,000,000 during the following 25 years. In any case, experts are generally agreed that the United States will in the near future become a country with a stationary or declining population.

This is not news to those who have some knowledge of vital statistics, but its significance is but dimly appreciated even by the well informed. The great majority of Americans no doubt still envisage a future of continuous population growth. Once we realize the apparent inevitability of the trend that is carrying us toward the years when numbers will be decreasing, the objectives of our planning policies will necessarily be modified and in some respects metamorphosed. As the report states, a stationary population "supplies the material basis for a high level of living" provided of course that natural resources "are used wisely and if cultural conditions are stimulating to initiative and co-operative endeavor."

One of the important results of the change in population trend is the accompanying change in the age distribution of the population. For instance, it is now assumed that there will be a very heavy increase in the proportion of people in the higher age groups. Thus it becomes imperative to expand the opportunities for employment of older workers not yet ready for retirement.

Of more immediate interest, perhaps, than the relatively long-time trend of population are the movements from one section of the country to another, from country to city, from city to farm. These constant shifts, together with the fact that birth and death rates vary from section to section, while economic resources are very unequal, create for us a multitude of special population problems. There are areas already overpopulated in the sense that the developed resources of the region are too scanty to provide an adequate living for the inhabitants. There are other regions offering a relative abundance of resources for comfortable living under normal economic conditions.

The great disparities in degree of well being are shown by the fact that the Southeast, which bears 13 per cent of the Nation's children, receives only 2 per cent of the national income. The result is that in these poorer areas where the pupil load is heaviest, economic resources are pitifully inadequate to support the burden of adequate education. This inequality of educational opportunity is indeed a national problem, as the report states. It has become increasingly so as a result of the mobility of population. The limited education that might be sufficient for the local environment handicaps large numbers of people who today and tomorrow will be recruited for employment in remote centers of industry.

Despite the amount and variety of data accumulated and analyzed by the committee's investigators, they are acutely aware of the deficiencies of current information in regard to population movements, and their effects upon economic life. For example, changes in the farm and non-farm populations of different regions affect estimates of trends in crop production and food consumption. Again, changes in the age distributon of our population affect school registrations and call for a revamping of educational programs.

On these and a multitude of other problems affected by population changes more intensive study is needed to provide a basis for sound planning. The committee's own investigations lead it, therefore, to recommend more support for Federal, State and local public research agencies as well as for universities and private foundations interested in population problems.

Spain And The Powers.

There were no dissenters when the British plan for the evacuation of foreigners fighting in Spain came to a vote at Tuesday's plenary meeting of the London nonintervention committee. All of the 26 nations represented on that body signified their approval of the London government's proposals. Less than 24 hours later, special messengers were on their way to Burgos and Barcelona to urge both sides in the civil war to approve the plan and cooperate in bringing it to speedy fruition.

It would seem, therefore, that the objective sought for by the nonintervention agreement of the summer of 1936, namely, the effective isolation of the Spanish struggle, is nearer attainment than at any time in the past. Should this goal be reached without undue delay, a distinct easing of the European situation would probably follow. The Spanish ulcer has for two years served as a very dangerous source of infection in the Old World.

However, the past history of the Spanish problem is not conducive to optimism regarding the outlook for the British plan, supported though it now is by 26 nations. It is discouraging to note, for instance, that this plan was first presented to the London committee on July 15, 1937, nearly a year ago. It was not until almost four months later that the proposals were agreed upon "in principle" by the committee, with only the Soviet Russian delegate offering any objections. And it is now just over a month since Russia, also, climbed on the bandwagon.

Moreover, real obstacles still remain before the British scheme can be carried out. The consent of both sides in Spain must be secured and while both Burgos and Barcelona regard certain aspects of the plan as acceptable other aspects are likely to meet with opposition. Thus, while the Spanish republican regime would no doubt be happy to see the number of foreigners on Franco's side cut down, they have little to gain by securing the belligerent rights that are to be extended to both sides once a substantial number of "volunteers" have been evacuated.

On the other hand, Franco, while anxious to secure belligerent rights may balk at being deprived of the Italian and German aid without which he might never have achieved the gains he has so far and without which, it may be, victory for him is impossible. But even if both the Burgos and Barcelona regimes do accept the London program a considerable period may elapse before the foreign combatants in Spain are counted, before evacuation camps are established and before evacuation actually achieves any dimensions. And there is always the possibility that, in the meantime, new complications may arise to relegate the British plan to the scrap heap.

For all that, Tuesday's meeting of the nonintervention committee may mark a real and decisive turning point in the Spanish problem as a factor in European relations. Certainly the overwhelming majority of the 26 nations on that committee are eager to make the British scheme a working reality. And British pressure may bring the others in line.

This is borne out by Premier Chamberlain's statement in Parliament Wednesday that the conditions required to put the Anglo-Italian agreement of April 16 into effect have not yet been achieved. This is tantamount to a warning to Mussolini that, if he sets any store by the pact with Great Britain, it is to his interests to speed the evacuation of Italian "volunteers" now in Spain. The warning may not be disregarded.

Silent Flight.

One of the unwittingly beneficial results of the Versailles Treaty was the impetus given the art of gliding. The terms of the World War settlement strictly limited Germany's use of airplanes; to maintain and even improve its knowledge of flying nevertheless, the nation turned to motorless machines.

With the Rhine Valley's constant upward drafts easily accessible, interest in the sport zoomed. As a result, Germany today leads the world in gliding, a statement confirmed by an attache of the German embassy here who is leading the best gliders of the country in a current national contest.

On Sunday Peter Reidel rode the winds from Elmira, N. Y., to the Capital in slightly more than seven hours; three days later he sailed from the same starting point to New York City. The special appeal of both performances lies in the fact that he announced his destination in each case before taking off. So complete was his control that on arrival here on his first flight, he not only executed a series of maneuvers over the astonished airport but also took a turn or two around the Washington Monument before landing. More than the machine he employed it was Herr Reidel's expert knowledge of aerodynamics that explains his record-breaking achievements.

This is the open season for voters, and thousands of candidates are going up and down the land trying to trade the bunk for a bed of roses.

There are those who think a half-holiday on July 4 would constitute ample time in which to celebrate what liberty there is left in this country.

Birthday Party.

Reply To A "Copperhead."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I want to answer "Lux et Veritas," whose letter appeared in The Post of July 3. I am willing to use my own name. I don't want to "hit and hide" behind a nom de plume.

I am not a "copperhead" because:

(1) I believe that the New Deal has not failed to improve the lot of the American citizen. We face the future with a feeling of security for our savings in banks that are insured and for our "twilight of life" in a pension system patterned after the proven civil service retirement system, without the grim specter of the almshouse and its segregation.

(2) I believe that although the economic system under which this country developed can function without government assistance in times of prosperity it is essential that public works projects be invoked during times of depression.

(3) I believe that progress can be made by the free and legitimate exercise of individual initiative, restricted by governmental control so that such initiative shall not react against the greatest good.

(4) I believe that it is morally wrong for a government to permit a whole generation to suffer in want when it can by borrowing against future income alleviate such distress and compensate the future generations with completed, operating public works that might never be started in days of prosperity.

(5) I believe that he is governed best who is governed wisely, protected from oppression by more powerful individuals, and whose right of freedom of speech and assemblage is guarded that whether right or wrong, conservative or liberal, he may continue to enjoy them.

(6) I believe that there is a future in America for the individual and that even a "copperhead" may live to enjoy it.

ARTHUR H. SURPRISE.
Arlington, Va., July 3.

Lone Wandering Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Howard Wentworth's traffic article of July 5 is to blame for this untimely bleat. As a 40-60 pedestrian driver, I opine I should line up with the driver against the jungle-wandering, concrete-hopping type, of dare-you-to-sock-me type of meanderer who travels on all lights, like the woman-and-child case cited.

I have one criticism to make of this otherwise reasonable viewpoint. It makes a certain type of driver (by courtesy) feel sorry for himself, a persecuted individual, and he decides to let the dumb apes look out for themselves. They haven't learned it does no good to get sore, no matter who is to blame; that violent horn blowing never knit any fractures. If a driver can't control himself, if he's a lip-mumbler, he belongs behind a slow mule—with somebody else doing the driving. All he thinks about is his "privileges" that he thinks are being denied him. He's too dumb to realize he has an obligation when he rampages the highways and streets.

Repeatedly I've seen individuals go with the green, with plenty of leeway, be marooned by the late left-turners and hell-for-leather car throwers, to be made a mark for opposing traffic and the curses of drivers and brilliant comments of car motormen with the hayseed still in their hair. And all through no fault of their own. It's all right if they travel in a bunch, traffic marauders will look out for them, there are witnesses. But if a lone individual gets stranded, he's wrong if he's wrong and he's wrong if he's right.

I. H. L.

"Commander Of The People."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
As a regular reader of The Post, I ask whether Mr. Roosevelt wants us to understand (of his address at Gettysburg) that Lincoln ever claimed to be the "commander of the people" he served as President, or does he merely want it understood that, rather than serving, it is his purpose to command those he is supposed to serve? B. J. H.
Webster Groves, Mo., July 4.

Compulsory Cab Insurance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
According to articles in The Post, at least one member of the P. U. C. seems to think that the taxicab liability law presents only a very trifling problem, also an inexpensive one, to cab owners.

All the cab owners have to do, according to this P. U. C. member, is to form associations of 100 cabs. Then they can post a bond of $75,000. Very simple, but where, I would like to ask, are they going to get the money to finance the formation of the associations, to buy the bond and to finance a fund to back it?

I venture to doubt whether there is one cab outfit in the city rich enough to finance such a proposition. Most, if not all of them, are already insolvent. The P. U. C. is to blame for this condition, as it has forced them to operate on an insane, bankrupting rate basis. I also venture to say that no responsible insurance company is going to put up any such bond for local cabs as long as they operate on their present rate basis.

Responsible insurance companies don't want to write cab insurance, because courts are inclined to hand out judgments recklessly against cab owners. There is a danger that the city will be invaded by irresponsible insurance companies. They may give the local cab owners cheap insurance, but they may also blow up when the time comes to pay off. Ten such "companies" have done so in New York since compulsory liability was adopted there. Fourteen have done the same in Massachusettts. What is the P. U. C. doing to prevent the same thing from happening here?

"Primrose Path."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
An ancient maxim is "Ne sutor ultra orepidam," generally translated as "The shoemaker should stick to his last." This maxim was brought to mind by the "This Morning" column in The Post of June 30, in which the following appears: "Boston, which had looked down its nose at the communities which compromised with morals and legalized horse gambling, has swerved from the primrose path."

Has "primrose path" become a synonym for the path of rectitude? The phrase is found in Hamlet, Act I, Scene 3, where Ophelia, after receiving some very sound advice from her brother Laertes as to the danger inherent with a lover of royal blood, aptly retorts: "But, good brother, do out, as some ingracious pastors do, show me the steep and thorny way to heaven; whilst like a puff'd and reckless libertine, himself the primrose path of dalliance treads . . ."

Seeks New World Order.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Please permit me to express my views on the question of peace. We hear so much about "Peace, Peace!" How can there be peace when the human heart everywhere is so filled with prejudices of all kinds? The issue is not between Italy and Ethiopia or Japan and China. It is deeper than that. It lies within the present chaotic civilization caused by man through his ignorance.

We have reached now a mature age where humanity unconsciously wants to free itself from allegiances to national and racial and economic bounds. We need a new world order based on reality and moral justice. Through human efforts this is impossible.

Humanity must search for the Messiah, the divine prophet, who comes with a dynamic power, who is alone able to pull enslaved humanity out of sectarian religions, national boundaries, racial hatreds, economic oppressions, social chaos, into a state of altruism, love and all that is man's heritage.

Urges Hoover Appointment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
It is heartening to see that our country, as the "'interpreter of the conscience of humanity," is taking the leadership in the Evian Refugee Conference through the International Refugee Commission in France, in the promulgation of a practical program for the alleviation of the sad plight of the German and Austrian Jews.

Myron C. Taylor, heading the American delegation, has a Herculean task on his hands, but some half-million hapless people of central Europe are looking to him and to America, as the "champion" of justice, and he will not let them down. It will lend strength to his determination to overcome any momentary difficulties that might be raised by any of the 30 lukewarm participating nations which perhaps do not realize that service to the Jew of central Europe now is service to civilization.

During the sad days of the Armenian deportations I was privileged to work with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and other Jewish-American leaders, and I know full well how strongly and effectively all right-thinking Jews co-operated with the various committees in aiding the suffering, ancient Christian race. I cannot do less now than to urge that no patched-up solution be countenanced, but that real justice to these people be assured by according them safe entry into Palestine, or any other place where they may establish themselves, as recommended by the recent Jewish conference in Detroit.

I should like to go a step farther and urge that former President Herbert Hoover, who has had such extensive experience in refugee work in Belgium, France and elsewhere, be requested to head the committee of workers in Europe, supervise and "see it through."

As an American of Armenian birth, I feel for these innocent victims in their sufferings, and I sincerely hope that President Roosevelt will find some way of drafting Hoover to assist Taylor in this great humanitarian and life-saving effort.

Appeal For National Unity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Now that the Blue and the Gray have had their encampment together and buried their animosities and lit the flame of peace, may I appeal to the women of the South and the women of the North to do likewise—to stop their bitterness.

Let us today make it a united country in fact. Neither Gen. Lee nor Gen. Grant held any personal bitterness in their hearts at the time of the surrender, and surely no one can ever accuse President Lincoln of such, as he urged "malice toward none." The women are largely responsible for keeping alive the bitterness and I hope they will discontinue harboring it and teaching it to their children. Let there be but one flag—the Star-Spangled Banner.

Conditions are too serious in the world today for us to continue this foolish, senseless controversy. Whatever our sympathies or affiliations may have been or are today, may I, as one whose father was a distinguished Union general and one who had either an ancestor or a member of her family in every war fought to preserve the Constitution or protect the country against a foreign foe or for the unity of our country, beg of the American women of today to vow to make this in reality a United States.

Gen. Kemper.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
In The Post recently there was an article by Marshall Andrews in which he says in regard to Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, "Garnett died then, too, and Kemper, and so many young Confederates that history shudders at mention of them."

Gen. Kemper received a severe wound from which he never entirely recovered. Nevertheless, he lived to serve a term as Governor of Virginia from 1874 to 1878 and died at his home in Orange County, Va., in 1895. J. F. BOTTS.

Southern Hospitality.

THERE'S no such thing.

Before I'm through I may have to take that statement back. Whether a person sides with me will depend largely on his fortunate or unfortunate experiences in Southern towns and homes. I want it understood, however, that I do not desire the aid and comfort of those who have grievances to work off; I have none myself. This is a purely academic study.

Hospitality follows the pioneers. The idea that we are all strangers in a strange land is a powerful factor in drawing human beings together, whether they travel in covered wagons or in trailers, whether they are colonists in Oregon or in Florida. The James River plantations of Virginia were open to any traveler, if he had social standing. The existence of other classes, we are inclined to forget, was not recognized in those days; in the time of Jefferson democracy was a beautiful, untried theory.

With the elevation of the common man's economic dignity and the thousandfold propagation of the Lees and the Carters, restrictions also were heightened and multiplied. There are too many descendants of Pocahontas looking for free board, and there are too many of the new blood who would like the supposed distinction of dining with a Randolph. In 1938 one must present his credentials.

What these credentials are no one could say with any accuracy. Naturally, no traveler on the civilized Eastern seaboard would expect a friendly hand in any household where he did not have an acquaintanceship. No new dweller in a Southern town would look forward to social recognition unless he were attached to the local register through interlocking connections elsewhere—except through a long process of acclimatization. He need not, necessarily, be of the blood. He need not, certainly, have money. He must be able to put up a presentable front; he must be able to hold his liquor; he must possess a feeling for the amenities, and he must be willing to play the social game continuously. Yet no combination of these qualities and others can be calculated to make a newcomer acceptable.

In Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy, the egg-nog used to flow all day at New Year's for the gentlemen who made their way from house to house and were lucky if they completed the rounds before they collapsed with acute intoxication or dyspepsia. The hospitality knew no bounds—among the right people, of course. Any stranger who came in was tolerated for a time to avoid a scene, even as a hungry civil service slave who has crept before an embassy buffet.

The egg-nog still flows in Richmond, but on a basis yet more restricted. An open house, generally speaking, is one which is open to you if you have been invited. The members of society know where they can go without being glared out, and nonmembers, naturally, do not go anywhere.

Only on the drunken fringes has there been any relaxation. Older Richmond residents and some younger ones still mourn "Old White" Sulphur Springs, where you went in the summer and met everybody—who was anybody. Now there is among the latest generation a growing majority which is overjoyed with The Beach, a spot of manifold attractions where it can and does meet everybody, whether he is anybody or not. This group, however, merely goes out of town to commit its social indiscretions, just as its elders did to commit their moral indiscretions. When you come home it is another life and your sins are as those of another; you need not even recognize your companion of drunken moments when you meet him on the street.

Richmond, our example, has been civilized too long and too highly for true hospitality to exist. In the days when Main Street was the residential area and not a double row of tobacco factories and pawn shops, the doors may have swung open more easily than now, but the time of real warm-heartedness was when the earliest settlers crept past the rocks where John Smith had put his lusty foot. They had to be good to each other then—for if they weren't, who would be? They were the first families, and the only families.

Your Southern city today is very much like the medium-sized Northern or Western city, except that entertaining must be more select because there is less money. Society is of, for and by the women and is for the purpose of (1) getting them married and (2) consoling them because they did or did not get married. The career is as well marked and as dull as the Army—sub-deb, deb, post-deb, Junior Leaguer, hospital board and charities worker. A man may crash in if he has the time, the stomach and the perseverance. As for women—they have a hard row to hoe, for there are too many of them already. T. R.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Wall Street's Maharaja.

Well, William McChesney Martin, jr., the new Akhoond of Wall Street, must be pretty strong physically. He's been on that job of making the stock market behave now for about a week and is still able to be up and about.

• • • •

The first paid head of the Exchange is only 31 years of age, bid or asked.

• • • •

When the stock market went into its nine-year decline back in 1929, Mr. Martin was just out of Yale, and if he heard anything about a Mr. Whitney bidding 250 for United States Steel he probably yawned and switched the subject to a discussion of what kind of line the Yale football team had that fall.

• • • •

If anybody had suggested to the great powers of Wall Street that a callow youth just packing up his college sweaters, trying to crowd his mandolin into a suitcase and humming "Boola, Boola," would within a few years be rounding 'em up and giving them orders on correct behavior, the money moguls would have howled with laughter.

• • • •

Billy Martin knew all about the old Yale fence, but there was no reason to assume he would some day put the stock market inside a stockade.

• • • •

Yale certainly is the home of diversified products. It gave Rudy Vallee to the amusement world, and now it gives Martin to the financial.

• • • •

Mr. Martin will get only $48,000 a year. Vallee makes that in a few weeks. Which would indicate that Eli failed Mr. Martin when it failed to teach him to yodel.

• • • •

Forty-eight thousand a year, or almost $1,000 a week, is no money for a job like that of the new stock market maharaja. His task is to keep the stock market above criticism, make it behave like a gentleman at all price levels and never do anything of which it would be ashamed to tell mother, even during a panic.

• • • •

It's a good trick if he does it. And if he does it at $1,000 a week Wall Street is certainly getting him on the ground floor.

• • • •

Scores of candidates were being considered for the job, and it was no cinch making a choice. While a big and famous name was at first thought of vital importance, it was almost impossible to find one that had not been too prominent in the public mind as a broker, a customer, a reformer or a politician.

• • • •

Under those conditions, Mr. Martin had a clear track.

A freckles champion was chosen in Atlantic City the other day, and the American summer season may now be said officially to have gotten under way.

• • • •

By the way, is there any more complete oblivion than being a last year's freckle champ?

• • • •

And wouldn't it be the depth of something or other for a 1932 freckle champ to marry a 1933 Miss America?

Scholar Among Nazis

By L. F. Gittler.

Former Ambassador Dodd.

FIVE YEARS ago William E. Dodd, professor of history at the University of Chicago, was in the midst of recapitulating his life's work, summing up in a trilogy on the Old South the lessons American and world history had taught him. At 64 he had behind him a solid record of scholarly achievement, almost a dozen books, and a professional career that, with the single exception of a brief period during the World War, had been comparatively uneventful. With one eye fixed on retirement and complete devotion to his monumental work, he did not foresee that New Deal Washington would ensnare him as it finally ensnared many of his university colleagues. After pondering for three months the selection of an Ambassador to Germany, the President's decision was not a random selection, but was evidently based upon a special affinity the President felt for Dodd the historian, and Dodd the man.

A Chicago reporter asked him: "You speak German fluently?" Prof. Dodd drawled back in good humor: ". . . I guess that's what got me into this trouble in the first place . . ."

Arriving in Berlin, Ambassador Dodd was hailed by the German press as a scholar, conversant with the German soul and idea, who would surely understand Hitlerism, its historical implications, its mission and destiny for the fatherland. Calm, sober, kindly, when the Ambassador greeted the German and foreign newspapermen in Berlin, they thought him mild-mannered and quaintly anachronistic. They completely overlooked his intellectual stubbornness, his forthright courage, his integrity, that for him transcended all the tabu and ritual of diplomacy.

As the cleavage between him and orthodox Nazis became deeper, Ambassador Dodd told his family that he considered Hitler, Goebbels and Goering criminals, and after the purge of 1934 he would never allow them to enter his home as personal guests. It was proper to meet such men only on the footing of diplomacy.

The situation came to a head during the Nazi Party Congress in September. Ambassador Dodd refused to send a delegate to a purely political congress. The State Department ignored him and sent the Berlin charge d'affaires to Nuremburg. Dodd promptly resigned. When he came back to this country he was hailed by thousands of admirers thankful for his diplomatic shortcomings and foibles. He was sought everywhere as a lecturer, and gladly accepted serious requests.

Now, interspersed with lecturing, he has established himself in Virginia and Washington, D. C., to finish his trilogy on the Old South, tracing the continuous struggle democracy has had to keep alive in the South.

Walter Lippmann

Paris.

IT MAY BE SAID without exaggeration or cynicism that, as Secretary Hull uses the word, there is no law in Europe governing the relations of the great powers. Contracts and understandings among governments, whether they be the Covenant of the League or the Briand-Kellogg Pact, treaties of non-aggression or of mutual assistance, debts, axes or alliances, are as good as and no better from day to day than seems expedient. Unpleasant engagements are observed when necessary and broken when the risk is not too great. People have become so accustomed to this state of affairs that they take it for granted and regard it as the ordinary way of the world.

LIPPMANN.

One falls readily into this state of mind. The other day, for example, I was talking with a politician from central Europe about the Czech crisis of last May. He was telling me that at the end of April the French had convinced the British that they would really fight if Czechoslovakia were attacked, and that on the critical day in May the British had convinced the Germans that the French would fight. Quite as a matter of course, I asked him whether he himself really believed that the French would fight, and he replied that he did really think so. I asked why he thought so, and then he proceeded to explain to me that the independence of Czechoslovakia is to France about what the independence of Belgium is to Great Britain or what the Caribbean region is to the United States, namely, a vital interest of such strategic importance that it is a fighting matter.

Now what he said may or may not be the fact, but this conversation illustrates the state of mind one acquires in the present climate of Europe. For though both of us respect and greatly like France, it never occurred to either of us even to mention the fact that France is bound to come to the assistance of Czechoslavokia by a solemn treaty and by every recognizable criterion of national honor. We are talking about the Europe of 1938, and we forgot entirely to consider the possibility that a treaty and a point of honor could determine the action of a great European power. My friend believed that the French would help the Czechs because he had discussed the matter with French strategists and had been convinced that they regarded Czechoslovakia as a fighting matter. And I was more persuaded by that than I could possibly have been by any reference to the sanctity of treaties.

Bound By Nothing But Necessity.

IT GOES without saying that if this is the moral climate in which one thinks about the relations of two liberal democracies, as regards the rest of Europe and Asia, it would seem silly to believe that any of the great dictatorships from Berlin through Moscow to Tokyo are bound by anything but necessity and interest or that there is any limit to their purposes except the lack of the force needed to execute them. It is in this sense that the Old World is lawless, not merely occasionally as all governments have been, but habitually, and, if it is not too much of a paradox to say so, in principle.

But if there is in Mr. Hull's sense of the word no law over Europe, there are certain conventions, certain temporary rules of the game, certain unavowed understandings. Thus it is understood that though the ultimate stakes are the domination of Europe by overwhelming force, the issue is not yet joined and, for the time being, the powers are maneuvering for position in a great game of diplomatic chess.

In this game the kings, respectively, are Britain and Germany, the queens are France and Italy, the pawns are Spain, Austria, Czechoslovakia and the other small countries of central Europe. No one quite knows what Russia represents. And so far as one can read the intentions of the dominating minds in Berlin and in London, it would seem to be that neither side is ready or willing to let the struggle for possession of the pawns go to the point of a direct issue over the kings and queens.

Dictator's Morals Still Less Reliable.

PEACE, as men understand the word in Europe today, means only that the armies, navies and air fleets of the four major powers are not to be let loose against each other. The whole effort of diplomacy on both sides is to confine the struggle to subsidiary regions, and to keep the contest from getting beyond the state of partial intervention, gun running, subsidies, propaganda, intrigue and agitation. Were it not for some such tacit and unavowed understanding that the main military forces are not to be allowed to become engaged as yet, it would be impossible to explain why the provocative violence of the press and of public speeches and of official behavior does not lead at once to war.

For the atmosphere of Europe in July, 1914, was in no respect as warlike as the atmosphere today. In those days, when the peoples still had freedom of speech, their rulers spoke with the greatest restraint until war actually broke out. In this Europe the peoples are comparatively restrained in Britain and France and are silenced elsewhere, but their rulers talk in time of peace as men used to talk only in the worst hysteria of war time. And yet it is reasonably certain that they speak so violently because they feel fairly confident that for the time being their words are not going to provoke a major war.

History Hinging On Hitler's Guesses.

THERE WOULD BE no point in pretending that a peace which rests on such foundations as these is not in the highest degree precarious. In the last analysis it rests on nothing more than the capacity of Hitler, and in less degree of Mussolini, to guess correctly how near they can push Europe to the abyss without actually falling into it. Hitler's great successes have been due to the fact that up to this point his judgment of the risks, his estimate of the forces against him, and his sense of timing have been as accurate as they were audacious.

But no man is infallible. Hitler is surrounded by more reckless and less intuitive men, and neither he nor any one else can predict where or when the nerves of some one who matters will snap under the awful tension, and there will be an incident which will have uncontrollable consequences. For all over Europe men feel that they are living on the verge of a catastrophe, and while as yet the great majority remain remarkably cool and self-possessed, the seeds of panic lie just under the surface.

There is a German saying which describes the state of mind men fall into when anxiety and foreboding are too prolonged for human nature to endure them. The saying may be translated thus: "Better an end with terror than terror without end." Even the calmest men have moments when they think that way. So while we may be reasonably certain that the masters in Berlin, London, Rome and Paris do not now intend to let Europe go to war, one cannot know what desperate accident may take the game out of their hands.

S. O. Clark Named SEC Reorganizing Division Director

Samuel O. Clark, for more than a year in charge of the Securities and Exchange Commission protective committee study, supervising the preparation of SEC reports to Congress, has been appointed a director of the new reorganization division created to carry out the duties of the commission under the Chandler act, it was announced Tuesday.

Edmund Burke, jr., affiliated with the commission since 1935, will be assistant director of the new division, and Martin Riger will be supervising attorney. Burke and Riger assisted the Congressional committee in drafting the Chandler bill, which revises the national bankruptcy act.

Clark has been with the SEC since November, 1934. He first served as chief attorney of the protective committee study, which was established to investigate and to report on the work, activities, personnel and functions of protective and reorganization committees. Recently he served as trial examiner in the commission's hearings in the Richard Whitney case.

One Year Of War In China.

IT WAS JUST a year ago that a clash between Japanese and Chinese troops at the Marco Polo Bridge outside of Peiping led to the greatest armed conflict which Asia has witnessed in 32 years.

Indeed, more men are participating in the current Sino-Japanese struggle, more lives have already been lost, more property has been destroyed and more money has been spent to keep the embattled armies going, than was the case in the Russo-Japanese war. And the historic importance of the present conflict may be no less profound than was that of the war of 1904-1905.

Japan's victory over the Russian giant was a great turning point in world history. It marked the emergence, for the first time, of a purely Asiatic nation as a great power. It was the first setback suffered by European imperialism since the American colonies broke away from England and the Spanish colonies became independent of Spain. But having brought Asia to a stop, Japan merely replaced Russia as the would-be bearer of that burden.

• • • •

NOW JAPAN faces the undoing of all that she had accomplished in the generation since her victorious armies triumphed over the legions of the Czar. Victorious though she has uniformly been during the 12 months of the present conflict, with the sole temporary exception of the Battle of Taiherchwang when the bubble of her invincibility was pricked by the Chinese, Japan faces ultimate defeat.

More than that, she faces the prospect of being relegated to the position of a second class power. And the prospect is all the more unpleasant in that the coup de grace to the grandiose ambitions of the empire of the Rising Sun may be given by a nation hitherto regarded as helpless, defenseless and disunited.

These ambitions go back many years. Yoshida Shoin, teacher of many of the Samurai who brought about the restoration of the Emperor and the modernization of Japan, predicted the dominance of Japan from Kamchatka to the Philippines and beyond. And in every decade since his day there have been those who have sought to bring that dream to fulfillment.

• • • •

THE SINE QUA NON of Japanese imperialism has been a compliant China willing to accept Tokyo's tutelage. For China remains the indispensable stepping stone on the ambitious road to power envisioned by Japan's militarist dreamers.

That is why Japanese propagandists lay such great stress on the heinousness of China's non-co-operative attitude. For without Chinese "co-operation" in a form suitable to Japan's aims, the island empire can get nowhere. Now, after a year of war, the possibility of such co-operation is more remote than ever. And because that is true Japan's past victories are likely to prove so much Dead Sea fruit as will her future ones.

• • • •

GREAT BRITAIN rules India with a handful of troops. Her strength lies in her ability to capitalize internal schisms, to use one element of the population against another. And insofar as during recent years, these differences between Hindu and Moslem, Sikh and Parsee, Brahmin and untouchable have tended to disappear, Great Britain's grip over India has necessarily been forced to relax.

Japan obviously cannot garrison all of China. If she is ever to reap the fruits of her military prowess she must do so through compliant Chinese instruments. But while this technique worked once—in the case of Manchukuo—it gives little promise of doing so again. The wanton bombardment of undefended cities such as Canton, the barbarous conduct of the Japanese conquerors at Nanking and elsewhere—these and other aspects of Japan's war-making have created a deep and abiding hatred for the conqueror which would always militate against effective Japanese control of China.

This does not mean that the Chinese government can continue waging war indefinitely. Without supplies even the most valorous are no match for a heavily armed adversary able to replenish his needs from the stores of the entire world. And with famine and plague and flood adding to the indescribable misery in which tens of millions of Chinese now find themselves, a collapse of China's formal resistance cannot be left out of account.

Yet the fact remains that a war which was expected to end in six weeks or, at most, six months, has dragged on for one whole year; that despite increasing difficulties there is yet no sign of surrender by the Chinese government and people; and that in most of the area which Japan has taken the conqueror's hold is precarious.

It begins to look as if in laying waste to China, Japan is destroying herself. At Marco Polo Bridge a year ago today a new cycle in world history may have set in.

Hollywood Humor

By Quentin Reynolds.

Filmdom Can See A Joke.

THEY REALLY HAD 5,000 extras ready for the scene. They were to storm the Bastille. History says that the day the Bastille was stormed it was stormy and rainy, so Director Woody Van Dyke had rain and storm on tap. They were all ready—and then the heavens opened. This was last March when they were filming "Marie Antoinette." This was last March when the worst storm to hit California in 60 years exploded. Then rain fell in buckets and then in torrents and the filming of the storming of the Bastille had to be called off.

Van Dyke laughed at the absurd situation. So did Norma Shearer, the star of the picture. So did all of Hollywood. The scene had to be called off. You couldn't film a rainfall with real rain falling. Rain is allergic to photographing. Phony studio-made rain really photographs like rain.

It undoubtedly is typical of the picture city. But it also is true that Hollywood is the first to laugh at itself. Hollywood has a grand sense of humor, a much greater sense of humor than her Midwestern and we Eastern sisters.

When people put the rap on Hollywood they are saying in effect, "Hollywood is different." Being different and entirely out of line with the rest of the country, it is erroneously assumed that Hollywood's way is the wrong way.

Arctic Highway Progresses

The International Pacific highway, for which the Senate now has sent the President the approved plan for co-operation with Canada, is a vision already partially come true.

Long sections of the 3,500-mile road to connect California with Fairbanks in Alaska, near the rim of the Arctic Circle, have been built and in many cases completed as first-class highway. Considerably less than one-third of the total mileage calls for original construction and most of this is in British Columbia and Yukon territory.

To get this new construction under way and to connect the completed sections into an unbroken stretch of first class highway is the present program. Because of its international character and the fact that both northern and southern terminals are in the United States, it is reasonable to regard the British Columbia and Yukon portions of the road in the light of their importance to the whole project, and to consider the resources of the territory to do the work. It is with this end in view, as well as to program the order of building the links, that the arrangement is made to do it on an international basis.

The International Pacific will be one of the finest scenic highways as well as one of the longest unbroken routes in the world. The southern terminus, San Diego, already is connected by roads with Mexico and these are intended eventually to stretch down into South America. Even on that project—and it is not to be confused with the California-Fairbanks enterprise, even though they eventually will tie together—a great deal of sectional work has to be done.

Commentator Suggests President May Confine Court Bill Allusions To Loyal Senators In Western Speaking Tour.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, at his last press conference preceding his journey West and his vacation to follow, was in a cheerily jocose mood. At these conferences it is part of the routine that as soon as all the newspapermen are in the room, the man at the door gives the signal to begin by calling out, in a ritualistic tone, "All in!" On this occasion, Mr. Roosevelt, in the same tone, as if carrying on the manner of ritual, said, "No news."

SULLIVAN.

But the newspapermen had many questions. Some were about recent developments in Indiana. Someone asked Mr. Roosevelt if he had heard "the tidings from Indiana." Mr. Roosevelt replied with a pun, he thought Mr. Tydings was the Senator from Maryland. That got a laugh. Then the questioner explained that the Indiana Democratic leaders had said that their forgiveness of Senator Van Nuys for resisting the President's court reform proposal was not opposed by the White House. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he knew nothing about what had happened in Indiana. Then the questioner ingeniously recalled Mr. Roosevelt's distinction, set out in his recent "fireside chat," between himself as President and himself as head of the Democratic party. The questioner asked, "As head of the Democratic party, how do you feel about" the prospect of Senator Van Nuys being renominated in Indiana? Mr. Roosevelt replied that the questioner had better consult an astrologer.

The astrologer device for avoiding an answer is new. Mr. Roosevelt used it several times in answer to questions he preferred not to reply to, or about which he preferred to be cryptic. When someone asked him a question designed to bring out his position about Colorado—where another Senator who opposed the court reform proposal, Mr. Adams, is up for renomination—Mr. Roosevelt declared he had given no thought to it and again referred the questioner to an astrologer. Clearly Mr. Roosevelt was not in a mood to say anything about the excommunication of Democratic Senators.

Retaliation Believed Certain For 3 Senators.

IF ONE WERE engaged in mind-reading, one might wonder whether it was Mr. Roosevelt's subconscious mind that led him to think of Senator Tydings when he was making a humorously evasive answer to the first question dealing with his position on Senators who opposed his court measure. There are nine of these Democratic Senators to come up for renomination this year. Among them Washington gossip says there are three whom the Administration inner circle would especially like to defeat. Even after they got their fingers burned in the attempt to defeat Senator Gillette of Iowa, and after the apparent surrender to the popular support behind Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, it is said they still cling to the notion of defeating Senator Tydings of Maryland, Senator George of Georgia and Senator Smith of South Carolina.

As respects Senator Tydings, it would seem that if his supporters are as determined as were the supporters of Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, the Administration inner circle might be compelled to recede. Maryland is like Indiana in that it has been a pivotal State, rather equally divided betwen the Republicans and Democrats. In Maryland as in Indiana it is possible that an implacable opposition shown by the Administration to the renomination of a Democratic Senator might result either in an independent Democratic movement, a splitting of the party, or the election of a Republican. Maryland, in short, contains almost as much possibility of dynamite for the Administration as Indiana.

South Carolina and Georgia are different. If the Administration circle wants to salvage something from the attempted purge of the nine Democratic Senators who opposed the court reform, they might take a chance in these two Southern States. In these States there could be practically no possibility of the rebellion going so far as to result in the election of a Republican, and in these two States an independent Democratic movement would be less a threat than in Indiana.

Fulfillment Of Purge Significant For Party.

THE FATE of these nine Democratic Senators, the outcome of the attempted purge, is the most important present aspect of politics in either party. If all nine, or an important portion of the nine, such as five, or six, or seven, were successfully purged, that would mean that the Democratic Party is to be in the hands of the President and his friends: it would mean that the Democratic Party would be the New Deal Party.

On the other hand, if the nine, or a large majority of the nine, are renominated, it will mean the Democratic Party remains within the Democratic tradition. The outcome of success of the nine, or most of them, would be that the Democratic National Convention in 1940 would be controlled by Democrats of the older type. Democrats symbolized, by, for example, Vice President Garner.

The situation presents a delicate problem for Mr. Roosevelt as he sets out on his trip today. He is to make speeches in States where two of the nine are candidates for renomination. His speeches, and also his actions, his attitude, will be watched as with microscopes for any sign of his intentions or wishes. Posssibly Mr. Roosevelt may decide to avoid any aggressive step against these Senators. He may take a different course. Among the States he is going into are four in which Democratic Senators who supported his court reform proposal are up for renomination. These Senators are Bulkley, of Ohio; Barkley, of Kentucky; Thomas, of Oklahoma, and McAdoo, of California. Conceivably, Mr. Roosevelt may confine himself to a so-to-speak defensive position. He may give his blessing to those four and adopt an attitude of neutrality with respect to the Senators who opposed his court reform proposal.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

After all the discussion that has resounded through Washington the last couple of weeks, an innocent observer might think that perhaps the Executive orders of June 24 should now be crystal clear.

However, as Chief Examiner Lawson A. Moyer of the Civil Service Commission said the other day, "We're going to be working at top speed between now and February before we know precisely what positions will be added to the merit system."

The widespread uncertainty and interest as to the effect of the orders is indicated in the fact that meetings are continuously being held to discuss them.

At least three are scheduled today.

President Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission will address employes of the Department of the Interior and PWA at 3:45 p. m. in the north Interior auditorium, under sponsorship of Local 50, U. F. W. A. Miss Mae Schnurr, chief of the public relations division, Bureau of Reclamation, will introduce Commissioner Mitchell. Miss Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer of U. F. W. A., will discuss the union's program for carrying out the order.

• • • •

It was in Sunday's Post that Mr. Mitchell branded as "absurd" the charge that the executive orders have "opened the way for the rape of the merit system." Author of the accusation, E. Claude Babcock, president of the Federal Personnel Association, thereupon invited Mitchell to discuss points of difference at a public meeting at 8 tonight in Babcock's office, 908 G street northwest.

A previous engagement will prevent Commissioner Mitchell from attending, but he stated his views in a letter which Mr. Babcock will analyze at tonight's meeting.

• • • •

The non-classified Federal employes of America will gather at 8:30 p. m. for a forum on the orders at the Hotel Lafayette "We still have plenty of work to be done between now and February 1, 1939," they said.

• • • •

Another meeting of a different sort scheduled for today will be held by the Central Housing Committee's sub-committee on research and statistics at the Lee House at 12:30 p. m. Richard Neutra, internationally famous architect, will talk on "The Economic Need in Housing."

A clear and complete resume of the executive orders has just been issued almost identical with that published by the A. F. G. E. in the Government Standard: Procurement Division, Treasury Department; Export-Import Bank; Farm Security Administration; National Emergency Council; National Resources Committee and positions in all Cabinet departments, WPA, GOA and PWA paid out of emergency funds appropriated directly to the President.

Furthermore, both U. F. W. A and A. F. G. E. are in practically complete agreement (mirabile dictu) as to the establishments on which the effect of the executive order remains unclear without further legal study.

We note that in its otherwise strictly factual presentation, the U. F. W. A. inserted one plug for the Federal Workers Appeals bill, introduced last fall by Representative Herbert Bigelow (Democrat), of Ohio. The union points out that President Roosevelt's order sets up a personnel director for each agency, one of whose duties will be to establish means of hearing grievances and to recommend settlements.

Observing that "no specific appeals machinery is provided for in the order," U. F. W. A. asserts that the Bigelow bill will be "a major objective in the next session."

The English may say "braces" when they mean "suspenders" and "chemist" when they mean "drug store"—but little black kittens are little black kittens even in England.

Miss O. Naudine Murphy, of 3424 Mount Pleasant street northwest, a stenographer in the Civil Service Commission, learned that the other night when she appeared as a contestant in the nationally broadcast questionnaire of Prof. Quiz in New York.

Even though she replied "I don't know" when asked what little black kittens are called in England, Miss Murphy had more correct answers than any of her four competitors. She walked off the platform with the first prize of 25 silver dollars.

Miss Anderson to Talk Tonight on Wage Law

Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor will speak on "Possible Violations of the Minimum Wage Law" over station WMAL tonight at 10:15. The talk as sponsored by the Women's Trade Union League.

Miss Anderson will discuss recent mimimum wage board decisions, such as that fixing the wages of laundry workers.

Water, Sewage At Lorton Held In Bad Shape

Epidemic Is Ever-Present Threat, Says Huff in Annual Report.

An epidemic threatens at the Lorton Reformatory and Occoquan Workhouse because of inadequate water and sewage facilities D. C. Penal Superintendent Ray L. Huff disclosed yesterday.

On the brighter side, however, the institutions wound up the past fiscal year with a balanced budget and a $30,000 credit, states Huff in his first annual report, submitted yesterday to the Board of Public Welfare.

"Electricity, power, water and sewerage is in bad condition," Huff said. "A revamping of the electric work has suffered several delays and is only now promising to be finished within a visible time.

"Power is in a dangerous condition. New boilers are under contract now, but are not installed. Sewage treatment is nonexistent at the workhouse and adequate for less than half the population at the reformatory.

Water Condemned.

"We don't know why we haven't had an epidemic," he states.

The water supply at the reformatory has been condemned and the boiler inspector "washes his hands of the power plants." The rapid growth of population and added facilities have left the utilities far behind, Huff reports.

"Imagine 150 men at the Workhouse bathing once a week and sleeping in a dormitory, eating in one room where space makes personal contact inevitable," Huff states.

Population at the two institutions is 2,700, of which 175 are women. Most are in the reformatory.

Beds, Mattresses Inspected.

Huff states that Saturday morning inspection of beds and equipment, airing mattresses, and daily inspection by the medical officer of kitchen facilities have been introduced during the past year.

Correspondence courses have been introduced in eight industrial fields. Schools for cooks and bakers, bookkeepers and stenographers are in operation.

"Shelter remains a serious problem," he states. "All previous records for population have been broken. The Reformatory is overpopulated by 600, the Workhouse a like number. We have considerable repairs to make to preserve the present buildings and need more housing. Plans are prepared for this, but actual construction will require more years as money is or may be available."

Business Is Going But One Way—Up, Steel Man Holds

New York, July 6 (AP).—Charles Hook, Ohio industrialist, said today he thought business "could go only one way—and that is up."

Hook made his comment as he sailed to join other members of a group of nine men and women appointed by President Roosevelt to study labor relations and legislation in England and Sweden. He is president of the American Rolling Mill Co., and of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Also aboard the Queen Mary were Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Mrs. Roper.

D. C. Tenor, at 80, Heard on Streets From 86th Floor

The Associated Press reported two pedestrians on the street, 1,050 feet below heard the notes of his favorite aria. Dr. Warsaw, who lives at 2220 Twentieth street northwest, oiled his larynx with wintergreen before he began.

Then the man, who sang from the top of the Washington Monument 25 years ago, cut loose, despite the roar of a Sixth avenue "L" train and the din of traffic.

$320,427 Bid Wins Channel Contract

Three weeks after the opening of bids, a $320,427 contract for first construction on the Washington channel rehabilitation project was awarded yesterday to the Diamond Construction Co., of Washington.

The announcement was made by the Army Engineer's office for this district. The contract calls for construction of the eastern halves of two yacht basins, a sales and service building, an electric floodlight and power plant and a gasoline and Diesel oil system. The contract stipulates that the work shall be completed within 320 working days.

D. C. Heads Seek Park Meter Data

Letters have been sent to all parking meter manufacturers known to the District Commissioners for their comments on specifications for the "mechanical watchdogs" which will be employed on Washington streets, it was disclosed yesterday.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said the replies would be studied by a special committee with the view toward revising specifications submitted recently by the Bureau of Standards. The committee includes Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Director of Highways H. C. Whitehurst, Electrical Superintendent Walter E. Kern and an expert from the Bureau of Standards.

New Films Are Announced for Ensuing Week

Screen Bills Top Varied Indoor and Outdoor Amusements.

"Men Are Such Fools," a new romantic comedy, featuring Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, will be the major screen attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story is an adaptation of a Faith Baldwin magazine fiction, dealing with the domestic problem that arises when a young married woman insists on keeping her job against the wishes of her husband. The supporting cast includes Humphrey Bogart, Hugh Herbert, Johnny Davis, Penny Singleton, Mona Barrie, Marcia Ralston and Kathleen Lockhart. On the stage, the Columbia Broadcasting System's famous Saturday night "Swing Session" will be presented "in the flesh," with Leith Stevens and his orchestra headlined. Featured with the band is Joe Solda. Other acts will be presented by Eleanore Knight, dancer; Pansy, the horse, and Bernice Parks, rhythm singer.

Sylvia Sidney and George Raft are the pictured costars in Paramount's production of "You and Me," coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater for a week's engagement. The story unfolded in this film is of a young ex-convict who violates her parole rather than give up the love of another reformed criminal. George E. Stone, Warren Hymer, Harry Carey, Roscoe Karns and numerous others appear in the supporting cast. The new vaudeville bill at the Capitol will be headlined by those rough-and-ready dialect comedians, Smith and Dale, and their Avon Comedy Four, one of the headline acts of big-time two-a-day variety. Also featured on the bill will be the Cappa Barra Swing Harmonica Band, a group of eight boys under the direction of Maurice Duke. Other turns will complete the program.

A summer flirtation at an adult vacation camp and the hectic romance that it inspires, combine to form the theme of RKO-Radio's picturization of the stage hit 'Having Wonderful Time," opening on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow, with Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in the stellar roles. Miss Rogers assumes the character of an overworked stenographer, who has taken her trousseau money for a two-weeks' vacation; Mr. Fairbanks that of an indigent young law student, who falls in love with her. In the supporting cast of this film version of the Arthur Kober comedy are many of the youthful players who were seen in "Stage Door." Richard "Red" Skelton, former guest master of ceremonies on F street, appears in a comedy role. The usual short subjects will complete the program.

In "The Shopworn Angel," major screen feature of the new week's bill opening tomorrow at Loew's Palace Theater, the principal roles are played by Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart and Walter Pidgeon. The pictured romance harks back to 1917 and the entry of the United States into the World War and has as its pivotal figures a rookie from Texas and a showgirl from New York. Her playboy admirer and show-backer provides the third character in the triangle. In the supporting cast are Nat Pendleton, Alan Curtis, Sam Levene and Hattie McDaniel. Short sound subjects and a new issue of the "News of the Day" will be added.

Opening Saturday of this week, July 9, at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater, the chief feature of the screen bill will be "Reformatory," a new Columbia action-drama, starring Jack Holt, Bobby Jordan, one of the favorite "Dead End" kids; Frankie Darrow, Charlotte Wynters, Grant Mitchell and Sheila Bromley are prominent in the auxiliary roles. After a boy is killed trying to escape from a State reform school, Holt is placed in charge. Riots greet his assumption of his new duties and, from that point on, action moves at a swift pace.

Spencer Tracy, 1938 Academy Award winner, co-starred with Loretta Young, will be seen again on the Columbia screen in "Man's Castle," a reissue, for the week beginning tomorrow. Tracy appears as a kindly vagrant who takes under his wing a hungry, homeless and hopeless waif, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Marjorie Rambeau, Arthur Hohl and Dickie Moore are important members of the supporting cast.

A travelogue devoted to Austria and embellished with much Viennese music; "Bear Facts," an Our Gang comedy; "Pinehurst," devoted to the fine points of the game of golf, and a Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy will comprise the featured short subjects on next week's bill at the Trans-Lux Theater, beginning tomorrow. The program, as usual, will be based on complete newsreel coverage of the world.

For the week beginning Sunday, the Little Theater will revive "Top Hat," co-starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, as foremost feature of its screen entertainment. One of Irving Berlin's most tuneful scores graces this subjebt. The supporting cast is headed by Helen Broderick, Edward Everett Horton and Eric Blore. Short-reels will complete the bill.

Beginning next Monday night, the musical attraction in the Spanish Garden ballroom at Glen Echo Park will be provided by youthful Howard Becker and his "parade of youth" orchestra. These boys from the Keystone State are said to be "tops" in the lilting beauty of their dance rhythms. The Crystal Pool and all of the other 50-odd amusements at Glen Echo will keep the 50-acre recreation center alive with fun, as usual.

Earle Theater Denies Rumor Vaudeville Will Be Abandoned

Zone Manager Payette, of Warners, Disclaims Knowledge of Origin of Published Report; Old-Time Act at Capitol; Coming Films; Notes of Theater.

MORE than a few of the theater's tried and true were startled out of their early July lethargy by reading on an inside page of the current issue of Variety, handbook of the "profession," that the Earle Theater in this city would drop vaudeville from its programs this fall. The murmuring circumambient had whisked no such local rumors about, nor had any filtered in over the grapevine. These sources of information usually are wrong, but, at least, they are the first to "inkle" secret goings-on. It seems there haven't been any secret goings-on.

BELL.

Complete denial of Variety's story was made yesterday afternoon by John J. Payette, general zone manager of the Warner Brothers interests in the Washington territory, which include the operation of the Earle Theater.

"There is absolutely no basis of fact in this story," said Mr. Payette. "At no time have we discussed with anyone the possibility of eliminating stage shows. Our patrons, we have found, definitely want stage shows. As a matter of fact, some months ago we engaged Harry Anger, well-known producer, to devote all of his time to the booking and staging of our stage bills and patrons' reaction to our new policy of presentation has brought much unsolicited praise. We do not know where Variety got such information, but we do know that we will not eliminate stage shows." That, in a manner of speaking, seems to be that.

* * * *

While a general attitude of approbation does exist in Washington with regard to the presentation of vaudeville in the Capital's two downtown "combination" houses, there come to this desk, from time to time, inquiries as to why the quality of the stage programs is not higher; why there is so much repetition of "band acts" and why the same old faces recur behind the footlights season after season. The answer is that those "band acts" and those "same old faces" represent the best that vaudeville has to offer in this day and age. It must be fairly well known by now that vaudeville as an institution that flourished in the old era of the two-a-day, is what the picturesque patois of show business describes as "pretty well shot." If it were not, we presumably still would have temples of the varieties like the old B. F. Keith's, the Palace in New York and other top spots that presented two-a-day bills at price sales running up to $2.20 per seat. As it is, we are getting the best there is available and I, for one, hope we continue to get it as long as it lasts.

* * * *

While we are on this topic, it might be pointed out that there will be a taste of old-school vaudeville on the bill at Loew's Capitol, beginning tomorrow, when Smith and Dale and their Avon Comedy Four will headline the bill. This was a standard act of a day that is gone and dates back to the heyday of such toplining stars as The Four Mortons, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Barry, Nora Bayes, Jack Benny, "Withers' Opry House" and the like.

In those seemingly remote days, it was not uncommon for the continuous-run houses, like Hammerstein's Victoria in New York, the Chicago Opera House and others of their kind scattered all over the United States, to present 16 acts on one bill. Approximately half of these were "supper show" acts that did four performances a day; the other half, big-timers that did only two.

With all due respect to Maj. Bowes and his valiant effort to rehabilitate vaudeville by sending troupe after troupe of his radio amateurs on tour, it occurred to me while watching his "Collegiate Revue" a few nights ago that it would be difficult to pick as many as six of his stars out of all of his companies who ever would have got on between the hours of 1 and 5, or 7 and 11 p. m., in the old days when vaudeville was at its zenith. Not that it especially matters, conditions being what they are.

* * * *

In a less pretentious way, Sidney B. Lust, Washington's indefatigable independent, is attempting locally, at his new Boro Theater, out in Bethesda, much the same sort of thing that Major Bowes is undertaking on a national scale. Mr. Lust has discovered that his patrons react enthusiastically to the old, sure-fire practices of showmanship. So tomorrow night he is repeating his earlier successful presentation of an "all-comedy night," when all of the screen's funmakers—or almost all of them—will be assembled on one screen bill. On Friday, July 15, he will carry the thing a step further and do practically what Mr. Bowes does on the air—conduct a "talent quest night." This is merely a slightly dolled up way of saying that a week from tomorrow night, the Boro will celebrate an "amateur night" on its stage. There being no District child labor law operative in Maryland, anyone who can walk on may take a whirl at whatever he feels he can do best, whether he be 18 months or 118 years old. Even if vaudeville never "comes back" through these devices, it is a lot of fun.

* * * *

If your personal taste happens to run to the screen, it might be of interest to know that among the new film features to be broken out in the downtown area on Friday, the fifteenth, will be "Tropic Holiday," with Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Bob Burns and Martha Raye, at the Earle—with Borrah Minnevitch and his Harmonica Rascals headlining the stage bill; Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Ian Hunter, Binnie Barnes and Lyn Bari in "Always Goodbye," at Loew's Capitol, and "Little Tough Guy," featuring the "Dead End" kids, at RKO-Keith's.

So now you know—and I hope the bookings stick!

* * * *

And speaking of "come-backs," as we were somewhere back there, Dan Terrell has returned to his desk in the Warner Brothers' publicity department after a fortnight's vacation from his typewriter. Instead of spending his two weeks at his favorite Delaware shore resort, Master Terrell this year decided to stay at home and do a little tinkering around the family manse. So for 14 days he juggled 3½ tons of cement blocks. No, he didn't build a new house, merely a new retaining wall across the back lot. But it took 140 of those cement blocks to complete the thing and each block weighed 50 pounds. Figure it out for yourself. Master Terrell, needless to say, returns to his official duties "in the pink"—except for the blistered hands, the lame shoulders, the stiff neck and the crick in his back!

* * * *

The origin of stage names always has been a bit of a mystery. Some of them don't sound quite so crazy as others, but once in a while one comes along that sounds crazier. It has remained for the eight harmonica virtuosi coming to the Capitol stage tomorrow to win the hand-crocheted scouring brick for bizarre nomenclature.

These lads call themselves the Cappy Barra Harmonica Swing Ensemble. It appears that on a certain occasion, while still wondering what to call themselves, they visited the New York Zoo and lingered in front of the cage, or the tank, or whatever it was, of that strange little South American creature known as the capybara. That struck them as being a very elegant name, with rhythm and everything—like Casa Loma, for instance. So they took a few extra letters to be on the safe side of the plagiarism laws and called themselves the "Cappy Barra," etc.

What they probably don't know is that the capybara is the largest known species of rodent—the little "rats!"

* * * *

Signs of the Time.

It has been quite a while now since our Chicago correspondent, Albert J. Chandler, sent in one of those trick double-bills. He says, however, that on July 3, he observed this perfect recital of inverted cause and effect on the marquee of the La Salle Theater:

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, July 6.

MISTAKE: This is the real story behind Mayor Hague's declaration from the witness stand that all radicals in this country should be sent to Alaska . . . This statement disrupted some resettlement plans being formulated by Harry Hopkins, the WPA administrator, with regard to developing new territory there . . . As a matter of fact, Hague didn't mean to say "Alaska." He started to say "Al—, Al—," couldn't remember how to pronounce the rest of the word, and so finished up with "Alaska" . . . Hague meant to say "Alcatraz!"

* * * *

BEAUTY: Alexander Woollcott visited Moss Hart's farm at New Hope, Pa. He saw Hart's home, the tennis court, the swimming pool, the landscaped gardening and the cattle and sheep grazing in the rolling acres . . . "Moss," Woollcott said, "this is just the kind of a place God would have made—if He had enough money."

* * * *

HONOR: Geraldine Farrar, who made her final appearance at the Metropolitan Opera in 1922, will return to the Metropolitan next season—for one night. She'll appear in a special all-star opera cast and will sing a number of her most famous arias . . . The occasion will be the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of her debut there.

* * * *

MYSTERY: Behind the closed doors of Broadway's Astor Theater unusual arrangements are being developed . . . On July 14 those doors will be opened to the public—as a museum honoring the birth of the French Republic on that day. It will feature costumes, jewelry, etc., all of the French Revolution period . . . It's all an M.-G.-M. publicity stunt for the new movie, "Marie Antoinette."

* * * *

DEFEAT: Some years ago George Abbott saw "Bed Time for Ali Baba," which featured Jimmy Savo. Abbott confessed that he didn't like Savo's performance, but was very much impressed with Ruth Gilbert, who appeared in the play . . . Last year Miss Gilbert appeared in the revival of "Processional," Abbott saw the show and went backstage to congratulate her . . . Mr. Abbott now is producing "Comedy of Errors." Ruth Gilbert applied to him for a job in this show—but couldn't get it. But the first actor Abbott did sign was Jimmy Savo.

* * * *

TRIUMPH: Because the revivals of Rudolph Valentino's "The Sheik" and "The Son of the Sheik" have been so successful, Astor Productions is preparing for national release a film called "The Man Who Came Back" . . . It will concern the life of Valentino, and will include newsreel shots of Valentino with Jean Acker, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, William S. Hart and Natacha Rambova.

* * * *

CHATTER: Sam Leibowitz will defend John P. Bathelt, now being held in the cement-coffin murder mystery . . . Edna Ferber is writing her autobiography . . . John Hanrahan, editor of Stage Magazine, will purchase that publication . . . The Internal Revenue Department, which has been checking the returns of all Hollywood companies, now is checking the Hays office . . .

Hollywood, Calif., July 6.—Jack Benny was so quiet on the "Artists and Models" set I thought he was ill.

"No . . . ," he said; "I'm just at peace with the world. Been sitting here for two hours thinking, sometimes not doing that. What a vacation, being off the air and doing nothing but a picture—haven't a gag in my head. Not caring what will happen next Sunday. People seem to think all you have to do is to go on and be funny. Try it some time, Hedda."

HEDDA HOPPER

I have—and flopped miserably. Each week is a major production for Jack.

I asked him what they were going to do to warm their new house.

"Nothing," said he. "You can't top perfection."

That's what Gracie and George Allen did. You know they wouldn't let me inside their place for a week before they gave the party. Even when I phoned for the racing tickets—we have a box together—George said, "Honk your horn when you get here; I'll bring 'em out to you."

Too bad a party like that can only be seen one night—it was so beautiful. George had a swell idea which he couldn't carry out. Wanted to freeze the swimming pool, cut out a hole in the center, fill it with caviar and get Sonja Henie to serve it on skates. Sonja happened to be busy.

Mitch Leisen, directing Jack in "Artists and Model," tells me that this time Jack's screen personality matches what comes over the air. Hooray!

Nippon Looks Beyond China, Kung Warns

comprehend the peculiar Japanese mentality and its direct consequences for the world. While Japan's militarists are mad with unbounded lust for power and supremacy, her people are fanatic in their belief that they are God's chosen descendants upon whom rests the destiny of Asia and the "divine mission" of ruling the world.

Assails "Indifference."

In order to preserve world peace, collective security and the realization of the horrors and futility of war as a means of settling international disputes, far-sighted statesmen conceived the League of Nations and the Kellogg-Briand pact; in view of the specially grave situation in the Far East they solemnly sealed and pledged the honor of their countries to uphold the nine-power treaty.

However, the powers' indifference and impotence toward Japan's invasion of Manchuria in 1931 encouraged a fresh belief in the forces of war and aggression, with the result that the fire kindled by Japan spread from Manchuria into that portion of China inside the great wall, and the winds from Asia to the other parts of the world are already hot with its scorching breath. None knows yet when and where it will halt.

Peace-loving China today is fighting militaristic Japan not only to defend its own inherent right to live, but also to uphold the sanctity of international treaties and world peace.

Thus far she has been fighting the aggressor alone because the other powers, cosignatories to the League of Nations Covenant, the anti-war pact and the nine-power treaty, have been cowed by Japan's bluffs and threats into becoming onlookers with their arms folded, their consciences salved by mere pious hopes even while their own vital rights, interests and prestige are being seriously jeopardized by the aggressor.

Yet to the world's surprise and Japan's greater surprise and consternation, China, while admittedly less militarily equipped, has been courageously and stubbornly defending herself and the cause of world peace and democracy for one year now instead of being "beaten to her knees" within three months by Japan's military strategists.

'Sustains Herself.'

China, despite unusual handicaps and difficulties has fought her way to sustain herself as a political entity, to preserve her economic and financial structure and her loan obligations, to maintain exchange stability, prevent an undue rise in commodity prices, extend financial relief to agriculture, steadily decrease her adverse trade balance, move important industries to her vast hinterland, expand her road and railway communications and take measures looking toward the mobilization and co-ordination of her energies and resources in order to combat the war-time difficulties which hamper the normal development of mining, agriculture, trade and industry—all of these with the view of strengthening and intensifying her resistance.

Above all, thanks to Japan's bombs and guns, China has achieved a new spirit of national unity and self-confidence and will carry the struggle to its bitterest end.

District Chinese To Parade Today

Every Chinese in Washington will take part in ceremonies today marking the first anniversary of the Japanese war.

Seven hundred will gather in the 600 block of H street northwest and at 10 a. m. will march to the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South at Ninth and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Chinese Ambassador Dr. Chengting T. Wang will be principal speaker at the ceremony, which is expected to be first of a series.

China After a Year of War With Japanese

Shanghai Riots; Bombs, Bullets Kill 4, Hurt 5

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), July 7.—Exploding bombs and assassins' bullets today ushered in the first anniversary of China's armed resistance to Japanese invaders and threw the International Settlement into turmoil.

Two Japanese and two Chinese were killed.

A British colonial soldier and four Chinese were wounded in the sudden surge of violence.

Three bombs were thrown simultaneously at a Japanese sentry post on Garden Bridge, a floating restaurant off the Bund—now used as Japanese gendarme headquarters—and the Yokohama Specie Bank Branch also on the Bund.

Police reserves and foreign defense units blocked all traffic between the International Settlement and Japanese-occupied territory.

A Japanese riding a bicycle in the International Sector guarded by United States Marines was shot and killed. His assassin escaped.

In Japanese-occupied west Hongkew, a part of Shanghai, a Japanese sentry was shot and killed by three Chinese who threw a hand grenade at a Japanese sentry post on the Yuyaching road bridge, linking the settlement with Hongkew.

Three bombs were tossed against a Japanese cotton mill on the settlement outskirts and a few moments later three more bombs exploded in the mill's living quarters. One British Sikh, colonial soldier, was wounded.

Japanese reported new gains over Chinese armies defending the Yangtze River aprpoach to Hankow, China's provisional capital and goal of Japan's campaign.

Bombers ranging ahead of ground forces were said to have sunk a dozen Chinese troop-laden junks near Kiukiang, 135 miles downstream from Hankou and immediate objective of the invaders.

Japan Protests.

Tokyo (Thursday), July 7 (AP).—The foreign office today announced Japan would make representations to France against occupation of the Paracel Islands.

Minister of Honduras Resigning to Go Home

By the Associated Press.

Julio Lozano, Minister of Honduras, announced yesterday he had resigned, to attend to private matters in his country. He added the resignation had been acepted by his government.

Lozano said he and his wife would leave late in July for New York. They planned to continue by airplane to New Orleans, to sail for Honduras.

Dr. Holsti Praises Oxford Groups as American Crusade

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, July 6.—Dr. Rudolf Holsti, foreign minister of Finland, today praised the Oxford movement as a means of promoting peace in Europe. He said he regarded the movement as an American crusade because its founder, the Rev. F. N. D. Buchman, is a native of Pennsylvania.

He refused to make any statement about the imminence of another European war. "I hope," he added, "that all the outstanding problems can be solved by peaceful means."

Discussing Finland's foreign policy, he added: "Our only aim, to make honest relations with every country of the world, with a view to saving our independence and our economic and social well-being. A small country can never have too many friends or too few enemies."

police fired into the turbulent crowds in the streets.

Origin of the bomb was not determined immediately. Police and troops instituted a stringent patrol and clamped down curfew regulations.

Another bomb tossed from a moving train into a Jewish crowd at Tel Aviv killed a woman and wounded two men.

In a gun battle last night on the Plains of Esdraelon, scene of the biblical victory of Gideon over the Midianites, eight Arabs were killed and a British soldier wounded.

2 Traffic Accidents Send 3 to Hospital

Joseph G. Herbert, 44, and Mrs. Margaret M. Herbert, of 4601 Davenport street northwest, were in undetermined condition at Georgetown Hospital last night after an automobile accident at Forty-fifth and Brandywine streets northwest. He is suffering from internal injuries and broken ribs. Mrs. Herbert may have a fractured skull.

George Jackson, 4, colored, 240½ Bryant street northwest, was taken to Freedmen's Hospital after being struck by an automobile in the 300 block of W street northwest.

Anti-Japanism Forced War, Asserts Konoye; Denies Nippon Wants Any Chinese Territory

Konoye

North China.

Indeed it was not until after more than a month that the Japanese government finally realized that younger officers in the Chinese armies, who had long been educated and trained in anti-Japanism, were firmly determined to fight Japan and were deliberately working toward that purpose. Only then did Japan reluctantly, but at the same time resolutely, decide to accept the inevitable.

Causes Anti-Japanism.

Thus we see the fundamental causes for the hostilities lie in the systematically organized education in anti-Japanism, both in the Chinese armies and schools, as well as among the general populace for many years. We take strong exception to the malicious methods of the Kuomintang (Chinese Government Party) government, which, under the leadership of Chiang Kai-shek, singled out one particular nation for the target of its antiforeignism. We believe no nation in the world could have tolerated such a situation.

Hostilities gradually extended over a wide area, from Peiping and Tientsin across the whole of North China to Shanghai, the Yangtze Valley, and even parts of South China. Japanese troops are now advancing toward Hankow. We are not fighting, however, with the Chinese people. Our conflict is with their leaders, civil and military, who have been assiduously inspiring the people with a hatred for Japanese during the last ten years. We are firmly convinced that unless we uproot this underlying cause of wrong there can be no lasting peace in the Far East, and for that purpose it is absolutely necessary to crush the Kuomintang government with its armies, which include avowedly anti-Japanese leaders.

Japan's objectives are to remove obstacles blocking everlasting peace in this hemisphere by destroying these leaders and their followers, to win the minds of the Chinese people away from anti-Japanism, and to free China from the menace of communism which the Kuomintang government has utilized.

Over and above all, there is Japan's desire for permanent peace and stability of the Far East, for which she feels it her duty to assume the responsibility.

Japan does not want an inch of Chinese territory. When hostilities have ended, the Chinesee people will have the helping hand of Japan, but not her governing hand.

Vested rights and interests of third powers in China will be fully respected, just as Japan has made every possible effort to respect them since the first fighting. It is not Japan's purpose to encroach upon the sphere of any foreign nation.

Japan is bound by an iron determination to settle the matter once and for all, no matter how much time may be needed; for we know too well that we shall have to take up the painful task in the near future if we do not finish it thoroughly at present. After one year's hostilities the nation is more firmly united than ever before. Not until the objectives above stated have been achieved will we stop. Hence there can be no change in what I have stated on previous occasions.

pathies of people in all countries."

Lord Winterton declared his government was studying the possibility of setling refugees in "certain East African territories" but that this would involve only a limited number of families.

Berenger, who is chairman of the French Senate's committee on foreign affairs, said his government was prepared to "discuss with other nations how immigration of German and Austrian refugees can best be directed and their settlement effected."

One incident marred the calm of the first session of the conference, which tomorrow will begin private discussions of immigration regulations and practices of the 32 nations represented.

The conference declined to allow representatives of Austrian refugee organizations to attend the meetings, drawing caustic remarks from the Austrians—some of them refugees themselves.

Artur Rosenberg, representative of the Austrian Refugee Federation, said the procedure was "scandalous, since the committee was called to discuss our own people."

July and Schooldays Are Here Again

Sealed Well Collapses at Manor Club

The ground suddenly gave in on the Manor Club's lawn yesterday, revealing a watery mass which, when probed, was many feet deep. It was a well sealed over 11 years ago. Its roof collapsed just after a golfer had picked up clubs that were resting on the spot. Workmen are shown making repairs.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Is Wife Justified in Construing Husband's Invitation to Former Fiancee as Slight to Herself?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband's former fiancee, whom he had not seen for years, recently came to Washington to work. His family and hers are friends of long standing in his old home town. I am slightly acquainted with them. As soon as she let us know of her presence here I invited her to the house and we spent a pleasant evening together with our two children. Later she and I attended an afternoon musicale, at my invitation.

• • • •

Some time afterward, she telephoned me one evening, apparently just to keep in touch. It was then that my husband told me the rather startling news that he had stopped in at her place of business one afternoon and invited her to the movies. She had declined without giving any real reason, which nettled him somewhat and hurt his feelings. Under the circumstances, I think she did the right and honorable thing and I respect her for it, as I think he should. However, he can't see that there would have been any harm whatsoever in their going out together as old friends, and cannot understand the implications.

• • • •

Although I am not at all of a jealous or suspicious nature (rather too much the opposite, if anything; as I have never tried to tie my husband down in any way), I still think it would have been unfair and showing lack of deference to me, for them to have had a casual "date" without my knowing it at the time. What is your opinion?

WONDERING.

Mistaken Overture.

DEAR WONDERING: It is my opinion that you are justified in feeling that your husband was acting in an unworthy manner in attempting to establish an undercover or behind-the-hand sort of social relationship with his former fiancee. As you say, the manner and nature of his invitation to her implied a lack of loyalty to his wife, an incipient lack of fidelity to the spirit as well as the letter of his marriage. Moreover, I think his assumption that she would accept such an invitation must have vexed and offended her as much as her refusal nettled him. She was justified in resenting the implication that she was open to addresses of a married man; that she lacked the good judgment, the good taste and the sense of fair play which would prompt an intelligent woman who places a proper evaluation upon herself to discourage such overtures at the very outset. As you say, the implications of her reaction in declining his invitation—"without giving any real reason"—compel respect.

• • • •

One is justified in supposing she is an admirable, a superior, sort of woman; that, moreover, she probably conceived a genuine admiration and liking for you, as much for your natural qualities as for your gracious good sportsmanship in making her cordially welcome to your home the moment you heard she was in town. One is justified in supposing, too, that the only reason your husband broke down and supplied the "startling" information that he had asked her out and been refused, was because he gathered, from her actions, that she was allying herself with you as against him (rather than the reverse), and because he was nervous lest you might, at some future day, get another version of the incident from her lips.

• • • •

It could be, too, that his mortification at her subtle rebuke is taking the form of smoldering resentment, and that he would like to have you champion his attitude of injured innocence, which seeks to depict her as a prude who reads offense where none was intended. It is my opinion that he grasps the thoroughly understandable, thoroughly defensible implications of her reaction quite as well as you do, but stubbornly refuses to concede the fact for the simple reason that few men, if any, have the grace to admit having made a fool of themselves, even when they know in their heart that they have.

M. H.

Man Speaks to "X. Y. Z."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your comments of July 2 were very interesting, concerning the problem of "X. Y. Z.," the girl who begs to remain friends with a young man she loves who doesn't love her and who would prefer to break off. From the point of view of another man dealing with a similar case, I thought perhaps it would be interesting to put something down for the consideration of your correspondent.

• • • •

It is possible, of course, that I am mistaken in assuming that the girl in my case cares rather more for me than I care for her. Subject to that proviso, however, I came to the conclusion that pleasant though our association has been, it would be not only unkind but grossly unjust to her for me to continue to occupy her time and perhaps thoughts. Consequently, I have declined all invitations that would have brought us together and shall continue to do so. . . .

• • • •

One rather serious scruple enters in. Religiously, although she is not well instructed, the girl shows a deep, sincere response to the truths of revealed religion, and, I might add, an almost embarrassing tendency to take what I have to say on the subject as being necessarily important. For this very reason, I doubted for some time whether I was justified in adopting the course of action I outlined above. However, since conversion occurs only through the grace of God aided by sincere prayer, I have concluded that what aid my prayers might offer is all I have the right to give this girl at this time . . .

• • • •

It may be that what I have to say is pertinent, and again it may not . . . In conclusion, may I express my sincere appreciation of your work? Your advice for the most part, if I may say so without offense, is wholesome and sound; and although I rather think you hold to no dogmatic teaching as such, it is amazing to see how close a vigorous, natural intellect and understanding can come to the doctrine and teaching of the church. (P. S.: I am not a clergyman, nor have I any intention of becoming one). Most sincerely,

THE OTHER SHOE.

Lo! the Nightshirt May Come Back, As a 'Sleeperette'

New York (AP).—Is the nightshirt coming back? A few days back a department-store advertisement heralded a new item in nocturnal attire—an elongated pajama coat, hitting about the knees and designed never to have the companionship of a pair of pants.

The item was tagged with some trick appellation from the horror school of sartorial terminology like "coatee," "shortee," or "sleeperette," but any court would hold it simply a version of the nightshirt.

The standing of pajamas has been in jeopardy for some time. Whereas the presumption once was that every man retired at night attired in a standard pair of pajamas, lately contradictory indications have become rife.

Growing dissatisfaction with pajamas is indicated in a rash of recent modifications promising more comfort—pajamas with elastic waists instead of the traditional cord; pajamas with bell-bottom pants and schooner-rig seats; buttonless pull-over coats, and even one-piece pajamas, with coat and pants hitched together.

It even came to be noised about that certain individuals were simply dispensing with one or both sections of pajamas in the interests off comfort.

HERE at last is a dirndl style that won't make you look dumpy. Made of the sheerest of cotton, this dress has a tailored, rather than a frilly, look and the red and white stripes give slenderness and grace to the figure. Strained Look While Reducing Not Necessary on Proper Diet

Adequate Vitamins, Proteins and Minerals Will Insure Strength and Vitality; Choice of Elements, Not Amount Is Important.

By Ida Jean Kain.

"DOESN'T JANE look perfectly awful since she has reduced?" That used to be the customary reaction when any of your friends took off weight. But how diets have changed! Nowadays Jane looks positively radiant after reducing on menus that supply plenty of vitamins, minerals and protein.

Although these protective elements are always essential for the maintenance of a high level of vitality, they are so strongly stressed on scientifically planned reducing menus that you are more apt to be consistent about having them every day. As a result, in spite of a cut in calories, you feel and look better because you have been taking the vitamins, minerals and protein in optimum amounts. Actually, you follow an abundant diet!

Numerous experiments have shown that by increasing a single dietary factor in an apparently adequate diet, well-being may be markedly enhanced and the chances are that the scientific reducing diet represents an increase in several of these nutritional factors. It is not surprising that the health improves on such a diet.

Proteins Essential.

Nutritionists today favor a diet high in protein for the reducer. To enjoy greater vigor while reducing, include in your daily diet a liberal serving of lean meat, two eggs, one glass of skim milk or buttermilk and a serving of cottage cheese. Proteins are the strength-giving foods and any menu which fails to supply adequate amounts of good protein is unsafe.

The word "abundant," as applied to vitamins, is ever so important. On a very limited calorie allowance you must almost literally follow the rule, "No food without vitamins." Otherwise you will not get all the vitamins you need. If you are less than 5 feet 3 inches tall and on a 1,000 calories maximum, these calories must all be in the form of the protective foods.

To be supplied even adequately with the vitamins and minerals, you must take daily one-half glass of orange juice or one and one-half glasses of tomato juice, and a second fruit; two cooked vegetables, one a green; some raw vegetables, a minimum of one and one-half pats of butter, and three slices of whole grain bread. To this list you add lean meat, skim milk or cheese and eggs.

No Place for Desserts.

By careful calculation you can get the optimum amounts of the protective foods in the 1,000 calories. Of course, there is no place on your menu for desserts or other non-essentials. The diet for the short person with low fuel requirements is practically limited to the protective foods.

Today's menu is an example of the diet abundant in the foods essential to health—and it is the type that keeps you radiantly healthy even though you are losing an average of two pounds per week.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, July 6.

THE LATEST chapter in the hard life and tough struggles of Barbara Hutton-that-was has had some varied and interesting repercussions here. Certainly we have all learned that one of the easiest ways to brush off a large mess of money is to make a series of divorce settlements on handsome and fascinating gentlemen. The surviving members of the Mdivani tribes are making out very nicely on Hutton cash left them by Barbara's late spouse, "The Prince."

ALICE HUGHES

As for Count Kurt, The Great Dane, no sooner had trouble busted loose between this beautiful pair than local folk suddenly remembered that they never had liked the handsome nobleman. They said openly, in chromium cocktail saloons, that the feller had always been overbearing and arrogant to an impossible degree, and that he assumed the role of lord of the manor and his blonde wife as soon as the fateful words had died away on the air. The tale is also bandied about here that his nibs was intent on having her transfer much of her inherited boodle to foreign securities. Naturally once the couple was reproduced in their little son, Lance, Haugwitz-Reventlow appeared in the role of conventional European father, who feels that the mama has completed her role in the drama of motherhood almost as soon as the little one is born, and from then on the tike is "his" son, not "theirs."

• • • •

In the meantime, there remains that undoubtedly pitiful and harried figure, Barbara Hutton, who has tried two marriages to overseas men with no luck, and who will have no walkover when she tries to become an American again. Little did I think, when I saw her as a plump and pretty little post-deb on the Europa in April, 1931, that one day she would be page-oned, year after year in a series of international messes. "Poor little rich girl," as Eleanor Gates said.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I told you of the celebrated case of our good friend, Mrs. Ethel Tarnanovich, who found a gun in a buss and was tossed into jail when she did her lawful duty by turning the weapon over to a cop. The thing caused a city-wide hullabaloo. Urged incessantly to be good citizens, this is what we get when we try it, was the thought. Police Commissioner Valentine went mad with rage and shame. He apologized brokenheartedly at this stupid police-work, sent Mrs. Tarnanovich back her rogue's gallery pictures, and her fingerprints, and hurled official charges at the incredible Lieut. Dallas who tossed the housewife into the cooler when she gave him the persuader. Our fine police force lost enormous prestige for this one piece of amazing dumbness. I'm afraid that if I find a pistol now, I'll quietly drop it down a catch-basin and whistle on my way. What has been, can be—especially with a constable.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

End of Day.

I've put out the cat and the milk bottle,
I've got everything ready for morning,
Now is there anything else? Oh yes, I must see
That all the screen doors are fastened,
And the gas burners tight, and there are no drafts
Coming in on the children.

Ten o'clock! How time flies! Why only a moment ago
I was starting the day and planning ahead
To get loads of things done, and still they're unfinished.
Yet I've done pretty well, when you think of the time
I've put in on the phone, and in opening the door
To men who were vending.

There was breeakfast, and lunch, and dinner at night,
And setting the table, and washing the dishes,
Then I cleaned off the shelves and polished the silver,
And I laid in supplies and sorted the linen.
I've got the salt cellars full and the sugar bowl loaded
And they'll last till they're empty.

I changed all the bed linen and tucked it in smooth;
I hung up the coats, the hats and the dresses;
I sent off the laundry, and picked up the lint
From the carpets, and mended the stockings,
And carried out the papers; now things should stay put
At least until Monday.

I dusted the books and I watered the flowers,
I carried all the circulars from the veranda,
Yes, I got a lot done when you really consider
Now I must get into bed to rise early tomorrow,
For there's so much to do—yet I really dislike
To give up this day to its burial.

It's gone by so fast and it's all seemed so drab,
Like a ruthless machine that was turning and turning,
And grinding things out, without life, without color,
Without substance or value or anything lasting,
And what was the use, for when morning returns
It will all be done over?

If only I felt that the day left behind
Some moment of beauty that never would die,
Some ecstasy brief, some laughter unending,
Some touch of a deepness below all its trifles.
I could say farewell gladly.

It is July already, today from my window
I noticed the leaves had that midsummer dullness
Of green; and now fall plans come crowding.
This poor day is dead, and it's only another
Checked off on the time clock of life.
I must do more tomorrow.

Graduated Polka Dots.

Teen-Age Etiquette

Admiring glances turn to frowns as she cuddles her plate with one arm. Her smart looks are forgotten when she holds a well-bitten piece of bread with one hand, stabs at olives with a fork firmly clenched in the other hand.

Nobody could be that dumb, you think! But manners are pesky, treacherous things unless you're dead sure of them! To make a lasting hit, cleave to these etiquette pointers as you do to your lipstick.

Keep your arms and elbows off the table while eating.

Break a slice of bread in pieces as you want it. Never bite a whole slice, leaving unsightly teeth marks.

Take olives with your fingers. You also use fingers in eating unsliced cake, small cakes, dry cheeses, artichokes, thin dry sandwiches.

After a dinner party, tell your hostess that you enjoyed the meal but don't say "Thank you for the dinner."

When your beau takes you to a dance in his car, suggest that he leave you at the door before he parks.

If the dance is at a hotel, it's correct for the girl to pay her own checkroom charges.

Who says when to leave? The girl. She's first to say "Let's go" at the movies, first to speak on the street, first to say "Good-by" on the telephone.

More pointers for good times are given in our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for the Teens." Dates, parties, motoring, visiting, movies. Tips for girls and men. What to do about the boy who pets.

Send 15c for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

SLIM, SMOOTH LINES are the fashion order of the day and are outstanding characteristics of this charming frock which you can easily make yourself. Pattern 521 calls for full-length panels in both the front and back which, combined with the clever seaming at the waist, produce a slim silhouette that fits perfectly into the fashion picture this season. Trim cuffs on the short puffed sleeves and a neat little collar are simple touches that make this dress equally appropriate for traveling, office or afternoon. A Detailed Sewing Guide accompanies this pattern to make home sewing easy.

Pattern 521 is cut in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send 15 cents (15c) in coins or stamps (perferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

Today's HEALTH TALK

Why Weather Influences People With Arthritis

The influence of weather on arthritis is traditional. The rheumatic aches when a storm is in the offing and the bones feel numb when the frost begins. When the hot days arrive, you wouldn't know it. It loosens up and "sooples," as we say in Missouri.

Studies on the capillaries in people with arthritis have taught us a great deal about the reasons for these, as well as other phenomena of arthritis. Wallenberg showed that in cases of arthritis there were changes in the blood vessels of the affected joints, and he was able to produce a kind of artificial arthritis by ligation of vessels around the joint.

Studied Systematically.

It remained for Pierce and Pemberton at the University of Pennsylvania to study systematically a large group of arthritic invalids as to the state of the capillary circulation. It is possible to arrange a microscope with a very little additional apparatus so that the smallest blood vessels—the capillaries—can be seen in the skin at the bottom of the nails.

In patients with arthritis of the atropic—the most crippling—type, it was striking to see that the capillaries were all attenuated and inclined to be in spasm, so that the blood supply to the part was always distinctly below par. This suggested that the balance of the capillary circulation was bad, possibly due to the absence of some normal substance in the body which kept them open and full.

Why Heat Is Grateful.

The observations have significant suggestions for treatment. It shows why heat is always grateful and beneficial to these patients, particularly deep heat, such as diathermy. It shows why massage is good, and why the patients feel better in hot weather. If the barometer affects the capillary circulation, and that was postulated in the work we reported last week, it explains the difference in comfort experienced by rheumatics in different weather.

Finally, it explains why a drug which would specifically dilate the capillaries in the joints might be expected to give relief. Some such hope has been held out for the use of a drug called mecholyl, which is forced into the joint locally by the positive electrode of a galvanic battery.

Argentine Naval Group To Arrive Next Week

Training Ship to Bring Officers and Midshipmen as Latest Foreign Visitors to Relieve Capital's Summer Doldrums.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Still they come . . . flocks of foreign visitors who keep the summer calendar out of its traditional doldrums and add a dash of color to the local scene. With the round of parties for Swedish and Finnish dignitaries now social history, Capital residents who haven't yet scurried vacation-ward are looking forward to the arrival next week of Argentine officers and midshipmen sailing toward our shores on the training ship, Presidente Sarmiento.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Strenuous is the word for the schedule arranged for the visitors, who will be launched into a whirl of social events the minute they set foot in the Nation's Capital. The Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil and the Naval Attache and Senora de Sueyro have cards out for a reception in honor of their countrymen on Friday, July 15, at 5:30 at the Mayflower. The hotel was chosen as the setting for the party rather than the embassy as Senora de Espil thought it would be cooler for a mid-summer event that will draw hundreds of guests. After spending a few days in New York, Senora de Espil left there yesterday for Narragansett Pier, R. I., where she and the Ambassador have taken a home for the summer. She will be back in Washington next week, however, returning especially to be here for the reception.

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy will give a tea next Wednesday at the Army and Navy Country Club in honor of the officers and midshipmen, who earlier in the day will be guests at a luncheon with Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, as host. The following evening, Thursday, the visitors will attend the open air concert at the Pan American Union.

On Monday morning the Presidente Sarmiento will dock at the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard. The commanding officer and his charges will visit the Navy Yard there hat afternoon, returning to their ship to spend the night. On Tuesday they will proceed to Quantico, where they will lunch with the commander of the Army post and visit the Marine Corps headquarters. They will arrive in Washington early that evening.

A visit to Rear Admiral George T. Pettingill and a tour through the Navy Yard a trip to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia will occupy most of Wednesday. The following day there will be a bit of sight-seeing for the visitors who will be conducted through the Capitol, the Congressional Library and the Smithsonian Institution. Also on Thursday they will motor to Annapolis, where they will lunch at the Naval Academy.

On Friday, they will motor to Arlington to place a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier and then proceed on to Mount Vernon, where they will place a floral tribute on Washington's tomb. A third wreath will be placed on the statute of Gen. Jose de San Martin, noted revolutionary leader, whose followers defeated the adherents of Spain in the war for Argentine independence. The reception Friday afternoon at the Mayflower will conclude the calendar of entertainment planned for the officers and midshipmen who will leave Washington that evening.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: While Joseph E. Davies, Ambassador to Belgium, and Mrs. Davies are on their way to his new post at Brussels their Camp Topridge, on Upper St. Regis Lake, N. Y., is being opened for members of their families who will visit there this season . . . Next summer Ambassador and Mrs. Davies hope to spend several weeks there themselves. The camp, incidentally, is one of the show places of the Adirondacks . . . Two hundred persons invited to the luncheon Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt had planned for Saturday at Newport for the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden will have to find something else to do that day. The event, as well as the visit of the royal couple to Newport has been canceled because of the illness of the Crown Prince, whose physicians have ordered to rest as much as possible even after he is discharged from the hospital . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lyon Polk and Charles Dana Draper, who were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis at their summer home at Southampton, Long Island, have returned to New York.

Count Szechenyi Memorial Friday

A memorial mass for Count Laszlo Szechenyi, former Hungarian Minister to Washington, who died Tuesday in Budapest, will be held on Friday morning at 11 o'clock in St. Matthew's Church. Mme. Pelenyi, wife of the present Minister, has returned to Washington for the ceremony from Cleveland, where she has been for several weeks.

Members of Capital society knew Count Szechenyi and his wife, the former Gladys Vanderbilt, in Washington. During the years the late envoy was stationed here, he and the countess entertained lavishly and their home on upper Massachusetts avenue, now occupied by the German Ambassador and Frau Dieckhoff, was the center of much hospitality.

Count Szechenyi took an active interest in the customs, manners and history of his wife's country and was a frequent visitor to the House and Senate galleries.

For the past few years, the count served as his country's envoy to London. With him at his death was Mrs. Eugene Roberts, the only one of his five daughters who still resides in Washington.

Wife and Daughter Of Belgian Envoy To Sail for Home

They will not return to Washington until early in November.

Married in Washington Cathedral

Underwood & Underwood.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES K. AGLE.

Miss Cassard Wed to Mr. Agle

A small and extremely simple ceremony in the National Cathedral yesterday united in marriage Miss Dorothy Cassard, daughter of Mrs. Harrison Cassard and the late Harrison Cassard, and Charles K. Agle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Agle, of Bloomington, Ill.

The ceremony, which was witnessed only by members of the two families, took place at 4:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's Chapel, Washington Cathedral, with Canon Anson Phelps Stokes officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Henry Wadsworth Moore, wore a green and white afternoon dress, street length. A small white straw hat and a corsage of lilies of the valley completed her costume. She dispensed with attendants.

Kenneth Kassler, of Princeton, N. J., served as best man.

A small reception for intimate friends of the couple followed at the residence of Mrs. Julius Conrad, 1616 Twenty-first street. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Agle will live at 2633 Fifteenth street.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. John G. Walker, of Winchester, Va. She made her debut in Baltimore at the Bachelors' Cotillion and is a member of the Junior League of Washington. An excellent bridge and tennis player, she is pretty and slender and has been one of the most popular members of the younger set.

Mr. Agle is an architect with the United States Housing Authority.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

LADY LINDSAY, wife of the British Ambassador, has canceled plans for a trip to England and will spend the summer in this country. Last year she found an escape to the simple life in the mountains of New Hampshire, but so far hasn't told what her destination will be this season. However, her plans do not include taking a house anywhere.

DUDLEY HARMON

The collection of hundreds of shells which Lady Lindsay has just presented to the District public schools were all gathered by herself. Although they range in size from tiny shells the size of a fingernail to conches in which the roar of the ocean can be heard, they all come from one Florida beach where Lady Lindsay spent some time several winters ago. Carefully assembled on cotton pads in shallow wooden trays, the shells will be given to the natural science department for use by the students.

This is definitely the Lindsays' summer in the embassy, as Sir Ronald will, we are informed, be retired next year. Already beyond the age for withdrawal from the diplomatic service, he has had his post here extended once, but the extension is not expected to be repeated, and the Lindsays are due to depart next winter.

ONE of Washington's many young-men-about-town, Nathan Bartlett, writes us from Paris about several Capital residents who are enjoying life in the city where all good Americans were once said to go when they die. He had tea at the Ritz the other day with Mimi Scott, daughter of Mrs. Russell Sard, and Yolande de Mauduit. Miss Scott, Miss de Mauduit and the latter's mother, Mrs. Griffin de Mauduit, left early last spring with their automobile to tour Europe. The letter also says that Mrs. Marion Warburg was at La Residence for a stay before proceeding to Geneva.

MEMBERS of the royal Swedish party touring America have been swamped with honors and presents, ranging from the title of colonel bestowed on one of the party by Gov. Earle to jars of raspberry jam made by the Swedish colony in Wilmington. One of the gifts with which they are most pleased is a gold cigarette case presented by the captain of the Kungsholm, on which they crossed. On one side of the case is a map of northern Europe and on the other one of the United States, with the ports and other cities visited by the party marked with rubies.

After watching royalty in action early this week we decided that even the incomes which Princes receive don't compensate them for the work they have to do. Young Prince Bertil has to get up at 8 o'clock or earlier every day of this trip, and from the time he rises to the time he goes to bed no minute is his own. There are speeches to make, or (worse) listen to, church services to attend, receptions at which he must look pleasant, cocktail parties at which he doesn't dare get a lift by taking even one cocktail; stiff dinners at which he must pretend to have a good time, and then informal suppers later which would no doubt be fun if he hadn't already rubbed elbows with 500 other people during the day. In Washington, as in the other cities he visited, the Prince never made a move on his own hook; there was always an aide, like a gnat, at his elbow, to say "now we must go," "don't forget you are to have tea at the White House tomorrow at 2 or "everybody's luggage has to be ready by 9 o'clock." The Prince's job on this trip is a 24-hour-a-day one, and he must envy union workers who have only a 40-hour, 5-day week.

Dr. Fredericka Rainey Is Wed To Dr. Cobey at Cathedral

Miss Elizabeth Weil Is Maid of Honor, Earl Cokey Best Man; Couple to Honeymoon in Old Rainey Home on Cape Cod.

Yesterday in Bethlehem Chapel, Washington Cathedral, Dr. Fredericka Blackwell Rainey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Eaton Chase Rainey, of this city, became the bride of Dr. Milton Carpinter Cobey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cobey, of Frostburg, Md., and Baltimore.

The Rev. Edward R. Hardy, dean of the General Theological Seminary, of New York, officiated. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was simply gowned in white chiffon. Her veil was draped from a coronet of rosaline lace, which was also worn by her sister, the former Miss Frances Rainey, when married a few months ago in Elizabethport, South Africa.

Miss Weil Is Maid of Honor

Miss Elizabeth Weil, of Port Huron, Mich., was maid of honor. Her frock of buttercup chiffon had a fitted bodice and a full skirt. She wore a matching picture hat and carried yellow roses and African daisies. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Earle Cobey, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, of Frostburg, Md., and Miss Vivian Peeling, of Providence, R. I. They wore green chiffon, wide-brimmed green straw hats and carried bouquets similar to that of the maid of honor.

Earl Cobey was best man for his brother. Ushers were Jean Webb, of White Plains, N. Y., and Dr. Charles Smith and Dr. Hugh Jewett, of Baltimore.

Following the wedding there was a reception in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower. In the receiving line, in addition to members of the bridal party, were parents of the bride and parents of the bridegroom. Mrs. Rainey was gowned in mulberry net with hat to match. Mrs. Cobey's blue lace frock was worn with a wide-brimmed blue hat.

To Spend Honeymoon At Place on Cape Cod

When the couple left on their wedding trip to Bourne, Cape Cod, the bride wore a navy blue sheer frock with blending accessories. She and her husband will spend their honeymoon at a place in Bourne that has belonged to the Rainey family since 1620.

After September 1 both will be internes at Johns Hopkins Hospital. The bride was educated at Radcliffe and took her pre-medical course at George Washington University. She finished Johns Hopkins Medical School in June, 1937, and has spent the past year as an interne in a New York hospital. Dr. Cobey also is a graduate of Johns Hopkins Medical School and spent the past year in New York.

Helen Quinby, Virginian Wed

A number of persons from the foxhunting country were in West Grove, Pa., yesterday to attend the wedding of Miss Helen Quinby, daughter of the late Dr. Courtland Quinby and Mrs. Quinby, and Thomas U. Dudley, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. U. Dudley, of Exning, Middleburg.

The marriage took place at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother at 129 East Evergreen street. Only members of the immediate families and a few friends were present.

Miss Helen Barrett, of Wilmington, Del., was maid of honor. John Rowland Dudley, of Middleburg, was his brother's best man. The bridegroom was reared in Middleburg and has a host of friends there, but he has been working in Wilmington for the past 10 years.

Following the wedding the couple left for a motor trip through the Great Smoky Mountains in Tennessee. Later they will go to Middleburg, where a number of parties are being planned for them. Among Virginia hunt country residents who attended the wedding were the parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Harris, Mrs. Wade Hamilton Frost, Miss Susan Frost and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jamison.

Miss Nannie Lee Fox Married To Mr. Conner in Alexandria

Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Alexandria was the scene of the marriage of Miss Nannie Lee Fox and Norman Hampton Conner yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. George Vest, pastor, officiated.

Masses of summer blossoms were used in decorating the church. Ferns and palms were arranged at the chancel and tall white tapers burned on the altar. Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, former Representative Miles C. Allgood, the bride wore a navy and white traveling costume in French design and a tailored leghorn hat. Her corsage was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

There were no bridesmaids. George Reynolds, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Following the wedding, the couple left on a wedding trip to Canada. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Conner will live in Washington.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Annie Randall Fox, is descended from the Jayne, Randall and Byrne families. She was graduated from the Woman's College in Montgomery, Ala., and later attended George Washington University, where she received her master's degree. For several years she has made her home here with her brother-in-law and sister, former Representative and Mrs. Allgood.

Mr. Conner is a member of a prominent Virginia family. He is a descendant of Charles Alexander, of Preston, for whom the town of Alexandria was named. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia, received his law degree from George Washington University and his degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence from Georgetown University.

University Women's Club Being Renovated

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, although nominally "closed" this week and next, has not been so noisy for months as it is now. The reason is that men have invaded it—workmen who are pounding, hammering and painting, intent on having the building ready to reopen Monday, July 18, when another of the series of summer teas will be held.

The repairs and redecorating are being done under the direction of Miss Margaret Lunn, manager of the clubhouse for the past ten years. When the work is completed and everything in shape for the fall season, she will leave for her vacation, and plans to drive to Ohio to visit her father and other relatives.

The clubhouse undergoes improvements and repairs each summer. Two years ago, the entire third floor, occupied by the national offices of the association, was done over, new flooring was laid, and shelves and bookcases were built in making the offices more attractive and much more convenient than they had been before. Last season minor repairs were made but this year the house is having a thorough going-over, with the business office of the local branch receiving particular attention.

National Office and Branch Co-operate

The clubhouse is the property of the national association and serves as its headquarters, but its dining room and club program are under the Washington branch. Rental of the 16 bedrooms goes to the national organization.

The office, which is on the first floor just inside the entrance of the building, is to have a wider doorway, part of which will be a counter with shelves inside on which record books can be conveniently kept. The present doorway is so small, only one person can transact business there at a time.

A cabinet with sliding doors will be built across the south wall, replacing a miscellaneous assortment of old furniture, and mail boxes will be built so as to be within view of resident guests. In the rear office occupied by Mrs. Nina Boykin, the secretary, a new file case and modern desk will replace the old furniture now in use. Miss Katherine Russell, Miss Frances McHugh and Miss Julia Moore are members of the office staff.

Paper on the walls of the cloak room will be replaced by paint and new racks will be provided.

On the second floor the dining room, kitchen, pantry and glassed-in porch will all be painted in the colonial green and ivory which are now on the walls.

The bedrooms on the fourth floor are to be painted and new oak floors put in. The old wooden shutters on the windows also will be taken out and new sills put in. The shutters are the old-fashioned variety that pull up.

Many Stories Told Of Clubhouse Fete

The A. A. U. W. clubhouse has a colorful history surrounding it. It is built on a site on which there stood many years ago a "haunted house" which its owner finally moved from the spot in an effort to destroy the superstitution about it. The property was later purchased by A. B. Stoughton, who had a house built there for his daughter She did not occupy it, however, and in 1889 it was purchased by Benjamin Franklin Tracy, Secretary of the Navy, from Gen. Don M. Dickinson, then the owner. For a few months it was the scene of hospitality and elaborate official functions, and then in February, 1890, it was destroyed by a tragic fire in which Secretary Tracy's wife and two daughters lost their lives.

The folowing year the main part of the present building, fashioned to resemble the interior of a beautiful transatlantic liner, was erected on the site by Augustus C. Tyler, an Army officer. This design accounts for the sunken lounge and other unusual details of the first floor.

The Russian Embassy occupied the building from November, 1905, to December, 1911. The men's Commercial Club of Washington purchased the property in June, 1913, and in 1921 the property was purchased by the A. A. U. W.

Earlene White Starts Trip to Grand Rapids

Will Conduct Meeting of Businesswomen's Executive Board.

Miss Earlene White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, left yesterday for Grand Rapids, Mich., where she will conduct the annual meeting of the executive board. Presidents of the federation in the 48 States and the District of Columbia, national offices and committee chairmen comprise the group, which will discuss work of the federation for the coming year.

Miss White will address guests at the opening reception Sunday night at the Woman's City Club in Grand Rapids. Monday morning, at the first business session, she will report to the board progress of the clubs over the country in carrying out mandates of the convention held in Atlantic City last July.

"Our Town's Business" has been the theme of the club program during the past year.

Wednesday, in accordance with Miss White's plan that play as well as work be included in the federation's activities, the club officers will take a day off. The Michigan women will be hostesses at a "Play Day" to be held at the south end of Grand Haven Oval, on Lake Michigan.

Friday night Prof. Harry D. Gideonese will speak at the closing banquet. He will be introduced by Miss White and will discuss "Present Day Trends."

Miss Nina Kinsella, president of the Washington Club, and Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth, local vice president and national chairman of program co-ordination, will leave tomorrow for Grand Rapids.

Soroptimists Fete 2 Englishwomen On American Tour

Elsie M. Rolfe, a teacher of language and Elizabeth J. Bidcountry for the international Soroptimists from Coventry, England, yesterday were guests of honor at the weekly luncheon of the local club held in the Willard Coffee Shop. They came to this country for the international soroptimist convention in Atlantic City, and are now on a tour of the United States, expecting to remain here until October 29.

Both of the English guests told of the activities of the clubs abroad and made comparisons between the organizations there and here.

Mrs. Agnes Newman presided at the meeting and Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis gave a brief talk on the value of membership in a Soroptomist club to the women executive.

Alice Connors, registrar at National University Law School and a new member, was among those who attended the luncheon.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Marton Hysong and Mrs. Phillip Stach would give a beach party for the members of the club at Broadwater-on-the-Bay August 7. Mr. and Mrs. Hysong have just returned from Cincinnati, where they attended their son's commencement exercises.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Innocence of Ignorance.

For ignorance there's never use,
But knowledge never needs excuse.
—Old Mother Nature.

Sue had met Mrs. Snapping Turtle some distance from the Smiling Pool. Apparently Mrs. Snapper was going somewhere with a purpose. Sue's curiosity was aroused. At a safe distance she followed. In a furrow of a newly plowed piece of ground Mrs. Snapper stopped. She fussed around for a while and then she began to dig in the soft earth and gradually backed down in it until she was nearly covered with the loose earth. Then she stopped.

"It is tired," thought Sue. "The poor thing has made a long journey on land and is all tired out. Now it is resting. I won't bother it. I'll wait until it is rested and follow when it moves on."

But Mrs. Snapper didn't move on and Sue's patience became exhausted. It was too nice a morning to spend watching an ugly old Turtle even to satisfy curiosity. That noon Sue had a question for her cousin, Farmer Brown's Boy. "Tommy," said she, "I saw the biggest, ugliest old Turtle this morning when I went down to the Smiling Pool. Does a Turtle often come out on land?"

"Not the water Turtles," replied Tommy, shaking his head. "Some of them climb out on the edge of the shore or on logs or pieces of floating boards to take sun baths, but they always are where they can tumble into the water."

"This one wasn't. It was a great big thing, kind of horrid-looking and I met it a long way from the Smiling Pool. It was going away from the water. It hissed at me and it scared me. What was it going away from water for?" said Sue.

Tommy was all attention now. He had Sue describe that Turtle more fully. "It was Mrs. Snapper," he declared. "I wish I had been there. For a long time I have been trying to catch that old thief. She and Snapper have cost me plenty in the last few years taking my young ducks. What was she leaving the water for? To lay her eggs, of course. I don't suppose you knew where she finally went."

"I know where she stopped to rest. I watched a while waiting for her to move on, but I guess the poor thing was too tired and finally I left her there half buried in the earth," replied Sue.

"Where?" demanded Tommy.

"In that place where you and uncle have been plowing. The poor thing got all tired out trying to walk in those furrows," replied Sue.

"Tired my eye!" exclaimed Tom inelegantly but forcefully. "She went up there to lay her eggs. That is what she was doing when you thought she was resting. Do you think you could find that exact spot again?"

"I don't know. I guess I could. What do you want to find it for, Tommy?" Sue replied.

"To get those eggs," was the prompt respone. "Probably there are two or three dozen of them and I don't like to think of that many more Snapping Turtles in the Smiling Pool; I don't for a fact. Things are bad enough as they are with Snapper and Mrs. Snapper there. A few more like them and there will be no trout or other fish left there. I wish I had been with you, Sue."

Now the furrows of a plowed field look very much alike. She hadn't paid particular attention to just which furrow Mrs. Snapper had been in. It was late afternoon before they got back there, for a heavy shower had come up. When they did get there, not only had Mrs. Snapper left, but the marks she had left in crawling along those furrows had been washed away. There was nothing to indicate that she had been there. Sue couldn't remember the furrow and, as Tommy said, with nothing to go by looking for those eggs would be worse than looking for a needle in a haystack. Mrs. Snapper had accomplished her purpose without being discovered, thanks to the shower. Her eggs were laid and buried and Mrs. Snapper was back in the Smiling Pool and glad to be there.

Arts Club Lists July Calendar

Movies This Week, Program for Bastille Day Are on Schedule.

The July calendar for the Arts Club of Washington includes several events of interest to members who are not already off on vacations.

This evening, at 7 o'clock, Frank B. Steele, the president, will present an informal evening of motion pictures. The films will include scenes of skiing in St. Anton, Austria, before and after Hitler, taken by Jeanne Richards; an airplane trip to Venezuela, Mexico, Texas and New Orleans, all in color, and scenes from Italy, England and Scotland. There also will be still life slides of club members, it has been announced.

On Thursday, July 14—Bastille Day—the club will have, by request of members, an elaborated Montmartre Noctambule. In the afternoon there will be cards inside the clubhouse and on the balcony for which Mrs. Steele is taking reservations. From 6:30 to 9 in the evening, a plate dinner will be served in the garden and the plan of the Montmartre Noctambule, as carried out during the past few months under the leadership of Felian Garzia, will be followed.

M. and Mme. Garzia were responsible for the meetings during the winter months of Montmartre Noctambule in a quaint restaurant on Maryland avenue Southwest, which their group took over for a party every Saturday night. The program was always informal with the musicians and artists in the company taking part. M. and Mme. Garzia will be hosts for the affair on Bastille Day. In case of unsuitable weather, it will be postponed until the next night.

A club dinner also has been announced for Tuesday, July 19, at 7 p. m. when a "polite vaudeville" will be presented. Among the acts will be living marionettes, Lady Nimrod and her Dumb Friend and Monko, the Missing Link. Anne Darlington is chairman of the program with Miss Lydie Addison and Miss Mary Murray Lockwood as hostesses. A chafing dish supper Sunday evening, July 31, will close the month's activities.

At the Colony.

Mrs. Edward Savage Crocker, wife of the First Secretary of the American Embassy in Tokyo, has come from her country place, Bayberry Rocks, Kittery Point, Me., and is at the Colony Club.

THE WOMEN'S GUILD and Evening Auxiliary of Central Union Mission will hold an outing at Camp Bennett Saturday. The two groups are composed of business and professional women and homemakers interested in the free camp for underprivileged children and the Children's Emergency Home, which is also operated by the mission.

Mrs. William H. Ramsey is president of the guild and Miss Charlotte Darrow heads the auxiliary.

On Sunday the Mothers Club of Myra McCoy Andrews Day Nursery Association will meet at the camp, located near Brookeville, Md.

MRS. EMMET SEBREE, of Washington, professionally known as Dr. Margaret Sebree, was unanimously re-elected national president of Phi Delta Gamma, national sorority for graduate women, at the biennial convention held last week at Pocono Manor, Pa. Miss Mary Pearce, also of this city, was re-elected treasurer.

Dr. Sebree is a member of Alpha Chapter of American University Graduate School, and Miss Pearce of Beta Chapter, at George Washington University.

A reception was given last Wednesday in the Alpha Chapter rooms honoring Dr. Frederick Juchoff, patron founder of the organization and Mrs. Juckoff, first national honorary member of Chicago. Members of Chi Psi Omega, men's graduate fraternity, and their wives were among guests.

Delegates from Alpha Chapter were Mrs. Frederick Crocker, the president and Miss Elma Moulton. Others from Alpha who attended were Essie Marie Ross, Alma Preinkert, Mary Pendleton, Mrs. Ernest S. Griffith, wife of the dean of the graduate school at American, who was on vacation there with her husband; Leona Clark, of Chicago and Catherine Koch, of Pittsburgh, out-of-town members; Grace Johnson and Grace Gowens.

Zontians Called Sisters-in-Law Of the Kiwanis

E. S. Pardoe Points Out Both Clubs Bear Names of Indian Origin.

E. S. Pardoe, first vice president of the Kiwanis Club of Washington, was guest speaker yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Zonta Club, held at the Y. W. C. A. Pointing out that both clubs bore Indian names, he designated the Zontians as sister-in-laws of the Kiwanians.

The program yesterday was one of a series planned by the Zonta Club at which reresentatives of the men's service clubs will be invited to tell of the activities of their organizations.

Four of the 22 committees in the Kiwanis Club carry on its most imortant work, said Mr. Pardoe. The first of these is the committee for the underprivileged child which extends aid to the crippled children of Washington. Second, he named the vocational guidance committee which sponsors broadcasts weekly, designed to assist boys and girls of high school age in choosing their vocations; third the institutional entertainment committee, which provides band concerts for the Home for Incurables and fourth the child welfare committee which plans entertainment for the crippled children.

Albert W. Howard is chairman of the underprivileged child committee; John Althaus of that on vocational guidance; W. F. Smith of that on child welfare, and M. J. Uline of the committee on child welfare. Mr. Howard's committee has 100 cases on its list, he said.

Mr. Pardoe suggested that next season the Zonta Club send a representative to one of the meetings of the Kiwanians to tell them what Zonta is doing for the community.

Miss Emma T. Hahm, the president, has not returned from the convention of Zonta International in Canada, so Mrs. Elizabeth Cox presided at yesterday's meeting. Members present included Hettie P. Anderson, Elizabeth Beresford, Miriam Birdseye, S. Winifred Burwell, past president; Emily G. Dickinson, Alice Fay, Kathryn Fox, Esther C. M. Gude, Elizabeth Haney, Ann Harding, Ethel Hess, Vera Lundquist, Anna Muddiman, Mary W. Sigman, Louise Stambaugh, Helen Steinbarger, Nan R. Street, Marion Hines Taylor, Amelia Gude Thomas and Florence Thompson.

Sheridan Relief Corps Sets Meeting Tonight

The Phil Sheridan Woman's Relief Corps will have its regular meeting at 8 tonight at the Thomas Circle Club, 1326 Massachusetts avenue.

The corps is planning a cruise on the Potomac Saturday night, in charge of a committee including Mrs. Hattie Canada, Mrs. Addie W. Blackman, Mrs. Christine Laurie and Mrs. Isabelle Bontz.

A play, "A School of Today," is now in rehearsal, to be presented as a benefit on October 18. The proceeds of the production, which is being directed by Mrs. Addie W. Hickman, assisted by Miss Mary A. Howarth, will be asigned to relief fund of the Department of the Potomac, W. R. C.

Death Toll May Reach 1,000 as Flood Sweeps Through Japanese Port of Kobe

Americans in Danger as Water Cuts Through Japanese City.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), July 7.—A flood cut through the heart of Kobe today, leaving more than 400 dead and endangering scores of Americans.

A cloudburst yesterday morning swelled tons of water previously dammed by landslides, and the torrent suddenly surged into the city, the principal port of western Japan.

Fears were expressed that the final death toll in the newest of Japan's serious floods might reach 1,000. It followed inundations last week in which more than 861 persons were killed, injured or missing.

Some 60,000 houses were listed as damaged in the Kobe disaster. There was a shortage of drinking water.

At least five foreigners were known to have lost their lives, but it was believed there were no American casualties. Most Americans live on the lower slopes of the hills, some of which rise sharply to more than a half-mile in height.

Rain continued throughout the night and frightened residents who sought safety on higher ground.

"The best information shows between 400 and 480 dead, but so many buildings have been smashed that nobody can be certain," Frederick Taylor, native of Sacramento, Calif., told the Associated Press by telephone. A businessman, Taylor has lived in Kobe for 15 years.

Taylor said a Frenchman, a Russian, a German woman and two Portuguese children had died.

Three days of rain brought continuous landslides, he explained. Hills behind Kobe were described as slipping.

Taylor told of how a wall of water, 5 or 6 feet high, came down from the hills so fast that few in its path could escape. It smashed houses like matchboxes.

It cut through the middle of the residential district and surged with undiminished force into the business section.

The Nunobiki District of eastern Koke, near the adjacent city of Osaka, was said to have suffered the heaviest damage. Japan's chief industrial city — Osaka — reported eight dead there Tuesday.

Taylor said there was no panic in Kobe in the night, even though "everybody is awake." Troops were not called out, but units of a militarized youth organization aided police in rescue work.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

CAPITAL CAPERS: Never has a Congressman taken his job more seriously than has Hugh Rigney, the Illinois editor . . . Colleagues say that he has been so fearful of missing a single word of wisdom on the floor of the House that rather than take time out for lunch he has sat clear through each session, nibbling at concentrated food in tablet form.

* * * *

Senator Connally. . . . safe distance.

Like any other father, President Roosevelt probably beams at the reflection that his son, Col. Jimmy, by the time he was 29, amassed more income than the governor has earned in all his life . . . Such industry by a son takes a tremendous load of worry off a father's shoulders.

* * * *

Gossip travels like the wind in Washington and people draw their own conclusions from it as if it were gospel . . . One noon I ate lunch with Constantine Oumansky, Counselor of the Russian Legation, and that evening I was twitted on my "revolutionary sympathies."

Next day I ate lunch with Mark Sullivan and by nightfall was forced to defend myself against the accusation of being a conservative.

"—reveille for a Cabinet member."

Although I'm inclined to disbelieve it myself, I must record for historians the tale that Harold Ickes, the dour Secretary of the Interior, begins each day at his office with a brisk rubdown, around the middle of the morning.

After 15 minutes of tweaking and pummeling he is fit as a fiddle and raring to regulate the interior of the Republic, as the story goes.

* * * *

Amid all his other onerous tasks, the Republic's most eminent stamp collector also approves designs for new postage stamps . . . Thus his numismatic taste has stamped its approval on the most spectacular series of commemoratives ever issued in America; generations yet unborn will pore over his selections with magnifying glasses and forceps . . . And who knows—these stamps may prove as memorable as anything else in this kaleidoscopic era—though I doubt it.

* * * *

OLYMPIAN FOIBLES: The Arizona Socrates, Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst, is so Chesterfieldian in his manner that he can use words like "foul" and "flatulent" in a speech on the Senate floor and make them sound like the veritable perfume of courtly discourse . . . (He could use the word "lousy" with elegance.) . . . The heroically meek Senator from Colorado, Edwin Carl Johnson, carries not an ordinary brief case, but an elegant dispatch bag of saddle leather, after the fashion of British statesmen . . . Its interior is divided into compartments with leather separations and he plants it alongside his desk with the air of an humble Gladstone.

"—a diplomatic incident."

If Secretary Hull or Sumner Welles ever wants a diplomat for an especially ticklish assignment let them cast an eye at Robert, the head waiter, who has had years of experience in diplomacy at Washington's swankest rendezvous.

One evening Senator Connally, of Texas, had reserved a table and Robert had charted him for the one next to Senator Wagner's usual table.

* * * *

As Robert guided Connally and lady to their place he remembered that he had read in the late editions that these two Senators had exchanged Jovian blows in the Senate that afternoon.

* * * *

An eagle-eyed bureaucrat recently discerned another of those tiny decorations in a magazine advertisement, which, under the magnifying glass, turned out to be a questionable reference to an Eminent Gentleman . . . He quickly notified the Secret Service . . . But the G-men already had the culprit in the toils.

* * * *

The indulgent Government presents each Representative, at the end of each session, with a steamer trunk and two boxes, in which to take home his bound copies of the Record and such other knickknacks as he may wish to treasure . . . A Senator gets only one box . . . The theory behind this is that it's always a gamble whether a Representative will be back and that he might as well take home everything.

U. S. Workers Hear Mitchell On 'Orders'

Civil Service President Urges Efficiency to Aid Democracy.

Federal employes "can do more to protect democracy in the United States than any other group in the country," Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, told a meeting of Government workers at the Burlington Hotel last night.

In his first public address on the executive orders of June 24 extending the civil service, Mitchell urged efficiency on Government employes.

"The most important thing for people in the Government service is to show that democracy is efficient," he said. "If democracies can't run their own affairs—and there is going to be more and more Government business to be performed—then despite our boasted liberties democracy may come to an end."

At the same meeting, held under auspices of Department of Labor Local, No. 12, United Federal Workers of America, Commissioner of Labor Statistics Isador Lubin said that the wage-hour act is "a swell law—but I wouldn't want to administer it." Lubin has been frequently referred to as possible future administrator of the law.

Orders "A Great Step."

Commissioner Mitchell asserted that the Presidential orders blanketing many thousands of Federal employes into civil service and revising the rules of the merit system were "a great step in advance for the able and efficient employe."

"The fewer positions outside the merit system, the greater opportunity for the civil service employe to rise," Mitchell pointed out. Expressing the hope that Congress will permit the President to extend civil service to agencies now excluded by law, Mitchell said the system should provide opportunities for advancement "from the lowest rung of the ladder to the highest."

The commissioner added that advancement opportunities had been greatly increased through the provision that promotions must be made whenever possible from the ranks of the agency where the vacancy occurs.

Mitchell declared that under the executive orders "the Civil Service Commission can now do a little more toward seeing there is less favoritism and prejudice than possibly there has been in the past."

Citing the "very satisfactory" results from the conciliation committee established within the Civil Service Commission, Mitchell urged organization of similar committees in every department.

Re-exemption Predicted.

"A great many" of the 130,000 employes technically eligible for the merit system under the orders will be re-exempted from the permanent civil service, Mitchell said. "Take the secretaries at the White House, for example. I don't imagine the next President would want to retain the secretaries of the present President. Laughter greeted the remark, to the evident confusion of the commissioner.

In describing the wage-hour law, Lubin said, "I'm willing to bet right now that every industry in the United States is going to claim exemption on the grounds that it's a seasonal industry."

Lubin maintained that many industries that are now run on a seasonal basis can level out their employment figures by judicious management—even the ice cream industry.

"The administrator of the wage-hour law can make great progress in forcing industries to iron out their seasonal claims by being very sparing in granting exemptions from the provisions of the act," he said. Lubin cautioned the future administrator "not to do all this the first year," however.

Personnel Scarce.

"The most acute problem facing the administrator is in personnel," Lubin said. "It's going to be difficult to get personnel with sufficient knowledge to operate the law." He added that if his Bureau of Labor Statistics is asked to co-operate with the new Division of Wages and Hours, "we would want at least 20 industrial experts who know the insides of industry." Lubin expressed doubt that he would find them on the civil service lists.

Lubin said that "the present bill frankly, is far better than any of us had hoped."

Miss Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer of U. F. W. A., echoed Mitchell's remark that the Executive orders of June 24 "are the most important step in the advancement of civil service since the passage of the act in 1883."

Urging Government unions to participate in the working out of the new regulations, she said, "we definitely believe that a democracy can handle governmental matters more efficiently than any dictatorship."

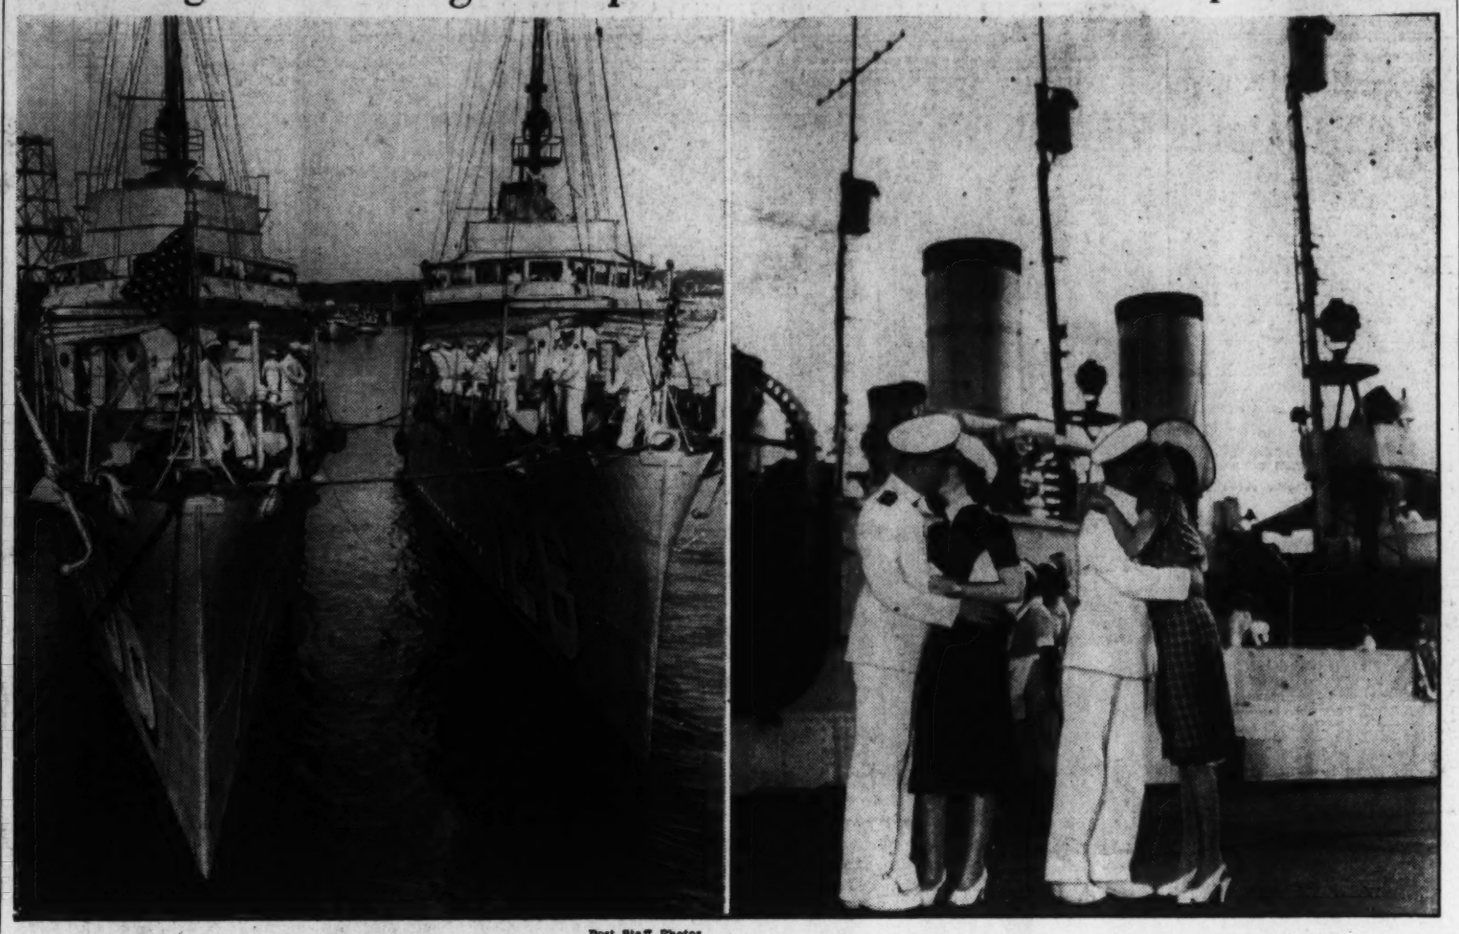
Miss Helen Schnetzler, president of Local No. 12, presided.

Earlier in the day, the Civil Service Commission issued its May statistics, showing that the number of Federal workers in the District of Columbia had jumped 725 since April, to 114,544.

Total employment in the executive branch of the Government in May was 840,742, an increase over April of 13,502. The pay roll was $124,951,733, about $1,000,000 more than in April.

Greatest increases in employment were in the War, Agriculture and Interior departments and the TVA, respectively. During the month, the Social Security Board dropped 873 employes, most of whom were temporary.

Contingent of Cruising Midshipmen to Look Over Guns—and Capital Girls



Post Staff Photos.

One hundred and sixty midshipmen on the summer's second coastal cruise arrived at the Washington Navy Yard early last night after a visit to the proving grounds at Dahlgren, Va. Two of the six trim destroyers carrying the sailors to coastal points are shown tied up at the navy yard. Two of the midshipmen who were fortunate enough to have girl friends here are shown in right picture. Left to right are Louis Strum, of Florida; Sally Fleming, Paul Thompson, of California, and Roberta Habicht. The midshipmen will go through the naval gun factory today and then head for Newport, R. I. They will return to Annapolis in the first week of August.

Woman Is Burned By Match on Dress

Mrs. Marjorie Rose, 21, was severely burned late yesterday when she dropped a lighted match into the lap of her dress in her apartment at 1422 Twenty-second street southeast.

The match slipped from her hand as she lit a cigarette. Her husband, James, 24, tried to beat out the blaze with his hands and was badly burned about his hands and arms.

At Gallinger physicians said Mrs. Rose had suffered second-degree burns of her arms, chest, legs and abdomen, and her condition was serious.

Rumanian Flier in the Capital Arranging for Homeland Hop

Capt. Papana Hopes to Take Off Next Week; King Carol Sponsoring Journey to Encourage Air-Mindedness.

Capt. Alex Papana, olive-skinned Rumanian flier, who hopes to take off next week in a flight from Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., to his homeland, yesterday spent a busy day here arranging with officials of the Commerce and State departments for permits for the exploit.

Emphasizing that the flight is being made under the patronage of King Carol, he said in an interview that his specially built plane will carry 1,300 gallons of gas and will fly 150 miles an hour at an altitude of 10,000 feet during the trip.

Papana said he was making the journey "first for my own fun, and for the greater culture and knowledge of aeronautics it is giving me. You must remember I have been studying and preparing for this flight for the past two years.

"Second, to prove that such a flight is perfectly safe — granted modern, efficient equipment—and thus to hurry the development of transatlantic transport flying.

"Third, and most important, to stimulate in my country what you Americans call 'air-mindedness' among children, young people and officials."

The 32-year-old flyer, who looks ten years younger, arrived at College Park Airport Tuesday to have the 100-watt radio transmitter and other wireless equipment checked by the Bendix Radio Corporation located here. During his stay in the National Capital he has been a guest at the Rumanian Legation.

The flying controls of his plane are so delicately adjusted that they will operate themselves while he is studying his maps or broadcasting from his transmitter.

Papana hopes to make the hop from New York to Bucharest in 30 hours. For nourishment he will carry tea, coffee, some sandwiches and "a bottle of champagne so I can drink a toast to myself when I sight Ireland."

Pre-Broadcast Test Given Labor Radio Programs

"The Labor Parade," the first regular radio program to be arranged by any national labor organization, last night was given a pre-broadcast performance at 726 Eleventh street northwest. Sponsored by the American Federation of Labor, the transcribed 15-minute broadcast will be carried by 59 stations next week.

Walter Compton, in charge of the production, said 50 stations have agreed to use the 13 programs, to be distributed monthly starting next week. Nine other stations are taking the program on a tentative basis. He said all the stations were donating the radio time without charge; WOL will broadcast the program in Washington.

Programs will deal with noncontroversial subjects, Compton emphasized.

Communist March To ExcoriatePolice

Local headquarters of the communist party yesterday said a parade, to protest against alleged "police murder in the District of Columbia," will go through part of northwest Washington tomorrow night.

Marchers will form at Tenth and U streets northwest at 7 o'clock, marching to Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. The National Negro Congress has indorsed the parade.

39-Year Veteran Is Retired From Federal Service

After 39 years of service to the Federal Government, including 21 at Coast Guard headquarters here, Miss May H. Dickinson retired yesterday.

Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, presented Miss Dickinson with flowers and a traveling bag in behalf of her friends and associates at Coast Guard headquarters.

Miss Dickinson was born at Montclair, N. J., and was first appointed to the Treasury Department on January 28, 1893.

After serving in the Division of Loans and Currency in the Treasury Department for some years, she transferred to the Coast Guard on October 24, 1916, and since has served continuously in the Finance Division.

Robert H. Worrall Assigned to Hawaii

Robert H. Worrall, of the Navy Department, has been transferred to the Naval Research Laboratory in Hawaii for three years.

A radio engineer at the Naval Research Laboratory here since 1923, Worrall, 45, plans to take his 11-year-old son with him. He lives at 2618 Thirty-second street southeast.

President Picks Rockville Pike Hospital Site

Roosevelt Virtually Decided on 214-Acre Tract for Naval Infirmary.

Location of the new $5,000,000 naval hospital on a 214-acre tract opposite the National Health Institute on the Rockville pike virtually has been determined by President Roosevelt after a visit to the site several days ago.

Rear Admiral Perceval S. Rossiter, chief of the Navy Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, who accompanied the President and Capt. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, on the tour of inspection, yesterday called on the President with maps and plans.

Commenting on the site Admiral Rossiter declared last night that Mr. Roosevelt seemed very much impressed with it and added he hoped the President would have time to decide on the hospital's location before starting West this evening.

The tract of land now under consideration lies on the east side of the Rockville pike and is bounded on the south by the Jones Bridge road. On the north it abuts the country estate of George E. Hamilton. Its eastern edge is the northern boundary of the Columbia Country Club.

Congress has authorized the expenditure of $4,850,000 for construction of the hospital to replace the present medical center at Twenty-third street and Constitution avenue. More than a third of the sum has been appropriated and purchase of the land and actual construction work can begin as soon as the site has been decided on.

Plans call for a large central building to house administrative functions, kitchens and operating and examining rooms. Pavilions near the main hospital would be erected to house patients and the staff.

It has not yet been determined what will be done with the old hospital.

Navy Orders Tin.

The Navy Department yesterday announced award of a $87,373 contract to the H. P. Winter Co., of New York City, for 201,600 pounds of tin to be delivered to the Naval Clothing Depot, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Policeman Recalls Violator's Number When Car Is Hit

His memory for a license number yesterday won Private Fred L. Stouffer the commendation of Lieut. Walter H. Thomas, of the First Precinct, and set police looking for a hit-run driver.

Stouffer, attached to the Eighth Precinct, was called to investigate a crash in which a 1928 sedan tore off the rear fender and part of the running board of Lieut. Thomas' car, parked in front of his home at 6517 Barnaby street northwest.

A neighbor, Mrs. Lyman B. Tibbetts, of 6520 Barnaby street northwest, saw the crash, and noted the first three numbers of the colliding car before it drove away.

Private Stouffer recalled the numbers as those on a car of a colored man he had arrested in February.

Third Gettysburg Veteran in 1 Day Dies After Rally

Gettysburg, Pa., July 6 (AP).—A third veteran of the Civil War—one who did not see the "last reunion" of the Blue and Gray he had traveled hundreds of miles to attend—died tonight as former comrades and foes neared their homes.

John W. Weaver, 95, of Madrow, Okla., succumbed to heart disease in a Gettysburg hospital. A similar cause was ascribed for the deaths, earlier in the day, of John W. Cooper, 91, of Largo, Fla., also a former Confederate soldier, and Daniel T. Price, 91, of Marion, Ind., a member of the Union Army.

Weaver arrived for the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg June 29, and was taken to the hospital the next day.

Meanwhile Col. Paul R. Hawley, commandant of the Army's Medical Field Service School at nearby Carlisle, who had charge of looking after the health of the 1,980 veterans who came to this battlefield town for the observance, was called to his home in College Corner, Ohio, because of his father's death.

Fewer Taxis Likely in D. C. After July 15

By Edward T. Folliard

Washington, which has more taxicabs than any city of its size in the world, won't have quite so many after July 15, according to indications yesterday. That is the date when the hackers get their annual licenses. Faced this year with the necessity of taking out compulsory liability insurance, many of them have indicated that they won't bother to apply for licenses.

It is expected that 200, possibly more, will thus go out of business. Even so, Washington still will have about 4,600 cabs—more than Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh combined.

How much the compulsory insurance will cost has not yet been worked out. It all will depend on whether a cab owner is a member of an association or is a lone wolf. In the latter case, the insurance probably would cost close to $1 a day, an important item of overhead in a field already overcrowded and fiercely competitive.

Part-Timers Jam Field.

This city has a number of part-time hackers. Working by day for the Federal and District Governments and for private firms, they drive cabs in the evening and at night, thereby intensifying the competition.

It is expected that most of these will withdraw from the field because of the insurance burden.

The hackers who depend altogether on their cabs for a livelihood have been complaining for years about these part-time rivals, and in this they have had the sympathy of the Public Utilities Commission. Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the P. U. C., grants that some of these part-time hackers get small salaries and have large families. But on the whole, he said, the P. U. C. has long felt that they constituted an "unfair encroachment."

Effective August 29.

Congress, in passing the compulsory insurance law, provided that it should go into effect in 60 days, which would make the effective date August 29. If it results in a reduction in the number of cabs, that will be welcomed by the P. U. C.

In its last annual report, and in previous reports, the P. U. C. emphasized the need of placing a reasonable limitation on cabs. Such a limitation, it said, would bring two benefits: Relieve traffic congestion and permit drivers to make a better living.

The great number and variety of taxicabs in Washington is always a delightful surprise to the visitor. As for the reasons for this great number, there are several. First, there is the huge tourist trade. Then there is the low fare, and, finally, the circumstances that Washington is a prosperous city. A cab driver, who testified before a Congressional committee, explained it better.

"In the old days," he said, "the only people who rode in cabs were drunks, rich men and fools. But it is different now. Taxicabs are no longer a luxury in Washington."

National League All-Stars Beat Americans, 4 to 1

The Washington Post Sports

16 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1938 ****

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

1 p. m.—OOOOOH—Joe Di Maggio hits three balls over the leftfield fence in batting practice and National League supporters feel like calling off all bets.

POVICH

1:05 p. m.—Jimmy Foxx makes Di-Maggio's batting practice homers look like bunts with an enormous drive against the houses across the street from leftfield. He literally sends the ball to the cleaners, for it goes through the window of the Superior Towel and Laundry Service.

1:08 p. m.—Earl Averill hits two balls into the centerfield bleachers.

1:09 p. m.—Buddy Lewis hits a high, towering fly and—

1:09½ p. m.—Lewis' fly ball fails to reach the centerfield seats but lands at the base of the fence.

1:14 p. m.—Somebody has been talking to Bill Terry, probably President Ford Frick of the National League. Because Terry makes an announcement that he was only fooling about refusing newspapermen entrance to the National League dressing room. They can come in if they like, he says.

* * * *

1:20 p. m.—Five bucks will still get you nine if you think the National League is going to win this one.

1:25—Al Schacht begins to work for his $150 and expenses for clowning.

Schacht knocks off for the day after his slow-motion act in which an imaginary hitter knocks an imaginary ball over an imaginary fence for an imaginary homer just after Schacht has called in his imaginary outfields in an imaginary insult to the imaginary batter.

1:30—Strike one. It's Johnny Vander Meer's first pitch and Kreevich just stands and looks most disinterested.

1:31—Kreevich is no longer disinterested. He hits Vander Meer's fourth pitch and sends a line drive to Mel Ott in centerfield.

1:39—Yippee. Cincinnati citizens whoop it up as Vander Meer, the Dutch treat, retires the American Leaguers one-two-three in the first inning.

1:41—So that's Joe Cronin, is it? Well, he just muffed Billy Herman's easy grounder and there's two on and none out in the first inning.

* * * *

1:43—No cheers for Ival Goodman. He just struck out.

1:44—1-0 in favor of the National League. Medwick brings Hack home from third with a long fly.

1:46—Vander Meer vs. Jimmy Foxx.

1:47—Sound effects—mobs yelling, backs being slapped. Foxx has just struck out. Atta boy, our Vandy.

1:48—Joe DiMaggio up.

1:48½—Joe DiMaggio out, pitcher to first.

1:54—That bum Cronin is up.

1:55—That bum Cronin makes the American Leaguers' first hit of the game—a single to left that starts the third inning.

2:00—It's big Bill Lee of the Cubs now pitching for the Nationals.

2:11—The citizens have that sinking feeling as Lee walks Gehringer the first man to face him.

2:15—The citizens are feeling better. Lee has just fanned DiMaggio for the third out and no damage.

2:19—Ott's not so good. But the National Leaguers think he's plenty good. Because he just tripled against the center field fence with one out in the fourth.

2:20—Lombardi's all right, too. He just singled past Buddy Lewis to drive in Ott and boost the Nationals' lead to 2 to 0.

2:26—That sinking feeling again. Hack and Durocher lose Bill Dickey's pop fly in the sun and it falls behind third base for a cheap double, with none out in the fifth.

* * * *

2:29—It's a beautiful day in Cincinnati, because the American Leaguers didn't score in that fifth inning.

2:30—Manager Joe McCarthy has an idea. He shifts Jimmy Foxx to third base at the end of 4½ innings and puts Lou Gehrig on first.

2:35—Cramer bats for Kreevich in sixth and does nothing that Kreevich couldn't do. He grounds out.

2:40—Nice work, Lee. Nice third strike you slapped past Averill for the third out.

2:49—The American League's first legitimate hit since the third inning. Johnny Allen makes it. He hits Goodman in the back with a pitched ball.

2:57—Hey, this is getting serious. Two out, bases full and Joe McCarthy is sending Rudy York up to hit for Johnny Allen.

2:58—Mace Brown has other ideas and strikes out Rudy York.

2:59—Courtesy of Western Union.

3:04—Lefty Grove pitches a centerfield single to Frank McCormick.

3:05—Durocher lays down a sacrifice bunt toward Jimmy Foxx.

3:05½—What's going on here, anyway? DiMaggio picks up Foxx's wild throw and makes a wild throw on his own account—over Dickey's head—and Durocher scores.

3:21—Ninth inning.

3:22—DiMaggio singles to left.

3:23—Dickey gets an extra-base

6 Deadlock In British Open Event

18-Year-Old Jim Bruen Joins 5 Others to Lead List.

By Scotty Reston.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandwich, Eng., July 6.—Swaggering through the rain with a great Turkish towel over his head, 18-year-old Jimmy Bruen, Irish Walker cup sensation, raced around the royal St. George's course in 70 strokes today and tied five others for the lead in the first round of the British open golf championship.

Coming to the home green with a 30-foot putt for the lead, he sent the ball spinning across the tricky turf into the heart of the cup but his direction was better than his length and the ball hopped out.

Also winding up with 70s were Johnny Fallon, the medalist, and Jim Adams, of Scotland, Marcel Dallemagne, of France, and Ernie Whitcombe and Bill Cox, of England. Henry Cotton, the defending champion, had to fight for his 74.

Cloudburst Hurts Star.

Whitcombe had a great chance to lead the field. He was out in 32 and needed a pair of fours on the last two holes for a 68 but a cloudburst hit him on the seventeenth and he took two fives.

Seven players, including two more Whitcombes, Reginald and Charles, turned in 71s. The only Whitcombe to spoil the family record was young Eddie, son of Ernie, who had a 77. In the 71 bracket were Alf Perry, former champion; J. J. Busson, Bert Gadd, E. W. Jarman and R. Burton.

Scrambling all the way, Cotton wound up in twenty-seventh place at the end of the first day. He was pretty lucky to get his 74. The champion, putting with stiff armed inefficiency, was out in 37 but could not improve on that coming home as he visited five bunkers. He was twice trapped at the twelfth but exploded dead for a four. This recovery and a vast putt at the thirteenth kept him from skidding entirely out of reach.

Cotton Is Angry.

Infuriated with his game and throwing the ball down on the greens when his putts stayed out, Cotton fled through the crowd at the finish without even stopping at the clubhouse.

The day's two heavy rainstorms caused plenty of confusion and put at least one record on the books. This accomplishment was charged to T. S. Mackay. He took 14 strokes at the fourteenth and tied the "worst score" record for the open, established 13 years ago.

One of the happiest players in the field was the five-time champion, Jim Braid. Now 68, Braid posted a 74 that tied him with Cotton.

Seven players posted 72s—Jack McLean, J. L. Black, R. G. French, T. B. Haliburton, David Lewis, Sam Roberts and Norman Sutton.

Radio Station Sued By Pittsburgh Club

Pittsburgh, July 6 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Baseball Club and three other plaintiffs today filed suit in Federal court for $100,000 damages and asked a court order restraining radio Station KQV from "pirating" resumes of Pirate games.

The baseball club, the National Broadcasting Co., General Mills, Inc., and the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., asked Judge F. P. Schoonmaker for the preliminary injunction. A hearing will be held next Tuesday.

Semi-Finals of County Tennis Play Saturday

The semifinals and final rounds of the Prince Georges County tennis tournament are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday on the club courts. The semifinals start at 2:30 p. m., Saturday, while on Sunday the finals will get under way at 3 p. m.

The semifinal match between Spencer Chase, last year's county singles champion, and John Conroy, who has shown excellent form in recent play, will be watched with unusual interest, as the winner of this match will probably be crowned the 1938 titleholder.

Don Irwin Balks At Salary Boost.

Utica, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—Don Irwin, former star Colgate University fullback, said today he would send back, unsigned, his contract received from the Washington Redskins, world's professional football champion.

Irwin said the salary increase offered him was "not large enough."

Reputedly one of the ten highest paid pro stars last year, Irwin said th eapproaching season would probably be his last. He said the Redskins were ordered to report to Washington August 10 for training.

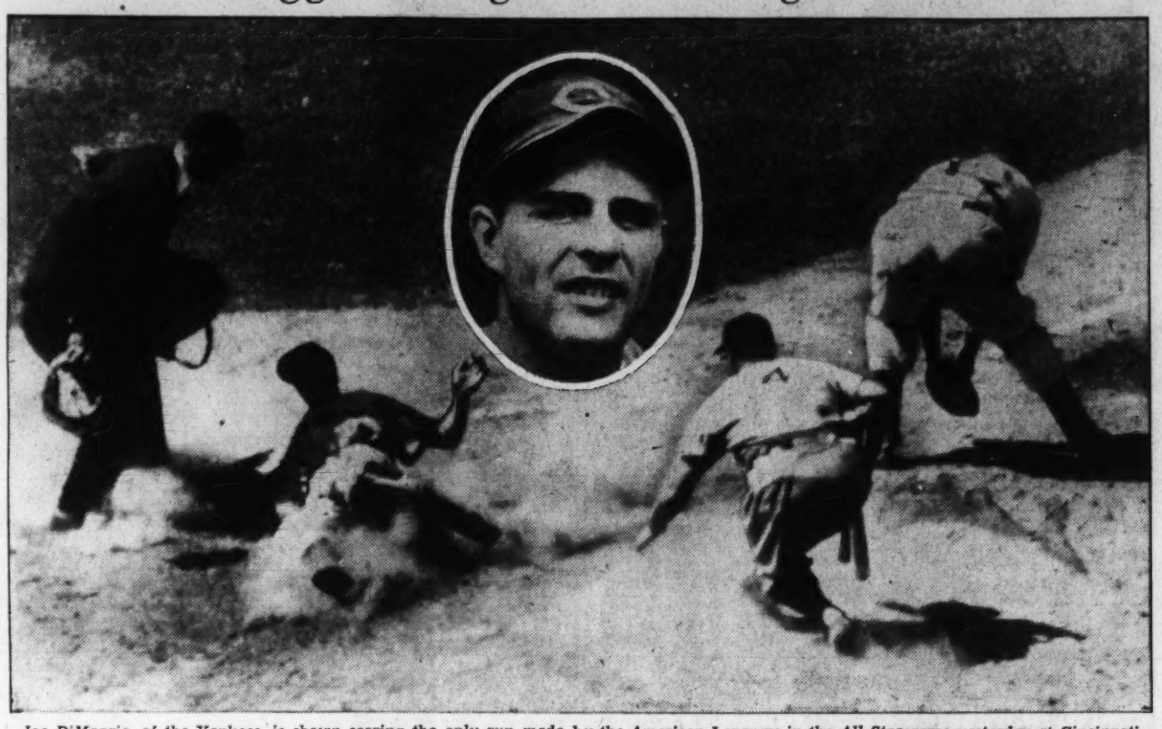
Joe DiMaggio Scoring American League's Lone Run



Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, is shown scoring the only run made by the American Leaguers in the All-Star game yesterday at Cincinnati. It came in the ninth. Lombardi, of Cincinnati, is the catcher. Rudy York, of Detroit, holds bats. Inset—Johnny Vander Meer, the Reds' pitching ace, who allowed only one hit and no runs in his three innings. Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Rudy Wore Himself Out

Detroit Catcher Did All His Hitting in Practice.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, July 6—Rudy York, the Detroit Tigers' big home run man, had a field day in batting practice before the big game. He slapped five clear out of the lot and had the National League fans worried. But when he came up as a pinch-hitter with two out and the bases loaded in the seventh, Mace Brown calmly struck him out.

* * * *

The three National League pitchers among them struck out only five men, incidentally, but they did it three times with men on the sacks and two out.

* * * *

Mel Ott's fourth inning triple was the longest drive of the day. It traveled some 385 feet to hit the low barrier in front of the bleachers in right center field and bounded back half way to second base before Earl Averill finally ran it down.

* * * *

The Cincinnati brigade came through nobly, even Frank McCormick finally dumping a single into centerfield to break a protracted slump that has had the home-town fans crying in their beer.

* * * *

Terry didn't explain why he failed to use his own Carl Hubbell on the mound after letting the veteran southpaw warm up, but it is well known that Carlos is beginning to feel his summers and winters and that Terry is giving him all the rest he can these days. Hub scarcely could have improved on the pitching done by Vander Meer and Lee, but he might have spared the National League Partisans some bad moments after Brown went in for the last three innings.

* * * *

For the last half of the contest the American League infield looked like a delegation from the old folks' manor. Some one figured that the combined ages of Jimmie Foxx, Joe Cronin, Charley Gehringer and Lou Gehrig would read like the box office report.

* * * *

Bill Terry's strategy in assigning Stan Hack to third base, with Mel Ott moving to center, paid defense dividends. The Chicago third sacker was a stone wall. He stopped potential base hits off the bats of Johnny Allen in the fifth and Roger Cramer, in the eighth. His teammate, Billy Herman, robbed Lou Gehrig of a hit with a great running scoop of Lou's grass cutter, back of first, in the fifth.

* * * *

Vander Meer's family, which came from Midland Park, N. J., at the Cincinnati Club's expense, led the cheering for Johnny when he left the game. The southpaw was the big pre-game target for autograph seekers and candid camera operatives, but he handled himself like a veteran, in every respect. Art Fletcher, Yankee coach, remarked that Vander Meer didn't seem so "swift" as Bob Grove was, in his prime, but conceded the younster had "plenty of stuff."

* * * *

The Nationals had two runs batted in, by Medwick and Lombardi, and two "thrown in," by Foxx and DiMaggio. The only American error that didn't figure in the scoring was Bill Dickey's wild heave into centerfield in the sixth, as Ival Goodman stole second. Goodman went to third but was stranded as Ott fanned and Lombardi grounded out.

Bronko Nagurski Will Quit Gridiron

Minneopolis, July 6 (AP).—Bronko Magurski, member of the Chicago Bears professional football team, announced today he wil foregoe footbal this season to tour Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa, defending his claims to the world heavyweight wrestling championship.

Nagurski played three years of football at the University of Minnesota, winning all-America recognition in 1929, before joining the Bears. He gained his wrestling honers from Dean Detton more than a year ago.

'Minor Leaguers Beat 'Em,' Says Bill Terry

Junior Circuit Group Prefers to Forget the Whole Thing; McCarthy Has Little to Say.

Cincinnati, July 6 (AP).—"Well, the minor leaguers beat 'em," was Bill Terry's one comment today as his National League All-Stars trooped into the dressing room and proceeded to take advantage of their second chance in six years to whoop it up after a victory over the American League's gems.

* * * *

Over in the American clubhouse words were few. Finishing on the short end of a 4-to-1 count turned the annual "dream" contest into a nightmare for the junior leaguers.

* * * *

Moses "Lefty" Grove, of Boston, who was hurling when Jimmie Foxx, his teammate, and Joe DiMaggio, slugging outfielder of the Yanks, presented the Nationals with a brace of runs on a couple of wild throws in the seventh, summed up the Americans' attitude with: "Let's forget it, I need a cold beer."

* * * *

Joe McCarthy, of the Yanks, skipper of the American star-studded contingent, offered this pertinent answer to the old question, "Do you think a single game like this means anything?"

"Well, it means a lot to the old-timers." (The game receipts go into a fund to aid needy, retired players.)

* * * *

Ford Frick, prexy of the National, collared Tom Meany, New York sports writer who first dubbed the National "the new minor league" and asked: "Well, what do you think of us now?"

"You guys should pay me for getting you mad," Meany answered.

* * * *

Foxx, who struck out in the second frame as Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati's sensational no-hit flinger, whipped a fast one by him, admitted that the Redleg was "getting better all the time."

"We played a dozen spring games against the Reds, and Vandy didn't seem so tough then, but he really had it today," Foxx said.

* * * *

Vander Meer, getting rubbed down, said his arm felt fine and that his curve was working well, his contention being backed up by the fact the Americans got but one blow, Joe Cronin's single to left, in three innings he toiled.

* * * *

Bob Feller, Cleveland's sophomore star, was not disappointed that he didn't get a chance to hurl against the National loop's best.

"There's plenty of time for me to get into one of these games," Bob said. "Anyway, I wouldn't have been much good. I've got a blister on my hand and can't throw a curve, and as soon as those fellows found out I didn't have a curve, they'd have started teeing off on me."

* * * *

Mace Brown, Pittsburgh's relief star and fast baller, said the three and two pitch with which he fanned pinch-hitter Rudy York, of Detroit, with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh, would have been a ball if Rudy hadn't swung and missed. The ball was across the plate, but below York's knees, Brown said.

* * * *

Terry chimed in with: "It took a lot of intestinal fortitude for Mace to throw that fast one in a spot like that." (Terry, however, spelled the "intestinal fortitude" in four letters with a capital "G").

* * * *

McCarthy, chagrined at the way his sluggers failed to slug, parried questions on what he thought of the game with:

"You felows had better seats than I did. You should have seen what happened."

Enraged Galento Challenges Baer To 'Take-All' Bout

Orange, N. J., July 6 (AP).—An enraged Tony Galento today challenged Max Baer, California's playboy-pugilist, to a winner-take-all match.

Tony hit the celling after reading Maxie's blast from Little Rock, Ark., at the National Boxing Association's rating of Galento as second only to Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. Baer was ranked third.

"He ridicules my posing while drinking beer," snorted Tony. "I never pose in the ring. How can anyone forget Baer's pose on one knee when he quit to Joe Louis?"

The two-ton tavern keeper said Promoter Harry Mendel, of Newark would deposit $50,000 in any bank Baer chooses if Baer would sign to meet Galento on a winner-take-all basis.

Col. Harvey L. Miller, chairman of the National Boxing Association's championship rating committee, said the group had no apologies to make for ranking Tony Galento as chief challenger to Joe Louis.

"A good way to get Galento out of the N. B. A. ratings," Miller said, "is to defeat him in the ring. He has been challenging Louis for years."

"Galento," said Miller, "has been knocking out his opponents, accepting matches regardless of the style, color or reputation, so there can be no excuse on the part of heavyweights not boxing him."

MaxPlanning A 'Comeback'

Schmeling, Out on Sea, Talks of New Bouts.

By Robert Frey.

Aboard steamship Bremen, at Sea, July 6.—Former Heavyweight Champion Max Schmeling, returning to his homeland with a severe back injury suffered in his recent fight with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, declared today he would make another comeback "if doctors are willing."

Confined to a bed with his back braced by strips of adhesive tape, Max said he hoped to return to the United States in the fall to fight Tommy Farr, of Wales.

"Then," Max said, "if I win I'd like to fight Louis a third time."

Max was propped up in bed, wearing blue-striped pajamas, when I visited him. A phonograph blared forth swing music—Max's favorite way of passing time on this trip to Germany. Sitting with him was his faithful trainer and old friend, Mux Machon.

Max sported a blue-black stubble of beard and appeared to be happy despite his injury.

Asked whether a blow to the kidneys or his fall to the canvas caused his back injury—a fractured transverse process—Max said:

"I'm sure Louis' blow to my back caused it and not the fall. That is because after the blow I did not know what was happening. My fall to the floor was just an ordinary one and it could not possibly cause so severe an injury.

On Max's dressing table was a picture of his wife, Anny Ondra, German motion picture star. I asked Max whether it was because of her that he planned to continue his ring career. Max smiled and answered:

"As far as that goes, I'm the boss of the family.

"It's up to the doctors whether I can fight again."

Play-by-Play Details in All-Star Game

FIRST INNING.

Americans—Kreevich, after taking a called strike, clouted a long fly to center field embankment that Ott caught on the run after first misjudging the ball.

Gehringer bounded out, Vander Meer to McCormick. The young southpaw was keeping the ball around the knees of the Americans' heavy artillery men and showing good control. Averill was tossed out on an easy roller, Herman to McCormick, as the crowd let loose a big cheer.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Nationals—Hack lined a single over Cronin's head after fouling three balls into the stands behind the plate. Herman's sharp grounder went through Cronin for an error. Hack raced to third and Herman was safe at first. It looked as though the shortstop tried to start the prospective double play before getting his hands on the ball. Goodman took a called third strike on a curve that broke low over the outside corner, after fouling several into the stands. Medwick drove a long fly to Averill and Hack scored standing up after the catch. Ott lifted to Averill in short center.

SECOND INNING.

Americans—Foxx fanned, swinging hard at a fast curve, after Medwick had missed his high foul that dropped near the left-field wall. The crowd gave Vandy a terrific cheer as he retired the American League's No. 1 slugger. Vander Meer made a nice play by dashing half way to third base to grab DiMaggio's hopper and then whirl to retire the Yankee clouter. Herman tossed out Dickey on an easy roller.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Nationals—Lewis speared Lombardi's ground smash with his gloved hand and tossed out the big backstop. McCormick poped the first pitch to Gehringer. Durocher rolled out. Cronin to Foxx.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

THIRD INNING.

After working the count to three balls and two strikes, Buddy Lewis drove Mel Ott to the base of the center-field stands with a long fly. Cronin held first base.

Gomez's hopper to the box bounded so high that Vander Meer barely had time to make the put-out after the ball came down. Cronin advanced to second. Kreevich popped to Herman, who made the catch on the grass behind first base. The crowd gave Vander Meer an ovation as he completed his three-inning job of holding the Americans in check.

Nationals—Hank Leiber, Giants' outfielder, batted for Vander Meer and lined the first pitch to Kreevich, who backed up to the leftfield wall for the catch. Hack grounded out. Gehringer to Foxx. Herman, with the count three and two, singled past Lewis. Goodman got nothing more than a few high fouls off Gomez, finally lofting one to Dickey just off the first base line.

Americans—Big Bill Lee, right-hander of the Cubs, went to the box. He was picked instead of Carl Hubbell, for the second National League pitching trick. Gehringer walked as Lee missed the plate with four of his first five pitches. Averill's high fly was caught in short left center by Medwick. Foxx forced Gehringer at second. Durocher to Herman, on a slow roller. No attempt was made for a double play as Foxx reached first. DiMaggio took a called third strike on a sharp-breaking curve.

Nationals — Johnny Allen, Cleveland right-hander, took over the Americans pitching job. Medwick worked the count to three and two before hoisting to Foxx, near the pitching mound. Ott tripled on a long shot that hit the corner in right center, near the 387-foot mark, and rebounded half way to the infield. Ott scored on Lombardi's one-base smash to left. McCormick rolled out, Gehringer to Foxx, advancing Lombardi to second. Durocher fanned, swinging at a high hard one.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

FIFTH INNING.

Americans—Dickey scratched a two-base hit on a pop fly that Durocher lost in the sun, behind third base. Cronin fouled two in the rightfield pavilion, then flied to Ott. Lou Gehrig, iron man of the Yankees, batted for Lewis and grounded out, Herman to McCormick, as Dickey reached third. Herman made a beautiful stop and threw on a hard smash that had the base-hit label on it. Allen grounded out, Hack to McCormick, on a sharp smash after falling in an attempt to execute the squeeze play.

Nationals—Foxx moved to third base for the Americans, replacing Lewis, and Gehrig played first, thereby getting into his sixth successive all-star game. Lee and Hack both hoisted to Averill. Herman fanned on a called third strike.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING.

Americans—Roger Cramer, Boston outfielder, batted for Kreevich and grounded out, Durocher to McCormick. Averill took three called strikes and the crowd gave Lee a big hand as he finished his stint. Mace Brown, of the Pirates, was warming up for the Nationals.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Nationals—Cramer went to left for the Americans. Goodman was grazed on the back by a pitched ball and went to first. Medwick lofted to DiMaggio. With Ott at the plate, Goodman stole second and then continued to third as Dickey's wild throw went into center field. Dickey was charged with an error. Ott fanned, swinging after the count reached three and two. Lombardi grounded out on a bounder to deep short, Cronin to Gehrig.

SEVENTH INNING.

Americans—Brown, a specialist in relief pitching, went to the box. Foxx got a single on a hard smash that Durocher blocked with his gloved hand, but couldn't handle. DiMaggio forced Foxx, Durocher to Herman, on a nice play. Durocher went far to his right to grab the ball. Dickey popped to Hack. DiMaggio stole second, with Cronin at bat, sliding under Lombardi's high throw, then walked. Gehrig was credited with a base hit on a sharp grounder that Durocher juggled, and the bases were filled. Rudy York, Detroit slugger, batted for Allen, and fanned, with the count at three and two. The crowd staged its wildest ovation of the game as the Nationals pulled out of a dangerous hole. No runs, two hits, no errors, three left.

Nationals—Bob Grove, southpaw of the Red Sox, pitched for the Americans. McCormick pumped a single to center. On Durocher's bunt off the third-base line Foxx was slow in scooping up the ball and then threw wildly past first as Gehrig came up late to take the ball. Foxx was charged with an error and Durocher credited with a base hit. McCormick galloped all the way home and was followed by Durocher as DiMaggio, retrieving the ball in rightfield foul territory, threw into the Nationals' dugout. DiMaggio also was charged with an error in the comedy of miscues. Brown and Hack both fanned, swinging, and Herman also struck out on a called strike. Two runs, two hits, two errors, none left.

EIGHTH INNING.

Nationals—Goodman lined to DiMaggio. Medwick lashed a single to left center for his first hit of the game. Averill made a nice running catch of Ott's short fly. Lombardi dropped a single in short right center, sending Medwick to third. McCormick forced Lombardi, Foxx to Gehringer.

NINTH INNING.

Americans—DiMaggio singled to left. Medwick made a wonderful gloved-hand catch of Dickey's line drive on the dead run, near the center-field bank. He turned a somersault after robbing the Yankee catcher of what looked like a sure extra-base hit. Cronin doubled to the wall in left-center, scoring DiMaggio with the first American run. Gehrig lined to Goodman, near the bleacher barrier, and Cronin dashed to third after the catch. Bob Johnson, of the Athletics, batted for Grove and fanned with the count three and two. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Clouters Are Halted By Terry's Pitchers

Big Guns of Junior League Prove Duds With Runners on Base; Cronin Drives in Lone Run; McCarthymen Make 4 Errors.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Cincinnati, July 6.—The stars that shone today were the National League's—with a bright effulgence that dazzled American League batting eyes and proved, on this important afternoon, the case of pitching versus power.

By the score of 4 to 1, the National League won the sixth annual All-Star game and tonight the names of Johnny Vander Meer, Bill Lee and Mace Brown are posted high in the list of National League immortals.

For it was these three—the rookie southpaw Vander Meer, of the Reds; the powerful Lee, of the Cubs, and the relief specialist, Mace Brown, of the Pirates, who muted the thunder in American League bats and ended for a grateful National League the oppressive claims of American League supremacy.

Not until the ninth inning did the hand-picked stars of the American League—an assembly of sluggers who were the proud boasts of a half-dozen cities—avert the ignominy of a shut-out. For not until then did the Americans succeed in scoring as much as a single run against the pitching bulwarks thrown up by the National.

Today the American League was beaten on the mound and beaten at their own specialty—slugging. For they were outhit, 8 to 7, by the National Leaguers.

Foxx Shifted to Third.

Today, too, the American League defense cracked. It was through the shoddy defensive play of Joe McCarthy's team that the three winning runs filtered—three unearned runs, that spawned from four damaging American League errors.

The National League had pitching and it had finesse. Not a single misplay did it commit behind its pitchers, and it was with near-fanatical skill that the National protected the lead a first-inning run had given it.

It was the American League's lust for power—its theory that a slugger in every position is the greatest guarantee of victory—that sealed the triumph of the National League. For two of those National League runs sprang directly from Manager Joe McCarthy's shift of First Baseman Jimmy Foxx to third base. In that strange position, Foxx contributed the first of a pair of seventh-inning errors that gave the National League its third and fourth runs of the ball game.

Not a man among the three American League pitchers—Lefty Gomez, Johnny Allen and Lefty Grove—escaped the damage. But Gomez and Grove were blameless in the American League defeat, for the three runs they yielded were distinctly unearned—the outgrowth of errors committed by Joe Cronin, Foxx and Joe DiMaggio. The one earned run of the National Leaguers was surrendered by Cleveland's Johnny Allen in the fourth inning.

The 27,067 customers who blotted out every seat in ancient Crosley Field saw only one display of the vaunted American League power, and by that time—in the ninth inning—the National League had a 4-0 lead.

Americans Bid in Ninth.

Against Brown in the final inning, the Americans made one last, desperate bid to loose their dynamite. Joe DiMaggio launched the uprising with the Americans' sixth hit of the ball game and his first of the afternoon—a single to left field. Was this to be the beginning of the end for the National League?

For a moment, the American League appeared in full cry. Bill Dickey laid the wood to Brown's next pitch and out toward the distant left centerfield fence 382 feet away rocketed a line drive. The chase of Ducky Medwick appeared futile. And then, with a last lunging leap, Medwick speared the ball with his gloved hand high over his head—the most spectacular catch of the game—and Dickey, who had rounded first, walked dejectedly back to the dugout.

If that catch were not properly appreciated at that time, it was a moment later when Cronin rifled a two-bagger against the left centerfield wall to drive DiMaggio across the plate from first. Hastily Manager Bill Terry motioned his Giants' ace, Carl Hubbell, to the bullpen. Brown was obviously weakening.

Lou Gehrig was the American's next hope. He'll never make a better try and fail to get a hit. He literally hammered a vicious line drive into rightfield, only to see Ival Goodman get under it and make the catch, the force of which almost knocked him over backward.

Two out now, and Manager Joe McCarthy sent in Philadelphia's Bob Johnson as a pinch hitter for Grove. To three balls and two strikes Johnson worked the count and then Brown finished with a flourish, slipping a third strike past Johnson.

Back in the seventh inning, Brown had contributed another important strike-out to the Nationals' cause. That was when the Americans had filled the bases with two out and McCarthy had withdrawn Allen for a pinch hitter. The pinch hitter was large Rudy York, of the Tigers—power personified.

Brown was nursing a 2-to-0 lead handed over to him by Bill Lee and a hit by York would tie the score, perhaps win the ball game. But there was no hit forthcoming from York. In a long session at the plate, marked by five foul balls, York worked the count to three and two, and then whiffed ingloriously on a low outside pitch to end the inning.

Home Town Fans Happy.

Cincinnati's home-town fans who were cheering vociferously for the four Reds in the line-up—Vander Meer, Lombardi, Goodman and McCormick—reveled at the outset of the game, for young Vander Meer, of double no-hit fame, was out there virtually standing the American League sluggers on their heads in the first three innings.

His windup marked by a deep dip of his body in which the peak of his cap nearly touched the ground, Vander Meer breezed through the first two innings without allowing a hit. In the second, when he struck out Foxx, the girders of Crosley Field shook with the thunder of cheers. Cronin's single that opened the third inning was the only hit Vander Meer allowed as he turned in a scoreless three-inning effort.

Lefty Gomez, scored on only once in four previous All-Star starts, was reached for a run in the first inning, but he was blameless. After Stanley Hack, of the Cubs, had opened the Nationals' attack by punching a single into leftfield, Cronin crudely muffed a double-play ball off Billy Herman's bat and the Nationals had two on and none out. In this crisis, Gomez struck out Goodman, the Reds' home-run king, but Hack, who had galloped to third on Cronin's muff, trotted home on Medwick's line drive to Averill.

Lombardi Scores Ott.

Gomez completed his three-inning turn, allowing only two hits, and then turned over the job to Johnny Allen, who was greeted in the fourth inning by a hefty triple to centerfield off the bat of Mel Ott. Then it was that Lombardi drove in the Nationals' only legitimately earned run of the ball game—with a vicious single past Buddy Lewis.

That was the last hit yielded by

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

By Way of Rebuttal.

Cincinnati, July 6.—It seems the National League still is one of the majors after all. Last winter, unless my memory has gone completely awry again, there was some suggestion that the National League was just another minor link in the baseball chain. But in the light of what happened here today, this conclusion apparently was a bit premature, for the National League's all-star array completely conquered the best selected sluggers of the American by the rather convincing score of 4 to 1.

VIDMER.

Don't let's go back into history to draw a comparison between the two circuits. Let's just look at the latest evidence. Perhaps the American League was a little stronger in 1905 or 1925, or even 1935, but the balance of power changes like the weather, the tides and the stock market, and at the moment the evidence points definitely to a National League supremacy.

For today the National League outscored, outhit, outpitched and outfielded the American League with 28,000 witnesses present and cheering. The score was 4 to 1. The hits were 8 to 7, and while the National League fielded faultlessly, the American League players committed four glaring and important errors.

Of course, some one might point to the fact that the National Leaguers earned only one run and the American Leaguers earned just as many, but since when has the art of fielding ceased to be a part of the game of baseball? And while we're asking questions, where was that terrific power that the American League was supposed to be able to generate?

* * * *

Mysteries on the Mound.

They looked at Johnny Vander Meer's blinding speed and baffling curves for three innings, but they couldn't see either. The left-handed lad who held two National League clubs hitless in succession went one over par in his stretch of service against the selected sluggers of the American League. Joe Cronin got a hit down the left-field foul line, but Johnny faced only ten men and retired nine of them.

They next looked at Bill Lee's deceptive delivery for three more innings and fared no better, getting only one hit, a pop-fly double that Durocher lost in the sun, and a base on balls.

Mace Brown was less of a mystery and for a moment it appeared as though he might be in real trouble, but there was always assurance in the bull pen, where Carl Hubbell was warming up, and 28,000 fans kept glancing toward him as two infield hits and a base on balls filed the bases.

There were two out in the seventh inning when this climax came, and at that point Bill Terry's forces were leading only by 2 to 0. And Rudy York, the Tigers' home run artist was striding to the plate to bat for Johnny Allen. But Hubbell kept on warming up in the bull pen and Mace Brown, a second-year youngster, remained in the box.

* * * *

Opportunity Knocks.

There were pounding hearts and throbbing pulses in the stands and bleachers for this was a partisan crowd. Partisan to the National League, for the American circuit is a stranger to Cincinnati's citizens.

There was a tingle of tenseness in the atmosphere as the count reached two strikes and three balls.

And then Mace Brown reared back and fired a fast ball through the heart of the plate. Big Rudy York swung his heavy bat with all his power. And a cheer welled up from the throbbing throats of the throng. Rudy York had struck out!

That was the American Leaguers one big chance, for in the last half of the same inning, the American League's defense fell apart. With McCormick on first, which he had reached by a single, Durocher dumped a bunt down the third base line and everything seemed to happen at once. Gehringer failed to cover first, Foxx hurled the ball into rightfield, DiMaggio hurled it back again into the dugout and both McCormick and Durocher pattered over the plate.

But this decision came too late. The National Leaguers had four runs and their rivals had none. Nor did they get any, until the ninth.

Late Sleepers.

In their last stand, DiMaggio, Dickey, Cronin and Gehrig hit the ball so hard that the suspicion arose that the American League power wasn't dead after all, merely sleeping. But this afternoon it overslept. Medwick made a circus catch of Dickey's drive and Goodman backed up against the bleachers to haul down Gehrig's. Only DiMaggio's and Cronin's fell safe and they produced only a single run.

Misses Ellis And O'Steen Also Victors

By Jack Munhall.

While Miss Clarke was trouncing Mrs. Miller, 6—2, 6—2, Mrs. Margaret Robinson, Anne Ellis and Willie O'Steen, seeded in that order, and three unseeded players moved into the quarter-finals.

Miss Ellis, making her tournament debut, was a double winner. She beat Charlotte Decker in the first round, 8—6, 6—2, and then dropped Dorothy Bender, 6—3, 6—3, in a second round match.

Mrs. Robinson turned back Ella Owens, 6—1, 6—3, and Miss O'Steen eliminated Elinor Finckel, Columbia's hope for the title, 6—3, 6—2.

Miss Lee, young Vassar graduate, was most impressive among unranked winners by virtue of her straight love set victory over Joan Bransford. Miss Lee, a comparative newcomer to local tennis circles, appears to have the best chance of producing the first upset of the tourney in ensuing play.

Three attractive quarter-final encounters today pit Miss O'Steen, public parks titleholder, against young Hazel Bishop at 4 o'clock; Miss Lee against Mrs. Robinson at 3 and Miss Ellis against Ann Dayette at 4.

The consolation tournament which opened yesterday provided several lengthy and closely contested matches. The longest of these found Helen Zetlmeier outlasting Edna Vest in three sets, which took more than two hours. The scores were 7—9, 6—3, 11—9.

Three other matches were carried into three sets. Margaret Graham dropped the first set to Frances Carter, but rallied to win out, 2—6, 6—4, 8—6, and Elinor Fishburn defeated Barbara Conrad, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1, in another torrid battle.

In order to attract more entries, the tournament committee has reduced the entry fee for the women's doubles from a $3 a team to $1. Deadline for entries is 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Columbia Tennis Shop.

SINGLES.

Quarter-Final Round.

Canada Sends Team To Maryland Net.

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Canada will be well represented in the Maryland State tennis tournament starting Monday, with the four top-ranking Canadian Davis Cup squad seeking the State title.

The four will include Laird Watt, Robert Murray, Ross Wilson and Douglas Cameron. Watt has four years of Davis Cup play behind him. Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., will defend the title he won last year when he ranked sixteenth nationally.

Santa Anita Boosts Purses to $925,000.

Arcadia, Calif., July 6 (U.P.).—Santa Anita race track tonight announced it has increased its purses by more than $200,000 for the 1938-1939 winter season, boosting the sum to be awarded over the 52-day meeting to $925,000—the largest in Western turf history.

Daily minimums have been raised to $1,500 for ordinary events, and to $10,000 for stake races. The $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap and $50,000 Derby remain unchanged, but the San Juan Capistrano Handicap Purse has been boosted from $10,000 to $25,000, and the distance from a mile and one-eighth to a mile and one-half.

Moses Cops Twin Bill.

The Moses Athletic Club nine defeated Hume in both ends of a double-header yesterday on the winner's field by the scores of 10 to 7 and 17 to 7. Spain, Moses hurler, won his fifth straight game to open the afternoon proceedings. Snoddy captured the nightcap. Godfrey, Bradshaw and Snoddy belted home runs to feature the slugging attack of the second game.

Ninth Straight Win.

Behind the excellent hurling of Huck Beall, who fanned eight and allowed six hits, the Landover Athletic Club nine defeated the Prince Georges Athletic Club outfit, 8-4, to register its ninth straight win of the season. Burt Shaffner led the winner's attack with three hits, one a triple.

Lorton Wins Two.

Teams representing the Lorton Penal Institution won two games and lost one yesterday. The Lorton Blues split a double-header, losing the first to the Taft Athletic Club nine, 12-4, and winning the second from the Girardians, 4-0. The Lorton Browns trounced the Cardinal Athletic Club, 11-3, for its tenth consecutive victory of the season.

Harvard '9' Coach Quits

Fred Mitchell Resigns; Former Pitcher.

By the United Press.

Cambridge, Mass., July 6.—Fred F. Mitchell, one time big league pitcher, resigned today as head coach of the Harvard baseball team.

Mitchell, associated with Harvard since 1916, had been head coach since 1926. The 60-year-old mentor's resignation was accepted with "regret" by the university which announced appointment of his successor was considered unlikely before fall.

His big league career started with the Boston Red Sox in 1901. The following year he went to the Philadelphia Athletics and played the next two years with the Philadelphia Nationals. After playing with Brooklyn, 1905, Toronto, 1906 through 1909, Mitchell caught for the Yankees, 1910, Rochester, 1911 and Buffalo, 1912.

Coach of the Boston Braves from 1913 through 1915, Mitchell managed the Chicago Cubs from 1917 to 1920 when he returned to manage the Braves for three years. He was business manager of the Braves from 1924 to 1925.

Mount Jackson Loses To Woodstock Nine

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., July 6.—Mount Jackson lost a 2-to-1 decision and a chance to clinch first place in the initial half of the Shenandoah County League's split season today when Sine set the visitors down with four hits. Woodstock scored the winning run in the ninth on sigles by Wickham and Coffman, and Meyers' error.

Archibald Hits N. B. A. Boxing Ratings, Puts Up Weight Bond

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Following the example of Maxie Baer, who protested the placing of Tony Galento over him in the heavyweight division, Joey Archibald, the Providence featherweight fighter, yesterday voiced resentment against the National Boxing Association for ranking him tenth.

Archibald, who meets Mike Belloise, New York State featherweight champion, Monday night at Griffith Stadium in the first round of Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn's national featherweight elimination tournament, made his violent protest through his manager, Al Weill, who will carry Joey's case to Ed Foster, N. B. A. committeeman.

"I have not lost a single match in the last 14 months," Archibald said. "My last defeat was at the hands of Tony Dupre, and I'd rather not discuss the way that match ended. They were strictly prejudiced against me when Dupre was given the nod. But I'll knock that guy Belloise stiff Monday, and make the N. B. A. feel sorry for rating me last on the list."

Archibald said he "couldn't see" the placing of Jackie Wilson, second; Freddie Miller, former champion, third; Tony Chavez, fourth, and Johnny Hutchinson, Al Reid and Dupre over him.

Joey's Won 10.

Incidentally, Dupre, Reid, Leo Rodak, the No. 1 challenger for Henry Armstrong's crown; Pete Scalzo, ranked sixth, are entered in the tournament to determine new champion, should Armstrong find he can't make the fetherweight weight for a title defense.

Archibald has won ten matches in Washington, including victories over Lou Gevinson, Harry Gentile, Joey Marcientie, Nicky Jerome, Biff Lemieux, Johnny Schibelli, Ray Ingram and Johnny Mirabella.

Archibald was summoned to New York yesterday by Al Weill, who placed him under the tutelage of Whitey Bimstein, one of the best known trainers in the country. Bimstein will train Joey's stablemate, Lou Ambers, for his lightweight title defense against Armstrong.

Archibald is training at Stillman's gym. He will arrive here either Saturday or Sunday, with Bimstein and Weill.

Over in a rival gym in New York—the Pioneer—Belloise is in training for the Archibald match. Belloise is not lacking in handlers. Accompanying him to Washington for the fight will be Charley and Jimmy (Iron Derby) Johnston and Georgie Hughes.

It also developed yesterday that Archibald's manager is determined that Belloise make the 126 weight. Weill posted a $100 forfeit check with Ahearn and the District Boxing Commission. That will sound like a lot of money if Belloise doesn't hit the scales at 126 by 2 p. m. Monday. Archibald won't have any trouble making the weight, says Weill.

The Punch Line . . .

By Lewis F. Atchison.

In the neat, whitewashed, barn-like structure that is Frankie Mann's training quarters, a bit of ring drama is being enacted that would make a Broadway drama plot seem rather anemic by comparison. The principals are a half-dozen aspiring young pugilists and another youngster—but a veteran of innumerable ring battles, who has been up near the top and now is attempting a comeback.

ATCHISON.

Mann's training quarters were established in 1908, as a framed print hung on the wall tells you. Pictures of old-time greats in statuesque poses, newspaper clippings and yellowing programs adorn the walls. There is even a colored engraving labeled "Custer's Last Fight."

* * * *

The room starts to fill around 7 o'clock, when the evening's work begins. It is crowded with heavyweight "white hopes" of all sizes, shapes and of varying ability. Only two professionals are in the lot, Maynard Daniels and Donald (Red) Barry. The rest aren't even amateurs, having never been in a fight.

One particularly impressive lad, Jimmy DeChard, is there. His father, Leo DeChard, is boxing coach of the No. 4 Police Boys Club team. Jimmy is under the joint managership of his dad and Frankie Mann. He stands well over 6 feet and weighs around 190 pounds. He's never had a fight and will make his ring debut this autumn in the novice class of the annual Golden Gloves tournament.

"Zip" Adams, the old Eastern High School athlete; Benny McLaughlin, former St. John's Prep fullback; Joe Green, Chester Morris and one of two others are in their fighting togs ready for work. Draped around the ring on long benches are some of Mann's neighbors. They attend every workout, and frequently see more action than you get at an "all-star" card.

Dechard and Daniels climb through the ropes. Frankie glances at an electrical clock on the wall and says, "All right." They step forward, touch gloves and start punching. DeChard is like a tiger. Daniels is slow, and an easy target for the tall, graceful lad. DeChard looks and acts like a pro. He has all the mannerisms, plus a left hook that zings up against Daniels' jaw.

* * * *

They work two rounds and Daniels steps aside for Morris. He is a rookie and looks it, especially with DeChard, rolling on the ropes, catching, holding gloves and hitting with a free hand—all in one graceful motion.

Daniels comes back into the ring and Reds Barry climbs in after him. Reds wants to make a comeback in Washington, if it's only a six-round bout. There was a time when he was tops and rated championship timber. He was like DeChard, fast as a bullet, and clever. He was 18 years old then and just coming. He couldn't punch, but he could box. They said he'd develop the punch later. They were wrong, but still he won a lot of fights.

* * * *

Barry still moves around well, still knows how to roll with a punch, slip one, and catch his opponent on the rebound. He tries to slug every now and then, and leaves himself wide open. You think of what a top-flight heavyweight would do to him in that unguarded moment, and a quiet shudder shakes your frame. Then he boxes and Daniels can't touch him. He looks like the Reds Barry of a few years ago who used to win 'em all at Portner's Arena.

"That's enough," says Frankie in his quiet monotone. The little group stands around before starting on the light bag, or ducking into the single shower. The younger ones, who haven't been there long, smile and jostle one another playfully, dreaming of golden days to come, maybe a title. Barry is rather glum, but not bitter. He's trying to get a preliminary and can't. He must think of the days when he was like the other kids—a good, young prospect. A featured star, then. Now he can't even get a six-rounder. It must make him think. The youngsters never give the matter a thought. When you're young you don't have to be serious. But some day things may change, the picture may reverse itself.

* * * *

College Net Stars Win

Twins Advance in Play at Merion.

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, July 6.—Eastern and Southern title aspirants were eliminated in the third round of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Tourney today as Western stars annexed all places in the quarter-finals.

Ruus Bobbitt, Georgia Tech's upset star of early rounds was upset in turn by Chester Murphy, of the University of Chicago, 6—4, 6—2. Bobbitt had turned back Don McNeil, Kenyon, seeded No. 2, and Izzy Bellis, of Pennsylvania, an Eastern hopeful.

The quarter-finals open on Merion Cricket Club courts Friday.

The East's last hope for the title vacated by Ernie Sutter when he graduated from Tulane a year ago, was eliminated by Bob Kamrath, Texas, who turned back Joe Fishbach, St. John's (Brooklyn), 6—3, 6—3. Fishbach was a heavy favorite to down Kamrath, since the Brooklyn youth had eliminated Kamrath on his way to the Eastern intercollegiate title last Friday.

National Parks Champion Lewis Wetherell, Southern California, joined his schoolmate, Joseph R. Hunt, in the quarter-finals by defeating Milt Ruehl, Western State (Michigan), 6—2, 6—0. Hunt, seeded No. 1 in this tourney, won an easy victory over Dick Hoogs, of California, 6—0, 6—2.

Bill Murphy, Chicago, twin brother of the Murphy who turned back Bobbitt, entered the quarter-finals with a three-set win over Bill Talbert, Cincinnati. Murphy won the first set, 6—1, dropped the second, 2—6, and won all six games in the final and match set.

Morey Lewis, of Kenyon, upset Julius Heldmun, U. C. L. A., 6—3, 6—4, for his third-round victory and a pass to the quarter-finals.

Plebes Will Vie For Boat Positions

Annapolis, Md., July 6 (AP).—Approximately 40 members of the new plebe class at the Naval Academy reported to the boathouse today to try for the plebe battalion crews that will race later in the season.

The plebe class is divided into four battalions. Each battalion will enter a crew in the competition for class honors.

The Varsity Challenge Cup, won by the Navy crew at Poughkeepsie, arrived at the Academy today. It is the first time it has been in possession of the midshipmen since 1931. Previous to that year Navy won the intercollegiate regatta in 1921, 1922 and 1925.

East Potomac Is Undergoing Changes for Title Tourney

Pro-Lady Event at Beaver Dam; Cox Leaves for P. G. A. to Break Jinx; Greenkeepers to Meet.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The new trophies donated by public links concessionaire, S. G. Leoffler, for the city municipal champion will go to a real champion according to East Patomac course manager, Tommy Doerer, jr., who is toughening the peninsula layout in an attempt to meet championship requirements.

Out of bounds stakes on seven holes, the first to be placed on the course in history, tournament tees stretching the yardage over the 6,700-yard mark, and some 1,000 tons of sand to refill the present traps and fill the new ones, are among the projects underway.

The local qualifying rounds are carded Tuesday and Wednesday, July 26 and 27, with the low-four scores over the 72-hole medal play route composing the Harding Cup team that will represent the city in the National Public Links championship over the Highland Park course in Cleveland, August 22-27.

Heretofore low scores have marked the local trials, Claude Rippy's 284 winning last year, but Doerer is adding at least ten strokes to the B and D courses, where the qualifying rounds will be played. A score as high as 300 may make the team.

The out-of-bounds stakes will be placed on at least seven holes to catch hooks and slices. Several new traps are being placed in strategic positions around the greens, while the 100 or so expected entries will have to play out of rough that will grow for some two weeks preceding the rounds.

Rippy's third consecutive victory last year retired the old trophy so Leoffler purchased two new ones, valued at $250, one for permanent possession of the winner and the larger one to be kept at the club. Doerer, at East Potomac, and Harry Graham, at Rock Creek, are accepting entries, with no fee. Entries close on July 17, at 6 p. m.

BEAVER DAM.

A meeting tabbed "very important" will precede the pro-lady Scotch foursome tournament at Beaver Dam on Monday. The event will be professionals with lady partners, selective drives and alternate shots, with play from scratch.

Amateurs are also invited to the event with women partners, in a special tourney. The meeting that will precede the play is called for 11 a. m.

P. G. A.

Wiffy Cox will leave for Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, scene of the P. G. A. championship, starting Sunday, tomorrow morning, arriving in time for a practice round in the afternoon. Leo Walper, the city's other representative, has been on the scene since Monday.

Cox, playing in his fifth P. G. A. championship, has never craved the match play affairs, will seek to break the jinx that has followed him in previous events. Four times he has qualified in his section, four times on the scene of the event, and has lost in the first round of match play on each occasion.

GREENKEEPERS.

The Midatlantic Association of Greenkeepers will hold their next meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club, Monday, July 11, with Dave Thomson as host.

A golf match at 1 p. m., dinner at 6 and meeting at 7 are included on the day's program.

Tool Box Wins the Vicmeade Steeplechase, Delaware Park Feature

At The Post

With Bill Bennings

Selections at Delaware Park.

Dear Al:

Johnny Gilbert, who rode as if he were a beaten young man for a long time after his friend and brother-in-law, Donny Meade, was suspended more than a year ago, has taken a new lease on life. He is the fair-haired boy around here and has never been in better form. Like all "hot" riders, he is drawing the good mounts and hustling every one of them as if his very life depended on the outcome. He is as quiet as ever, saying little to the other boys and attending to business. It will be almost a miracle if he loses the $500 watch offered here for the jockey championship. He has ridden 29 winners going into today's program. Eddie Arcaro is closest to him with 16 winners, while Lucas Dupps and Joe Wagner have 14 each. There isn't any use getting excited about the increase in betting "take" of 1 per cent granted Pimlico, Bowie, Havre de Grace and Laurel by the Maryland Racing Commission The increase should provide for better accommodations for crowds and better programs. The added figure brings Maryland's "take" to 8½ per cent, or about the same as this State and Illinois. Among the States which have higher "takes" are California, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Michigan and Rhode Island. Edward Burke, general manager here and at Havre de Grace, refused to make a statement on the increase, but denied he was the leader in the movement. Now for the winners. BILL.

First race—Equerry has been around a long time without winning and seems destined to visit the winner's circle in this field. Need only the right handling. Walkaway turned in an encouraging effort last out and could surprise. Rosky Meadow to take care of the others.

Second race—Humming had some trouble in that recent outing and with clear sailing might be the winner in this rather open affair. Cherachin is a fair sort and is due some respect. Sister Reigh should account for the show award.

Third race—El Dorador shapes up best in the day's steeplechase. Likes the course and appears capable of handling the top weight. Rocksure and Black Cock are fit and ready and may fill out the money bracket.

Fourth race—Working Girl showed enough last out to warrant a top selection in this good company. Surprise Box has been running with better company and is dangerous. Learned for the show end.

Fifth race—Passerine has worked well and may be capable of turning back a field of this caliber. I'm going to string along. Top Queen is at her best. Music Isle to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Infantry, with 122 pounds up, appear to be slightly the best in this field. He will have the speedy Sun Egret to take into camp. Lady Maryland is one of the most improved horses on the grounds and may surprise.

Seventh race—Chief Cherokee comes off a fine sprint effort and may go well at this route. I'm going to take him. Master Lad and Cascapedia to complete the money bracket.

Takes Event With Lead of Ten Lengths

Crooning Water Second and Homesteader Is 3d Spot Finisher.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., July 5.—Tool Box, a silver gray gelding which used to race on the flat in Maryland for the Labrot Stable, showed his steeplechase wares today and bounced off with the $2,500 added Vicmead High-Weight Steeplechase Handicap, the feature of a hot day here between the B. & O. and Pennsylvania railroads.

Running and jumping in the colors of Richard K. Mellon, Tool Box galloped over the finish line ten lengths in front of a stablemate, Crooning Water, owned by Mrs. J. C. Brady. Only two others competed, Mrs. Randolph Scott's Homesteader being a respectable third, with G. H. Bostwick's Long Shot fourth and pulled up at the end.

The fiend of four went three times around the grueling "outside" course, which crosses the main track at two points, and went over 19 jumps. Despite the tough layout, there wasn't a bobble at any fence.

Winner Pays $2.90.

The betting was confined to win position and the crowd of 8,000 installed the Brady-Mellon entry as an odds-on favorite with a $2.90 mutuel resulting.

Long Shot set the early pace, but Tool Box and Crooning Water soon had the situation to themselves, with the former drawing out when the real test came in the final turn of the field. Tool Box was clocked in 6:04 4-5.

Jockey Johnny Gilbert, the star rider of the meeting, had a hand in a $33.60 daily double. The Syrian jockey brought home the first half of the twin wager by winning with Doplay, the people's choice, in the first race. Doplay downed Mon Doit by a length, with Fickle Mood third to pay an individual mutual of $8.20.

Apprentice Denny Driscoll completed the double, wining the second race with Irene's Bob, a $5.80 favorite. The winner collared Balcony in the stretch to win by two lenghts. Third money went to Itsie Bitsie.

Eddie Arcaro outrode Gilbert in the finish of the fourth race, wining via a photo after Xanthein and Oak Apple had battled through the stretch. They finished noses apart and ahead of Scarer. Xanthein paid $14.80

Birch Rod, a favorite at $5.50, won the fifth race, defeating, among others, Bud's Ball and Challedon. Cherolize was a forward factor until Bud's Bell came over on him, leaving the backstretch. Jockey Johnny Leyland, who rode Bud's Bell, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding.

Ral Parr's Hypocrite and Jockey Gilbert proved a winning combination as another favorite scored in the sixth race. Hypocrite, under tight wraps most of the way, finished two lengths in advance of Brown Moth, with Pernie, the pacemaker most of the way, third. Hypocrite paid $4.60.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOPLAY, $8.20, $4.50, $3.60; MON DOIT, $5.00, $4.10; FICKLE MOOD, $12.40.

DOPLAY, off poorly, was sent around leaders with bold rush leaving backstretch and, under strong handling, disposed of MON DOIT inside eighth pole to win going away. MON DOIT, forwardly placed from start, took command with good move in midstretch and closed gamely, but could not resist winner. FICKLE MOOD closed some ground.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:22½. Off 3:30. Winner, D. J. Sullivan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRENE'S BOB, $5.80, $3.40, $3.10; BALCONY, $5.50, $4.60; ITSIE BITSIE, $10.00.

IRENE'S BOB, rushed to contention at once, was rated closest to pace of BALCONY, took command when placed to drive and was drawing out at end. BALCONY had good speed from start, set pace to stretch and continued willingly, but could not resist winner. ITSIE BITSIE was forward factor from start and held on gamely.

Daily Double, Doplay and Irene's Bob, Paid $33.60.

THIRD RACE—About 3 miles. Purse, $2,500 added. The Vicmead Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post 3:55. Off 3:55. Winner, R. K. Mellon's gr. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOOL BOX (entry), $2.90, out, out; CROONING WATER (entry), out, out; HOMESTEADER, out.

TOOL BOX, fencing well and always forwardly placed, was under restraint virtually throughout the running and was in hand at end. CROONING WATER, closest to early pace of LONG SHOT, went evenly and was easily best of others. HOMESTEADER, heavily restrained for a mile, moved up menacingly after seventeenth fence, but weakened.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:26. Off 4:32. Winner, Mrs. R. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—XANTHEIN, $14.80, $5.20, $4.00; OAK APPLE, $3.80, $3.40; SCARER, $4.40.

XANTHEIN saved ground while pressing early pace of JUST TINY, rallied when placed to drive to take command between calls and came again under good handling after being headed by OAK APPLE to be up in concluding stride. OAK APPLE was rated on outside of leaders, took brief lead and fought it out willingly. SCARER, outrun for three furlongs, closed with a rush.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:59. Off 5:00½. Winner, G. D. Widener's lt. b. c. (2), by Pompey—Slapstick. Trained by J. Creevy. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:07 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIRCH ROD, $5.50, $3.00, $3.00; BUD'S BELL, $3.00, $2.90; CHALLEDON, $8.10.

BIRCH ROD, not hurried while forwardly placed on outside in early stages, rallied when shaken up entering stretch and disposed of BUD'S BELL to take command and was going easily at end. BUD'S BELL, rushed to front going to turn, saved ground and could not handle winner while under punishment. CHALLEDON closed gamely from a slow beginning.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:30½. Off 5:31½. Winner, R. Parr's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HYPOCRITE, $4.60, $3.00, $2.50; BROWN MOTH, $5.30, $3.50; PERNIE, $3.40.

HYPOCRITE, much the best, was under strong restraint for half, was taken to outside for racing room, improved position without effort, took command under light urging and won easily. BROWN MOTH was hurried to forward position in early running, disposed of PERNIE to take command, but was no match for winner while finishing under punishment. PERNIE was hustled along while setting pace and showed good effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:59½. Off 6:00. Winner, W. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHITE SAND, $5.60, $2.70, $2.50; GOLDEN VEIN, $2.80, $2.30; DARK FRIEND, $2.90.

WHITE SAND, under restraint while trailing field for half, went around horses with bold rush to get to front, opened a good lead and was in hand at end. GOLDEN VEIN, rated for seven furlongs, rallied mildly in closing test, but wasn't good enough. DARK FRIEND went evenly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:29. Off 6:31. Winner, W. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PIRATE LASS, $4.70, $2.80, $2.50; HAPPY ROAD, $4.40, $3.00; LADY DUNLIN, $3.50.

PIRATE LASS, sent to front in opening furlong, was rated while setting good pace, but had to be put to severe pressure in closing stages to hold HAPPY ROAD safe. The latter worked his way to leaders leaving backstretch and closed with good courage and just missed. LADY DUNLIN was steadied along closest to pace of PIRATE LASS and failed to rally in closing test.

Wheat Prices Soar 1¾ Cents With Hoarding

Growers Are Awaiting Federal Loan Rate Announcement.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 6.—Rising 1¾ cents today at the last, Chicago wheat prices responded to evidence of increased tendency of growers to store their grain instead of selling.

Reports current were plainly indicative of a more and more pronounced disposition to await announcement of the Federal loan rate rather than let go of ownership now. Adding to the upward trend were assertions that a trade pact between the United States and Great Britain would likely be completed before the end of the month, giving better terms for wheat exports from this cquntry.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛ to 1¾ cents higher compared with yesterday's finish; July, 71¾ to 71⅞; September, 73¼ to 73⅜. Corn, ⅛ to ½ up; July, 57⅝ to 57¾; September, 59⅛. Oats varying from ⅝ decline to ⅛ advance, rye showing ⅝ to ⅞ climb, and provisions unchanged to a bulge of 15 cents.

Bartlett Named To Head Board

New York, July 6 (AP).—The nominating committee of the New York Stock Exchange proposed today that Edward E. Bartlett, jr., be nominated for election as chairman of the board of governors to fill out the unexpired term of William McC. Martin, jr., who assumed the Exchange presidency on July 1.

The election will be held on July 20.

Bartlett, a governor of the Exchange since 1930, is a special partner in the firm of E. A. Pierce & Co., which was active in sponsoring reform of Exchange administration in face of opposition of the so-called "old guard" faction.

The nominee for the chairmanship is 53 years old and a native New Yorker. He was president of the New York Cotton Exchange from 1923 to 1925 and still is a member of that organization.

Steel Ingot Output Dropped 9% in June

New York, June 6 (AP).—June production of steel ingots totaled $1,638,277 tons, a drop of about 9 per cent under May output of 1,806,805, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. Output in June a year ago was 4,184,723 tons.

Ingot production in the first six months of the year amounted to 10,819,144 tons, or 62 per cent under the 28,758,960 in the comparable 1937 period.

General Baking Co. Reports Increased Net

New York, July 6 (AP).—General Baking Co. today reported net income for the 13 weeks ended June 25 of $538,844, equal to 23 cents a common share, compared with $394,421, or 14 cents a share, in the comparable 1937 period.

The company's plants are in the East, Middle West and South.

Stocks Resume Forward March Under the Leadership of Rails Following Announcement of Increased Passenger Fares.

New York, July 6.—After starting the day irregularly lower, the stock market straightened out today under the leadership of the rails and an hour after the close announcement was made in Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted the Eastern roads an increase in passenger fares of a half cent a mile for an 18 months period.

The revival of the rails was impressive and doubtless will bring assertions, made on a number of previous notable occasions, that a favored few knew what was going to happen before the close of the market. Usually such charges are easier to make than to substantiate. Offsetting the suspicions in this case is the fact that the Western railroad stocks improved as much as the Eastern ones, although only the roads in the East will benefit from ICC's decision.

Rail Purchasers Rewarded.

In any event, those traders who decided in the middle of the afternoon that the rail shares were too cheap, had no reason at 3 o'clock to regret having purchased, for virtually every rail issue carried a plus sign and most of them closed at or near their best of the day.

The market as a whole added an average of 0.53 point. Trading amounted to 1,817,190 shares and the best volume came on the recovery late in the day, the ticker falling two minutes behind the market shortly before the close. Bonds rallied along with stocks and leading commodities also made good upward progress.

Byword Is Caution.

Wall Street sentiment continues to be cheerful, but there is a greater note of caution than was the case during the first week of the upturn. While it is felt that the revival of the market will in itself help bolster business, the fact remains that the improvement in trade indices has been meager.

Lead prices were advanced $3 a ton yesterday, and the copper market continues firm, although fabricators have ample supplies to care for the present rate of consumption.

Rate Jump Experimental.

The fare increase voted to the Eastern railroads gave them exactly what they asked for, but did so on an experimental basis. Last spring a similar request was turned down by the commission, and the view at that time was that lower fares would mean greater gross and net. Railroad men renewed their plea and were of the opinion that they knew more about railroading than did the commissioners. They have won their point and now the passenger revenues will be watched closely to see whether the increased rate causes a falling off in revenues.

These are days of sudden price shifts—the steel companies cut prices to spur demand, the copper companies claim a greater demand as prices advance, and now we are to have an experiment in transportation in the East to see what effect higher prices will have.

Wheat prices were boosted, partly on reports that growers are showing an increasing tendency to store their wheat pending announcement of the Federal loan rate. Chicago futures closed up 1⅛ to 1¾ cents. Cotton jumped 14 to 18 points as private estimators reduced acreage figures. New highs on the move were established.

Rail Bonds Higher.

Listed bonds were generally cheerful today, although turnover of $7,370,000 was only a little more than the day before. Buying was resumed in the speculative rail group, with the gains running from fractions to 2 points. Cheap utility and industrial bonds likewise improved. Foreign dollar bonds were more active, with low-priced Latin-Americans in fair demand. United States Treasury issues and other money market obligations were firm.

The upturn in speculative carrier obligations followed the gains in the equity market. Dealers are convinced that the movement remains largely professional in character, although some investment buying also is reported. Intermediate grades that sell around half of their nominal par were in best demand, but low-priced interest payers and default bonds also improved. The holding company groups were quiet but firm. Local tractions showed sizable gains, and many of the convertible industrials moved ahead easily.

Government Issues Rise.

United States Treasury issues showed gains to 8-32 point, on the indication that RFC financing hereafter is to be done direct by that agency. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations were quiet. In counter trading a little softness developed among Treasury notes due around three years, owing to the impending RFC flotation, Money market corporate bonds were steady, with business small.

Foreigns Are Mixed.

Uruguayan, Peruvian and Colombian bonds advanced in the Latin-American default section, and a little interest was displayed also in Brazilians. European disregarded pledges were quiet and irregular. Italian bonds were firm, and Japanese issues irregular. Best-grade foreigns of Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian origin remained dull.

Loans to Business Turn Upward

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that the first increase in bank loans to business in 21 weeks. Banks in 101 leading cities advised they had increased by $20,000,000 their commercial, industrial and agricultural loans. The outstanding total of such loans had shown an almost continuous weekly decrease since last October.

The board said the figures were particularly significant because the increase was spread over wide sections of the country. Banks in the Boston district reported a $9,000,000 increase; the Chicago and Minneapolis districts each had a $4,000,000 increase, and New York City $3,000,000.

Brokers' Loans Rise $10,523,495 in June

New York, July 6 (AP).—Total net borrowings against collateral of New York Stock Exchange member firms, contracted for and carried in New York as of the close of business June 30, amounted to $469,887,400.

The total as of May 31 was $459,363,905.

Cotton Climbs Above 9 Cents

New York, July 6 (AP).—Cotton resumed its advance into new high ground for the movement today as the trade revised new crop acreage figures downward. October sold up from 8.88 to 9.09 and closed at 9.07, with closing prices 14 to 18 points net higher.

The market opened 3 points higher to 1 lower but soon eased to losses of 2 to 4 points under local selling promoted by a favorable view of the weather. Commission house buying appeared as the stock market turned higher and on appearance of several small private acreage estimates.

Stockholders Meeting Called by Youngstown

Cleveland, July 6 (AP).—Directors of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. today called a special stockholders meeting August 30 to act on proposals which would put the company in position to go ahead with new financing.

The shareholders will be asked to approve plans to increase from 400,000 to 500,000 the number of shares which may be issued or converted for new financing. At a special meeting last October shareholders released pre-emptive rights on 400,000 shares. July 16, 1938, was fixed as the record date for determination of shareholders entitled to notice and a vote at the meeting.

Engineering Awards 3% Under Last Year

New York, July 6 (AP).—Major engineering construction awards for June amounted to $223,066,000, making the total for the first six months of the year $1,254,931,000, the Engineering News-Record reported today.

The total is 3 per cent below the $1,245,428,000 for the first six months of 1937, when adjusted for a 25-week period in 1937 and 26 weeks this year.

The Fifteen Year 2¾% Debentures are redeemable, at the option of the Company, at any time, in whole on 30 days' notice or in part on 60 days' notice, at the following prices with accrued interest: To and including July 1, 1941, at 103½%; thereafter to and including July 1, 1944, at 102½%; thereafter to and including July 1, 1947, at 101½%; thereafter to and including July 1, 1950, at 101%; thereafter to and including July 1, 1951, at 100½%; and thereafter at 100%.

Each of the several series of Serial Notes is redeemable at the option of the Company as a whole at any time on 30 days' notice at 100% from July 2 of the year preceding maturity to maturity and at 100% plus a premium of ⅛% for each additional year or fraction thereof of unexpired life prior to the respective maturities; in each case with accrued interest.

The following is merely a brief outline of certain information contained in the Offering Prospectus and is subject to the more detailed statements in the Offering Prospectus and the Registration Statement, which also include important information not outlined or indicated herein. The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these securities.

THE COMPANY The Company, incorporated in New Jersey on August 5, 1882, is a holding company solely. Subsidiaries and certain companies in which the Company has investments are engaged and intend to engage principally in producing, from lands owned, leased or held under concession, refining, transporting, buying and selling crude petroleum and products derived therefrom at wholesale and retail and in producing, buying, selling and transporting and distributing natural gas. Subsidiaries own oil pipe lines, ships, refineries, bulk plants, service stations and other marketing facilities, and natural gas lands, wells and gas pipe lines.

CAPITALIZATION — The Company and Subsidiaries—Consolidated:

	Outstanding as of December 31, 1937
Long-term debt:
Subsidiaries	$ 54,268,896.58†
Twenty-Five Year 3% Debentures, due June 1, 1961 of the Company	85,000,000.00
Preferred stocks of subsidiaries held by public	6,357,000.79
Common stocks of subsidiaries held by public	152,082,329.60*
Capital Stock of the Company (26,224,767 shares, par value $25)	655,619,175.00

*Exclusive of minority common stockholders' interest of $98,394,139.18 in the surplus of subsidiaries.

NOTE: In addition on December 31, 1937 there was owing to Standard-Vacuum Oil Company (50% owned) $16,585,138.39 (which is not expected to be called for payment during the year 1938) and also $38,708,845.97 to Trustees of Annuity Trusts, payable on demand but under the practical operation of the annuity program such demand is made only as funds are required for pension fund disbursements.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE No specific allocation of net proceeds to be derived from the sale of $50,000,000 of Debentures and $35,000,000 of Serial Notes (estimated to amount to $82,972,500, exclusive of accrued interest) has been or can be made. The net proceeds will be placed in the general funds of the Company and used in making available to subsidiaries additional money needed for capital expenditures and for financing inventories and receivables, and for such other purposes as the Board of Directors may determine to be in the interest of the Company. The program now under study contemplates capital expenditures of approximately $175,000,000 during 1938, of which approximately $39,000,000 had been spent to March 31st. This program includes approximately $90,000,000 for acquiring and developing crude reserves, $38,000,000 for improving and extending refining capacity, $15,000,000 for tankers, $24,000,000 for marketing facilities and $8,000,000 for miscellaneous purposes. The Company makes no representation that any amount of the net proceeds of these issues will be specifically allocated to any part of this program. The Company may materially change, enlarge or diminish the program or any part thereof, depending upon developments in its business, which are unpredictable.

EARNINGS The following figures, taken from the consolidated income accounts of the Company and subsidiaries in the Offering Prospectus, are subject to the accountants' certificate, to the statements of consolidated surplus and to the notes to the consolidated income accounts and the consolidated balance sheet, which set forth, among other things, the inclusion of intercompany profits in inventories, the treatment of foreign exchange and the principles of consolidation.

*Includes among other things fixed charges of subsidiaries exclusive of interest paid to the Company, dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiaries and earnings applicable to minority interests in common stocks, provisions for income taxes and undistributed earnings of certain foreign subsidiaries affected by exchange restrictions.

DEBENTURES AND SERIAL NOTES The Fifteen Year 2¾% Debentures and the Serial Notes are unsecured and are to be issued under an Indenture dated July 1, 1938. The Indenture does not authorize the issuance of any additional securities thereunder, but does not limit the amount of other securities, secured or unsecured, which may hereafter be issued by the Company.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions the Underwriters named in the Offering Prospectus have severally agreed to purchase from the Company $50,000,000 principal amount of Debentures for a total of $48,625,000, plus accrued interest, and $31,000,000 principal amount of Serial Notes for a total of $30,612,500, plus accrued interest. The Debentures are to be offered to the public at 99% or for a total of $49,500,000, plus accrued interest; the Serial Notes at 100% or for a total of $31,000,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discounts are 1¼% in the case of the Debentures and 1¼% in the case of the Serial Notes, or a total of $1,262,500. Payment for and delivery of such Debentures and Serial Notes are to be made on or after July 13, 1938 but not later than July 27, 1938. The Company has agreed to sell privately the remaining $4,000,000 ($800,000 principal amount of each Series) of Serial Notes without underwriting discounts or commissions at the public offering price, or for a total of $4,000,000, plus accrued interest, to The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, payment to be made simultaneously with or prior to payment by the Underwriters.

PRICES

Fifteen Year 2¾% Debentures 99% and Accrued Interest
Serial Notes 100% and Accrued Interest

The Underwriters, including the undersigned and others named in the Offering Prospectus, have agreed to purchase $50,000,000 principal amount of these Debentures and $31,000,000 principal amount of these Serial Notes when, as and if issued, and subject to the approval of Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Underwriters, and Mr. Guy Wellman, counsel for the Company. It is expected that delivery of Debentures in definitive form, and Serial Notes in temporary form exchangeable for definitive Serial Notes when prepared, will be made at the office of Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., on or about July 13, 1938, against payment therefor in New York funds.

As more fully set forth in the Offering Prospectus, the Underwriters have authorized the purchase and sale, in the open market or otherwise, of Debentures and Serial Notes for their several accounts, either for long or short account, within the limits and during the period set forth in agreements referred to in the Offering Prospectus.

Further information, particularly financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from the undersigned or from any other Underwriter of these issues.

$81,000,000 Issue Is Being Offered Today

N. J. Standard Oil to Sell $50,000,000 Debentures and $31,000,000 Notes.

An issue of $50,000,000 15-year 2¾ per cent debentures of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, dated July 1, this year, and due July 1, 1953, and $35,000,000 serial notes, of which $4,000,000 are not publicly offered, dated July 1, this year, with series due in $7,000,000 amounts each July 1, from 1943 to 1947, inclusive, is being offered today by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. The debentures are priced at 99 per cent and interest and the serial notes at 100 per cent and interest.

The debentures are redeemable at the option of the company, at any time, in whole on 30 days' notice or in part on 60 days' notice, at the following prices with accrued interest: To and including July 1, 1941, at 103½ per cent; thereafter to and including July 1, 1944, at 102½ per cent; thereafter to and including July 1, 1947, at 101½ per cent; thereafter to and including July 1, 1950, at 101 per cent; thereafter to and including July 1, 1951, at 100½ per cent, and thereafter at 100 per cent.

Each of the several series of serial notes is redeemable at the option of the company as a whole at any time on 30 days' notice at 100 per cent from July 2 of the year preceding maturity and at 100 per cent plus a premium of ⅜ per cent for each additional year or fraction thereof of unexpired life prior to the respective maturities; in each case with accrued interest.

No specific allocation of net proceeds from the sale of the debentures and the serial notes has or can be made, but such proceeds will be placed in the general funds of the company and used in making available to subsidiaries additional money for capital expenditures and for financing inventories and receivables, and for such other purposes as may be in the interest of the company.

Tydings Cites Lewis' Years, Idea on Court

Incumbent Says Candidate, 70, Should Have One Senator 'Accompany.'

The Government rests upon a tripod, of which the legs are labor, agriculture and business, Senator Millard Tydings told the Twenty-first District Democratic Club at a rally in the Branchville Volunteer Firehouse last night.

"When one of these legs falls, the entire tripod falls," the Maryland Senator said.

Commenting on the candidacy of Representative Davis Lewis for nomination as Democratic candidate for the Senate, Tydings called attention to the fact that Lewis had voted for the bill which would have created an accompanying justice for every Supreme Court justice who reached the age of 70.

"In that case, should Mr. Lewis become Senator, he should have an accompanying Senator to help him," Tydings said, referring to his opponent's age.

"What kind of a Senator do the people want in Washington?" asked Tydings.

"Do they want someone who will use his own judgment, or someone who will vote as he is told?"

"A Senator should represent his own people. Any Senator who does not do this is not a Senator," continued Tydings.

Recalls Background.

Tydings called attention to Maryland's historical background, where "self government and religious freedom first flourished."

The record of the Marylad Senator as a public servant and as a soldier in the World War was praised by Robert W. McCullough, county chairman of the Tydings forces.

"He led his own men into battle," said McCullough.

Presiding over the meeting was Walter Green, president of the club.

A series of sharp exchanges from both the Lewis and Tydings camps yesterday left no doubt that the issue of the campaign, which daily gives promise of becoming one of the bitterest Maryland politics has known, will be strictly "Old Deal" against "New Deal."

Lewis opened the skirmish by baring his campaign cry in his announcement for the nomination:

"It's Roosevelt and Lewis against Tydings; New Deal against Old Deal."

Tydings in announcing for his third term as Senator, bluntly stated that he is seeking re-election on his record which contains many rebuffs to the Administration. He said:

"If I am elected, I will continue to vote as my conscience directs."

"Marked," Says Burke.

Tydings was one of three Senators mentioned in a statement yesterday by Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, as marked for elimination by the Administration.

Lewis fired another shot at his opponent in replying to the Maryland League, a group of business men opposed to Roosevelt in 1936, who came out for Tydings. He countered that "Tory Republicans" were for Tydings.

Kent R. Mulikin, of Laurel, a close personal friend and former supporter of Tydings, fired another salvo at the Senator in a statement accompanying announcement today of his appointment as Lewis' campaign manager. Mulikin explained his Lewis allegiance by declaring:

"I do not feel that I and others who cannot support Senator Tydings are leaving him but rather that he has left us and that he is not in sympathy with the cause. Faced with the choice, I have made the decision not on personalities but on direction."

Mulikin Convinced.

Mulikin added that the decision "has meant the putting aside of personal consideration and opposing a man with whom I have always enjoyed a warm friendship, and supporting a man with whom I have had much less association.

"It was the inevitable course for me to follow, for it was the course of conviction."

Mullikin, a member of the Maryland Legislature since 1927, was secretary to the Maryland delegation to the 1936 national convention and secretary of the State campaign committee in the 1936 election. He is a native of Prince Georges County.

Mullikin said he believes in a "liberal democracy" as the "salvation of America."

He declared the Democratic Party "has broken the bonds of a long too static reactionism," and asked:

"Shall we give way now to the forces of reaction?"

Meanwhile what lined up at first as a two-man race was complicated by a third entry, Arthur E. Hungerford, another New Dealer who was connected with the Maryland NRA headquarters and for a time was State NEC director.

He has contended that Tydings is a reactionary and that Lewis' age—69—made it inadvisable that the be chosen for the six-year Senatorial term.

Thompson Elected Head Of W. Va. Fruit Co-op

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 6.—Lewis H. Thompson, this city, former State Senator, was elected president of Martinsburg Fruit Exchange—oldest fruit co-operative in the United States—for the twenty-third consecutive year at the annual meeting of the board here yesterday.

Other officers named: Vice presidents, Dr. A. D. Weakley, Washington; J. Y. McDonald, Jefferson County, W. Va.; secretary, James E. McDonald, this city, also president of the West Virginia Horticulture Society; treasurer, Dr. A. B. Eagle, this city.

Handcuffs Wielder Held.

Charged with hitting a policeman with a pair of handcuffs, Carl Shirley, 28, a paperhanger from Lanham, Md., was sentenced to 30 days in jail by Prince Georges County Police Court Judge George B. Merrick yesterday. Officer H. C. Briscoe said he arrested Shirley for disorderly conduct, and that Shirley hit him with the handcuffs after he made him prisoner. Judge Merrick sentenced Shirley to an added 15 days on the disorderly conduct charge.

Magistrate Urges Supervised Vice Area in Baltimore

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—A police magistrate's recommendation that prostitutes be segregated and supervised and a prediction that a grand jury studying vice conditions will take "prompt" action marked Baltimore's "clean up" drive today.

Urging the establishment of a district where prostitution would be supervised by police and medical authorities, Charles Heintzeman said his experience as a magistrate in what formerly was known as a "red light" district prompted the recommendation.

Action in the near future by the grand jury was predicted by State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells, following study by the jurors of a lengthy, detailed report on what it termed "widespread vice and gambling" conditions.

N. Y. Company Buys 10 Million In Mexican Oil

May Sell Expropriated Goods to Reich; Firms Threaten Attachment.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, July 6.—The Mexican government has contracted to sell $10,000,000 worth of oil to Davis & Co., of New York, in a deal described tonight as a broad step toward solution of the nation's problem of disposing of her vast stores of black gold.

About 50 per cent of the oil will go to Germany and the remainder to general European markets, principally those of Scandinavian countries, reliable official and unofficial sources disclosed tonight.

The deal was reported by these sources to have been consummated yesterday. It was approved by President Lazardo Cardenas some weeks ago.

Expropriated Property.

The oil will be obtained from wells expropriated on March 18 from 17 British and American companies and from wells owned by the government prior to taking over the foreign-owned companies.

A possible hitch in the deal was seen in a statement by ousted officials of the expropriated companies that they would start attachment proceedings against any tanker carrying oil from the expropriated wells.

It was pointed out they could file such claims against the carriers, claiming the cargoes as their property when they show up in foreign ports.

May Boost Reich Trade.

On the other hand, some sources said the oil might be kept in the Mexican government's name until it is discharged, thus averting litigation since governments can not be sued without their consent.

Unless legal complications develop, a tremendous increase in imports from Germany and a possible drop in like shipments from the United States was seen as a possible result. The United States for years has counted Mexico one of its best customers.

Reich Signs Contract.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 6.—Germany has signed a long-term contract with the Mexican government for petroleum from the recently expropriated Tampico fields, which already is drawing European-owned tramp tankers from the trans-Pacific field.

The Mexican-German pact was disclosed to California operators today following transfer to the new route of the big Swedish tramp motor tanker Regulus, heretofore carrying California oil to Japan.

She is said to be one of many carriers to be chartered for the Mexico-Hamburg run by a government-subsidized concern in Hamburg. It is also reliably reported that the charter terms expressly prohibit the tankers concerned from calling at British ports en route to discharge ports, on the grounds that the cargoes might be confiscated in retaliation for Mexico's seizure of the British-owned oil properties.

Trolley Victim's Friend Hunted

Hagerstown, July 6.—State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram said today that Earl Worten, 47, a native of Washington County, is being sought for questioning in connection with the death yesterday of Thomas Schroyer, 22, Myersville, Frederick County. Schroyer was ground beneath the wheels of a Boonsboro trolley a short time after he left a car carrying Pennsylvanina license tags.

Worten, said Ingram, was seen driving the car with Schroyer as his passenger a short time before the accident.

A coroner's jury will convene Friday. An autopsy made yesterday at Myersville failed to show evidence that Schroyer had been slugged.

Arlington Rites Arranged for Mason Leader

C. J. Armbruster Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow at Fort Myer.

Funeral services for Charles J. Armbruster, grand high priest of the District Royal Arch Masons, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Armbruster, who was principal administrative clerk in the Federal Communications Commission accounting office, died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home, 4106 New Hampshire avenue northwest. He was 51 years old.

Born in Washington, Mr. Armbruster graduated from the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., and then completed a three-year course at the institution's theological seminary. He never entered the ministry.

Served in Signal Corps.

In December, 1917, Mr. Armbruster enlisted in the aviation section of the United States Signal Corps and served until December, 1918, when he was discharged with the rank of second lieutenant in the Air Service Reserve.

Elected to Joppa Lodge, No. 35, in 1922, Mr. Armbruster rose steadily in Masonic ranks until he was elected grand high priest last February.

He was given his Royal Arch degrees in Mount Pleasant Chapter No. 13 in 1923 and in 1925 he became a charter member of Petworth Chapter No. 16. He was named high priest of that chapter four years later. He belonged to Mount Pleasant Chapter, No. 5, R. S. M. and was master of the council from 1935 until he died. He was also a member of Albert Pike Consistory, Ancient and Accepted Order of Scottish Rite and a member of Almas Temple Shriners.

Married Recently.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Garth Scott Armbruster, whom he married only two months ago and a niece and nephew, Miss Jane E. Wolf and Charles Armbruster Wolf, of Ardmore, Pa. His mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Rynex, died within the past few months.

Before entering the service of the Federal Communications Commission, Mr. Armbruster held positions with the Postoffice Department, the War Finance Corporation, the United States Bureau of Efficiency, the Railroad Administration and the Railway Accounting Offices Association.

John C. Walker, 74, Chevy Chase Bank President, Is Dead

John C. Walker, 74, president of the Chevy Chase (Md.) Savings Bank, died yesterday at his home, 1 East Lenox street, Chevy Chase, Md. He had been ill for two years with heart trouble.

A native of Washington, Mr. Walker celebrated his fiftieth wedding anniversary about six months ago. His wife, Mrs. Jennie Y. Walker, survives. He was a member of the advisory board of the Chevy Chase Branch of Riggs National Bank and a vice president of the Racquet Club before its merger with the University Club.

Also surviving are a son, Curtis Walker, three grandchildren, Curtis, jr., Claxton and John C. 3d, and five sisters, Mrs. Norris Alexander, Mrs. James O. Spangler, Mrs. Frank Parker, Mrs. John W. Brawner, all of Washington, and Mrs. Nelson Clarke, of New York.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon at his home. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

William Miller, Ex-Banker, Dead

William Miller, 84, former banker and butcher, died yesterday at his home, 3830 Georgia avenue northwest. A lifelong resident of Washington, Mr. Miller had been retired for many years.

At one time he managed a meat store at the old Center Market. In 1899 he was a founder of the Home Savings Bank, and continued as one of the directors until its merger with the American Security & Trust Co. He was on the advisory board of one of the branches of the latter organization.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary C. Miller; five sons, William, Jacob, Charles, John and Henry; four daughters, Mary, Charlotte and Lena Miller, and Mrs. Margaret Reisinger; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. All live in Washington.

New President Of Rotary Asks Boys Club Aid

Albert F. E. Horn, new president of the Washington Rotary Club, called on his fellow members for aid in further developing the Georgetown Boys Club and sponsoring fellowship among Washingtonians at the induction luncheon ceremonies yesterday at the Willard.

E. P. Coffey, chief of the Crime Laboratory of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, told the members of the work of his particular branch of the Nation's crime-detection service. He compared bank robbery gangs with big business organizations in their methods of work.

"These gangs have a complete filing system of jobs either 'pulled off' or contemplated that would put big business to shame," he said. "The system includes a layout of the bank to be robbed, the quickest route of escape by automobile, and very often the police posts which are passed on the getaway."

Other officers installed yesterday were Thomas L. Eagan, vice president; Leo C. May, secretary; Marcy L. Sperry, treasurer, and Kirby Smith, sergeant at arms. Directors named were Roy W. Crampton, E. Carlyn Guy, M. X. Wilberding, Clayton A. Ammann, L. Bert Nye, W. Spencer Brenizer, Mack L. Langford and Joseph K. Moyer.

President Horn named the following chairmen of committees: Thomas Beavers, club service; Alfred G. Neal, community service; William C. Van Vleck, international service; James B. Luttes, vocational service; Arthur J. May, administration; Fenton M. Padeley, attendance; William R. Winslow, boys' work; Daniel J. Callahan, business counsel and advice; Amasa M. Holcombe, classification; Charles B. Griffith, entertainment; Charles A. Stott, extension; Granville Gude, fellowship; A. Chester Flather, finance; John E. Parker, golf; H. Frank Taff, health and welfare; Harold A. Brooks, membership; Theodore W. Irvin, music; Albert Atwood, program; Bruce R. Allen, publicity; Percival Hall, Rotary interpretation, and George W. Harris, relations with Rotary International.

James Gray, Aide In Postoffice for 45 Years, Is Dead

James Gray, 69, retired employe of the City Postoffice, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 720 Kennedy street northwest.

Gray and his younger brother, Michael, were inspecting a heater in the basement of their home when the older man dropped to the floor. He had suffered from a heart ailment for several years.

Mr. Gray had lived here all his life. He retired from the Postoffice five years ago after serving there 45 years. Neither he nor his brother was married and the two had been comrades since childhood.

Mr. Gray was a member of Lafayette Lodge, Columbia Commandery, Scottish Rite Masons and Almas Temple Shriners.

IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, Warrenton Supply Company, Incorporated, plaintiff, vs. Carol Dillin, trading as Dillin Motor Company, defendant. No. 365-736. Order of publication. The object of this suit is to recover a judment against defendant in the sum of two hundred forty-two and 45/100 dollars ($242.45), with interest from August 17, 1936, and costs, being the purchase price of certain merchandise and to have condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied on under a writ of attachment heretofore issued in this suit to satisfy plaintiff's claim. It is therefore, this 21st day of June, 1938, ordered that the defendant appear in this Court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays after the date of the first publication of this order, to defend this suit and show cause why said condemnation should not be had; otherwise the suit will be proceeded with as in case of default, provided that this order be published at least once a week for three (3) successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. BY THE COURT. ARMOND W. SCOTT, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) BLANCHE NEFF, Clerk. 23,30,7

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 20, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing part of Michigan avenue west of Eighteenth street northeast, considered in connection with a dedication of certain area for highway purposes in this vicinity, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered, that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, a part of Michigan avenue northeast, on the southerly side, lying immediately west of Eighteenth street, is hereby ordered closed, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia numbered as Map 2058-A, same to take effect on and after July 20, 1938, the title to the land comprised within that part of Michigan avenue so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided for the acquisition of additional street area at Michigan avenue and Bunker Hill road northeast, and for the widening of Bunker Hill road on the northerly side, west of Eighteenth street northeast." Any and all parties interested must file objections in writing, if any, to said closing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on July 20, 1938, as aforesaid, and said part of said avenue shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said Act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

"The Timid Soul" by Webster Appears in Sunday's Post.

Bob Burns Says—

The reason why the government isn't run as well and economically as a well organized business is because a lot of the government jobs are given to people who did the politician a favor. While in business, the man has'ta be a good worker to hold his job and the boss is a little more cold blooded about it.

One day the boss of a lumber camp fell in the river among the logs and woulda drowned if a workman hadn't jumped in and pulled him out. When the boss came to, he looked at the workman and says, "You're fired!"

The workman says, "Gee, boss—if I hadn't seen you fall in, you'd drown!" The boss says, "Yes—and if you'd been attendin' to your work, you wouldn't have seen me fall in!"

SlumpPolitical, Landon Says in Reply to 'Chat'

Blames the Administration 'Methods, Not Aims' for Depression.

By the Associated Press.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, July 6.—Alf M. Landon replied to President Roosevelt's recent fireside address tonight with a charge that the present depression was brought on by methods and policies of the Administration.

This depression, he said, is "purely political."

He characterized the President's speech as "the New Deal version of why we have 12,0000,000 people unemployed."

The 1936 Republican Presidential nominee spoke over a Nation-wide radio network. It was the first of a series of speeches he is expected to deliver during the coming Congressional campaign.

Landon contended that "because Mr. Roosevelt has not been successful in restoring employment he adopts the strategy of nagging at business.

Charges "Smoke Screen."

"Mr. Roosevelt," Landon said, "is adept at using beautiful words which appeal to the emotions for the purpose of creating a smoke screen to hide his Administration blunders."

The former Kansas Governor said that if the President would "practice what he preaches" in the way of governmental administration, Republicans would "fight shoulder to shoulder with him to achieve the social progress and the economic recovery which we all desire and need."

He struck particularly at what he called governmental "financial recklessness" and the "use of WPA money to buy votes."

Replying to Mr. Roosevelt's fireside appeal for the election of "liberal candidates," Landon commented:

"The President seems to feel that all he has to do is wave the flag and shout: 'All liberals on this side.' It is not quite as simple as that.

Fears "Absolutism."

"Every liberal recognizes that new conditions throughout the world call for new practical remedies. Every liberal wants a sound, strong Government, capable of meeting these new conditions.

"But we do not want this Government to be constantly edging toward a governmental absolutism, which is the case under Mr. Roosevelt.

"The real liberal doesn't believe that the whole solution lies in taking power away from the individual and giving it to the Government."

Asserting the President has attempted to "divert the issue" of social progress, Landon contended Mr. Roosevelt was attempting to show "that all who oppose him are definitely aligned against . . . social reforms."

Thrusts at President.

Sprinkling his address with sharply worded thrusts at the President, the Kansan added:

"All who do not believe in putting political boses in charge of WPA are dubbed reactionaries. All those who believe financial unsoundness and instability threaten freedom and civil liberties are just hard-boiled conservatives to him (the President)."

Landon said at the outset that he couldn't "compete with Mr. Roosevelt as a radio artist," but that he took exception to the "glowing picture he painted" in his recent speech.

"All Americans worthy of the name, regardless of political party," he continued, "have one thing uppermost in their minds today: They want to see recovery—they want to see a return of prosperity—they want to see happy men back on their jobs. And, frankly, I don't believe they care which party does it—if they will just do it."

Stressing his assertion that the depression was "political," Landon emphasized he was not saying it was caused by the hopes, aspirations and objectives of the present Administration, but by the "methods and policies."

Says Majority Oppose New Deal.

"Every day the evidence is becoming more overwhelming," he declared. "I believe if you would consult business leaders, bankers, economists and, above all, the average man in any part of the United States, the majority of them would confirm this opinion."

At one point Landon declared Mr. Roosevelt made a "vague reference" to conditions in Jersey City, N. J., in his recent address. There have been charges that Mayor Frank Hague's administration there has violated civil liberties.

"I welcome even the vague reference the President made to this situation," Landon said. "But, when he might have given real help, when he might have provided the moral leadership needed, he attempted to wash his hands of it. Even now, he hopes to 'get by' without taking a decisive stand."

Landon asserted that unless the President's methods and policies are changed "we will be right back in another depression as soon as the government spending splurge is over."

Charges Corruption.

"I think," the Republican leader continued, "that Mr. Roosevelt can count on the active co-operation and support of practically all Republican citizens in this country in all the humanitarian things he is trying to do. But we will not condone corruption and trickery on the part of his advisers and assistants, because the ultimate aim is good.

"But, first, let Mr. Roosevelt abandon the confusion and contradiction that has marked so much of his Administration. Let him realize that the greatest peril to social reform is financial recklessness.

"Let him make another determined effort to eliminate waste and extravagance, as he did in 1933. Let him cease his nagging attacks on business. Let him, instead, undertake to bring about an harmonious working relationship between industry and labor and between them and the public.

"Let him make an effort to dissolve monopoly instead of fostering it. Let Mr. Roosevelt forswear all further attempts to tamper with the Supreme Court and get power into his own hands. Let him put a stop to the use of WPA money to buy votes.

"In short, let Mr. Roosevelt only practice what he preaches, and we will not only co-operate with him—we will fight shoulder to shoulder with him to achieve the social progress and the economic recovery which we all desire and need."
